Beef Cattle are Due for Gain in Market Value

Expert Declares Cattle Decreasing in U. S. and Demand for Beef Is on the Increase.

The depression in the beef cattle industry will soon disappear because production has been materially reduced by financial losses of recent years, says Dr. G. F. Warren of the New York state college of agriculture.

In December 1921 when beef cattle sold for $4.62 a hundredweight, they were the cheapest they had been for nearly 10 years, but since then prices have risen about $2.20 a hundredweight. In terms of index numbers which are based on the five-year prewar average of prices, this is an increase of 40 points or from 89 to 129.

Beef cattle are still cheap, but this rise has occurred in spite of the general agricultural depression, says Dr. Warren.

The number of beef cattle in the United States has been decreasing and still is decreasing. Since 1920 the number of beef cattle in the United States has been decreasing and still is decreasing. Since 1920 the number of cattle has decreased 14 per cent, while, at the same time, the population of the United States increased 11 per cent. Because of this increase in the number of consumers, and because there is already a shortage of young cattle, a period of better prices is inevitable. The highest prices probably will occur about 1931, Dr. Warren predicts.

The depressions and periods of high prices in the beef cattle industry average about eight to nine years apart. Judging by the experience of the last 55 years, prices will continue to rise at an accelerated rate for four years, and by that time public interest will probably be centered on how to get a supply of beef rather than how to get rid of the supply.

If past experiences are repeated, Dr. Warren predicts that soon after 1931, or the latest, when prices are highest, a commission will be appointed to study the question as was done in 1913.

It is perfectly easy to get a supply of beef and perfectly easy to get rid of it, he says, but it takes about eight years to accomplish either.

FIGHTS IMMORAL BOOKS

Rome, Italy, May 10.—Pope Pius has called upon all the bishops of the Roman Catholic church to aid him to the fullest extent of their powers in a crusade against the printing and reading of immoral books, especially those which hit their last enemies under a cloak of false religious mysticism.

In his name "the supreme sacred congregation of the sacred office" has sent to bishops through the world a lengthy document imparting precise instructions for a Holy war against the novels, short stories, dramas, comedies and pictures favoring sensual passions and a certain type of lascivious mysticism which are now increasing in incredible fashion.

Coming after a series of severe steps against immodest dress and immoral customs, the opening of a struggle against immoral books is interpreted in ecclesiastical circles here as attesting to the pontiff's determination to have the Church of Rome lead the world out of moral laxity following the world war.

FREIGHT CARS INCREASED

St. Louis, May 8.—Capacity of freight equipment on American railroads has steadily increased during the last few years. This is reflected in a report released here which shows that the Missouri Pacific Lines is rapidly replacing its small freight cars with heavier equipment.

Of the 21,761 box and automobile cars owned by the Missouri Pacific on the last day of 1925, 950 were fifty-ton capacity, as compared with 11,582 in 1925, while only 8,669 were of thirty tons or less, as compared with 19,796 in 1925; 12,783 in 1924 and 13,323 in 1923.

Coal cars owned by the Missouri Pacific last year totaled 16,528. Of this number, 500 were of fifty-five ton capacity, as compared with 250 cars of this type owned in 1925; while only 489 were of thirty tons or less, as compared with 1,419 in 1925, 1,673 in 1924, and 2,960 in 1923.

Stock cars last year totaled 2,445 of which 1,136 were of forty-ton capacity, as compared with only 887 in 1925.

rival. All concerned are getting along nicely.

Charles Eates the carpenter and Mark Burton, the painter and paper hanger are pushing the work on the building on the farm belonging to the Nehawka bank, east of town on the highway to an early completion that Guy Stokes might be able to move as he will farm the land this summer.

Mrs. George Spohn of Superior, accompanied by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Vilas Spohn, were in Nehawka last week, and were attending the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Henry Behrens. They also visited with a number of friends while here and were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Wunrich.

Dr. A. R. Kintner and the tonsorial artist Mr. Frank M. Lemon, were visiting in Lincoln on last Monday they making the trip via the auto of Dr. Kintner where he was called to look after some business matters for the day. Mr. Lemon was accompanying the doctor to enjoy the trip and visit with friends in the big city.

At the last meeting of the A. O. U. W. lodge of Nehawka Vilas Sheldon was elected the delegate to the grand lodge of Nebraska which is meeting this week at Grand Island, and John G. Wunrich as alternate. Mr. Sheldon departed early this week for the meeting place in the west to participate in the deliberations of the grand lodge.

Mrs. Emma Burdick of Omaha where she has made her home for some time, was a visitor in Nehawka one day during the past week and was a guest of her sister, Mrs. Nicholas Klaurens, for the day. Mrs. Burdick failed to see her brother Mr. Henry Gruber, who was at the time out of the city at work at his trade as concrete worker.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Berger were visiting in Lincoln on Friday of last week, where Mr. Berger was in attendance at the Shrine meeting and the banquet which followed, while Mrs. Berger with a number of her friends made up a theatre party, who enjoyed the evening while the husband was at the banquet. They returned home following the entertainment.

Undergoes Operation.

