Of course you went to church yesterday.

Floods still rage in the south and other sections.

Omaha bridge bill bitterly assaulted by its friends.

Modern youth is safe as long as there are yes-men and no-girls.

Our daily walk convinces us that what people suffer from in spring is that tired feeling.

Speaking of relief for the farmer, the digest of who paid the income tax shows that they already have it.

The Liberal army in Nicaragua, we learn from a conservative statement, is in retreat and our fondest hope is that they do not retreat into any of the neutral zone.

Only women in long skirts may enter the presence of the Queen of Sweden, who has seen all the knock-knees and bow-legged women she cared about for a while.

Contract bridge was unknown ten years ago. In fact, the social pastime at that period was knitting sweaters and socks, the game being for the boys to guess which was which.

If the next war is to be fought in the air, as Arthur Brisbane so feverishly assures us, it will be dangerous for the politicians because that is where they are most of the time.

The workmen who are repairing the White House roof are selling the old nails at four for a dollar. We'll bet the price of four nails that they are republican workmen from Ohio.

Kansas editors are extolling the virtues of dandelion greens. The virtues of dandelion greens are true and existent only when the dandelions are mingled with an overwhelming ratio of other kinds of greens.

The democratic party is the party of the people, but it needs sifting to get the spies out of its ranks. All along, it has not been careful enough in getting traitors out of its caucuses. You must watch your P's and Q's in the campaign in 1928.

The democratic party is on the alert, and getting more so every day. They can become a solid party by a little use of common sense. Let the people rule awhile, not the factions that have always brought on defeat. United we can bring forth victory; divided, defeat.

The seven Sunday proposition is a fake.

Senator Reed sees probe in politics. We would say so.

Judicial murder is no less effective than any other form.

Patsy Ruth Miller is a dandy, and always draws a big audience.

There are a whole lot of Americans in China that have no business there.

An optimist is one who had an engagement to play golf any day last week.

Snobbishness is an estimate of one's abilities concurred in only by the estimator.

A good movie picture will hurt no one. And often they are purely educational to women and children as well as men.

The ladies are becoming "Adamized," according to the New Parisian.

Now, as to the men, would you say they are rowin madamized?

Come in Wednesday, and see what our merchants can do for you. They have marked down goods to the lowest price. A chance of a lifetime.

The first sandwich was said to have been made in the seventeenth century. Replicas of the original are exhibited in glass cases at all railway stations.

Senator Reed's statement that Henry Ford never reads his magazine tends to convince us that Henry has made a correct appraisal of its literary merit.

Andy Moore is fat and jolly, with a smile for everybody. That is the reason so many like to go to the Parmele. A cordial welcome is always in store.

A professor of Trinity College says that 200,000,000 years ago we were all fish. This may explain why so many people are prone to revert to type and become suckers.

There has been no perceptible increase in man's intelligence in the last 20,000 years, says a magazine writer. And some of the jokes have lasted all those years, too.

An association has started a move to halt profanity in the Spanish army. There are said to be a few other armies, too, where the soldiers are none too careful with their words.

WHAT DOES MR. FESS MEAN?

Senator Fess of Ohio has declined the appointment tendered him by Vice President Dawes to serve on the Reed investigating committee. His rambling explanation on why he cannot accept the place is a shabby alibi, but one of his objections may be looked into, namely, that he is not in accord with the views of the majority of the committee.

What are the views of the committee's majority? They are found officially in the committee's report to the senate. That report summarized the press reports of the committee inquiry. It showed, on the sworn testimony of candidates, managers and contributors, that immense sums of money had been expended in the senatorial primaries of Pennsylvania and Illinois.

It seems fair to ask, then, just what Senator Fess means when he says he is not in accord with the committee's majority. Does he challenge the accuracy of the committee's statements of facts?

Does he challenge the committee's deduction that such vast expenditures are contrary to public policy and are, in truth, a menace to our government and its institutions?

Does he mean that, in his opinion, it was right and proper for Vare to buy his nomination in Pennsylvania and for Smith to do the same thing in Illinois?

Does Senator Fess mean that he approves, or is willing to cover up, corruption of that character?

We are loath to believe the senator from Ohio wishes to be understood as condoning or indorsing such practices, but if his assertion that he is not in accord with the views of the majority of the Reed committee does not mean that, what does it?

TWO FRIENDLY NATIONS

Figures just released by Canadian officials emphasize once again the closeness of the relations that bind Canada and the United States together.

The United States is Canada's chief export market. In the year just ended the United States bought Canadian goods valued at over $450,000,000.

In addition, Canada buys more goods from the United States than from any other country—more even than from the British isles. American goods last year amounted to sixty-six per cent of Canada's total imports, and were valued at over $650,000,000.

The tradition of friendship between these two great countries is one of the brightest spots in the world's history of international relations. These figures show that this tradition rests on a good solid basis.

It appears that Mrs. Phillip Lydig whose bankruptcy petition was filed in New York the other day, is the author of a current magazine article entitled, "Have We Nothing But Money in America."

DISHONEST DRIVERS

There must be a vital relation between poor driving and dishonesty. When a driver will smash into your car while peacefully parked by the curb, take off a fender or running board, and leave your car with a big body dent and drive off and say not a word about it or give a moment's thought to the damage done and the expense caused. This is a new phase of dishonesty and highway robbery which we might just as well recognize to begin with. You might just as well waylay a fellow and take his money as smash his car, leaving a nice fat bill to pay.

A well-known citizen came to our office the other day in a bad humor, for upon returning to his parked car he found the rear and front fenders on one side smashed, the running board torn off and the rear hub cap knocked off with grease smeared all over the wheel and side of the car. It looks like a $20.00 repair bill and what hurts is that it has just been thirty days since he paid for a fender and body dent costing $30.00 which one of our "conscienceless drivers" bequeathed while peacefully and properly parked.

The "poor driver with a poor conscience," probably carried collision insurance, and could have recompensed the owner of the damaged car, but he got away without showing the courtesy of reporting the mix-up to the owner of the damaged car.

This form of insurance is carried for the purpose of protecting a car owner against damage inflicted by him on the property of others, and when such damage is caused it is downright dishonest not to acknowledge one's liability.

Wrecking the other fellow's car and then driving off without making a report differs in no respect from entering a man's home, wrecking his furniture, smashing the piano with an axe, and then departing without leaving a clue as to your identity.

A few days ago the writer saw a lady driving a "Lizzie." As she backed out of her parking space, she hung the bumper of her car under the rear fender of a new Cadillac car, giving it a terrible twist and side swipe. There was a policeman standing near by who helped to get her untangled from the unoccupied Cadillac car, but neither he nor she took any cognizance of the bunged up fender of the Cadillac. We wonder if cops and "conscienceless drivers" know that fenders on large automobiles cost money? Something must be done to protect the public from this reckless destruction of property. We would suggest that the next time one of these "poor drivers with poor honesty" smash into a car while unoccupied and take off a fender or two, that they leave their car on the steering wheel of the damaged car, suggesting that the person report to their insurance agent for an adjustment. This will help your conscience as well as the business of your insurance agent and will put more new money into circulation.

Also, it will convince the owner of the wrecked car that you at least know the elements of common honesty.

It was not to be expected that Secretary of War Davis and Senator Shipstead would return from the Caribbean with the same views of our activities there. They did not go down with the same views, and we have yet to hear of a sea voyage changing anybody's mind.

Omaha is going to make an effort for the Republican National Convention. But don't think they will ever get it for several years yet.