Mrs. Alma Leesch of Nebraska City but formerly Miss Alma Schumaker of near Nehawka, but who has been making her home near Nebraska City for a number of years, has been troubled with appendicitis for some time and under the advice of her physicians, went to a hospital at Nebraska City and on last Saturday underwent an operation for its cure. Her brother and family, Edwin Schumaker, were over to Nebraska City on last Sunday and there visited with the sister, who is at this time reported as getting along nicely. Many of the older inhabitants of this community will remember Alma Schumaker. All are wishing that she may have a speedy recovery.

Hold Baccalaureate Services.

In honor of the high school of Nehawka the baccalaureate services were delivered at the Nehawka Auditorium on last Sunday evening by the Rev. Clinton Swingle of the Methodist church of this place. A most impressive and worthwhile discourse was delivered and was listened to by a large number of the residents of Nehawka and vicinity, and patrons of the Nehawka high school. Two very enjoyable vocal solos were rendered one by the Rev. Swingle and the other by Miss Bessie Weller, with both much enjoyed.

There are twelve of the class of the Nehawka school to graduate from this institution of learning with high honors, they being, Messrs. Frank Pollard, Stirling Ingwerson and Everett Richmond, Mesdames Frank Pollard, and Erma Harschman, and Misses Julia Troop, Dorothy Lundberg, Dorothy Sturm, Mable Ketch Helen Behrens, Ruth Palmer, and Wilma Switzer. The Journal with their many other friends are extending congratulations and best wishes for the future life which we are certain they will make a success of.

Buying Walnut Logs.

Sam Martin has accepted a position with the Des Moines people who are purchasing walnut logs for shipment to the Iowa city. This is the position which was formerly occupied by Millard H. O'Dell.

Some Heavy Rain.

One of the heaviest rains of many years fell south and east of Nehawka last Saturday, and which continued for about an hour, in some instances the rainfall amounting to as much as seven inches. Fences were washed away and the water overflowed much of the lowlands and creek bottoms. At the home of Fred Nutzman and his son Eugene, there was much damage done in the washing out of fences. Eugene Nutzman suffered a loss of some thirty young pigs and some four more old ones. It was thought for a time that there would be a number of cattle drowned, but they huddled on high points in the pasture and while the water came up to their sides they stuck to the place and it was but a few yards until the water subsided. A number of the cattle of Henry Ross were at a time imperiled but at the end of an hour, the waters had passed the danger point, without the loss of any of them.

White River Up; Families Flee

All Bridges Are Submerged and the Stream is Higher than it Has Been in Seven Years.

Chadron, Neb., May 10.—White River is high out of its banks and has submerged all the bridges in the region near here, reaching its highest point in seven years. Farmers in the river bottoms near here were leaving their homes early Monday in fear of the rapidly rising waters. A heavy downpour commenced in the Chadron district Saturday night and continued throughout Sunday, which developed into a driving blizzard during the night. The storm abated Monday with several inches of snow on the ground. A heavy snow in Wyoming was also reported.

Train service west of Chadron is completely stopped, as bridge repair crews were unable to proceed beyond Dakota Junction, 5 miles west of here, because of inundated tracks and Chadron for west Monday and possibilities of regular service Tuesday were considered doubtful.

Court Laughs at Chaplin's Antics

With Two Pairs of Spectacles, Comedian Fails to See Any Similarity in Salesman's Scenario.

New York, May 10.—Charlie Chaplin scanned a disinfected salesman's scenario in court today with the naked eye and with two pairs of glasses (one pair being the judicial spectacles of the judge himself) and still he could not see any similarity to one of his own screen efforts. In fact he could not see the salesman's scenario at all until he held the judge's glasses away from his face like a magnifying glass or a dowager's lorgnette.

"It was good 'business' while it lasted, and the little actor made it last some time, seeming to take pleasure in the merriment that rippled thru the crowded court roop where he is being sued for $50,000 for plagiarism, and in the laughter both judge and jury joined. Chaplin scrutinized the paper with expressions of exaggerated concentration which brought general laughter. He shrugged with a pathetic gesture of frustration and the spectators rocked in their seats.

"I'm afraid I can't read it," the actor apologized to Hays. "I forgot to bring my glasses."

Nathan Burkan, the comedian's lawyer, handed up his own glasses, and Chaplin tried them on his nose and then stared blankly at the paper. His expression and pantomime of his inability to see brought more laughter in which Federal Judge Bondy joined. Judge Bondy leaned over the bench and proffered Chaplin the judicial spectacles. The actor tried them frontwards, backwards, as a monach with the extra glass riding over one ear, and then as a magnifying glass. "I can read," he cried then with a happy smile and the crowd cheered.

The crowd seemed to consider the highlight of the day a moment when Chaplin spoke of "quarrel with my wife." He was explaining that in the original version of "Shoulder Arms," there was a scene in which he appeared quarreling with "my wife." A loud laugh greeted this statement and the little actor seemed startled, undecided whether to join the merriment or become angry.

It may be that the case of Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder will help some young men in the future. There is possibility that it will cause them to look before they leap into the sea of matrimony.
