"Slim" Lindbergh is a Boy Scout now and he's tickled about it. Looking more boyish than at any time since he flared into renown, the New York-to-Paris flier received the honor at the hands of three khaki clad lads, who looked not a whit younger than he.

One reason why the voters of Nebraska refuse to get excited over the gubernatorial campaign is that they know they will have to get excited all over again in the senatorial and judicial campaign next year. Life in Nebraska is just one darned election after another.

THE FUTURE OF FLYING

The public's grasp of flying has gone forward in a big leap in the last few weeks, and just such a public appreciation was needed to assure the future of aviation in this country. Since the war a number of far-sighted experimenters have been making their predictions and spending we know not what sums in exploring the way for the inevitable future of the air, but the lethargic public, slow to catch on, has not become air minded. Now is the chance.

Detroit, already in possession of the world's motor production capital, would like the air capital as well, and the Detroit movement to raise a fund of $50,000 which would go to the first plans to fly from Detroit to London with a load equivalent to five passengers, is a sound business offer to develop aviation and put it on a paying basis.

Up to the present, aviation has been a good bit in the class of grand opera; pretty and spectacular, but requiring fat subsidies. Flying will not develop on any such aesthetic backing. It must be made to pay its own way. It cannot subsist on prizes and charity.

The two trans-oceanic hops, successful as they were, do not mean that the day of regular service between Europe and America is at hand. The pilots had to wait for the favorable weather. That they were not forced down in mid-ocean is a blessing, but not all planes could repeat the stunt with such success.

At the present time, the future seems to lie in the multi-motored plane. With these planes, the failure of one or even two engines does not necessitate a landing in mid-ocean. One motor will permit the ship to carry on till relief in the form of a substantial ocean liner or sea-going tub can be reached. De Pinedo's experiences near the Azores prove this conclusively.

The need, therefore, as much as for airplanes themselves, is for mid-ocean emergency landing "fields." Ingenious dreamers have suggested any number of forms that these fields may take: huge floating doughnuts with sheltered quieted water in the holes, or cruising aircraft carriers such as the navy now has in the Langley. Between such stations, of course, a constant patrol would have to be maintained.

No summary of flying achievements would be complete without mentioning the airmail, which has been the foremost pioneer in this country. The acquisition of flying fields and the construction of beacons for night flying were necessary before this service could be carried on.

The problem of securing landing fields closer to business districts will have to be solved, or transportation to flying fields will have to be quickened considerably, as there is now too much time lost in going to and from the points of departure and landing.

CURIOUS CALL

It is said that in Hampton Roads the other day, President Coolidge went with great reluctance to review the fleet for a brief period of twenty minutes when the great wardogs of the navy were passing for two hours and a half. Sea captains can't understand the attitude of their commander-in-chief. Heretofore, a presidential review has been the greatest of events in the life of the navy. The "chief" watches with pride his fighting machines pass before him proudly and majestically. Not so this time. The president watched twenty minutes, yawned, and went below decks. The ships plowed their way by him in disgust.

Pitching hay for an unknown neighbor in Vermont, or planning a vacation in the fastnesses of the Black Hills are much smarter publicity stunts, than watching ships about which reporters are writing. Why should Mr. Coolidge bother about a fleet passing in review?

We are deeply obliged, of course, but the Daily Journal cannot print Lindbergh poetry. Literary efforts of this nature have deluged our office for some time, and the present supply is approximately three bushels, with more coming in on every mail. Far be it from us to discourage those who would soar on the wings of Pegasus, but the Daily Journal is essentially a newspaper, and must give precedence to live news matter. One of these days, when our personal fortune totals twenty million dollars, we are going to establish a magazine for the free publication of poetry, regardless of authorship or merit.

You can take the declaration that Chicago beach police will this summer impose no restrictions on flapper costumes in any one of several ways. Either the flapper of Chicago has reformed, or else the Chicago authorities have given up hope of reforming her. Be this as it may, Chicago will use no measuring sticks this summer, nor try to enforce regulations that the feminine bathing costumes must come so many inches up or so many inches down, depending on the starting point. The naive police officer's quaint declaration that the censorship will be left entirely to the consciences of the flappers, will make many reformers wonder if the uncensored costumes will reveal conscience declared non-existent.

Fifty-two thousand telegrams addressed to "Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, care of President Coolidge," were delivered to the White House in one load. We estimate that it will take Col. Lindbergh two solid months, working eight hours a day, to open and read his telegrams, and out of the whole gigantic grist he may get, at most, three or four original sentiments.

Able writers now keep closer watch of world events than formerly. All are able and as well instructive. Diplomacy is not the secret it was.

Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys
Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chem., Buffalo, N. Y.

Authorities agree that an excess of uric acid is primarily due to faulty kidney action. Retention of this toxic material often makes its presence felt by sore, painful joints, a tired, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backache and headache. That the kidneys are not functioning right is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Thousands assist their kidneys at such times by the use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Doan's are recommended by many local people. Ask your neighbor!

Old Resident Found Dead in His Home Here

Frank Kolasek, Residing in West Part of the City Found Dead in His Bed by Relatives.

From Saturday's Daily.—Yesterday Frank Kolasek, aged 79, one of the long times residents of this community, was found dead in bed at his home in the west part of the city, he apparently having passed away sometime Thursday night as the result of an attack of heart trouble from which he had suffered for some time. The death was discovered by Mrs. Logan Covert, a distant relative who resides near the place of residence of Mr. Kolasek and who called to see how he was doing and was startled to find him dead.

The aged man had made his home alone for the past few years and despite the efforts of the relatives to induce him to come and make his home with them he remained alone and looking after his own work and duties. He has for a period of several weeks been kept almost constantly to his home as the result of his illness. Mr. Kolasek has been a resident of the community for some forty-eight years, coming here some years ago and has since made his home in this city where he was engaged for some years in railroad work in the local shops and later has been working at small jobs as his advancing years did not permit his having a steady occupation.

The wife of Mr. Kolasek from whom he was separated, passed away some years ago and the deceased is survived by six children, Charles Lahoda, Louis Lahoda, Omaha, Claude Lahoda, Mrs. Frances Zuckweiler Miller, S. D., Anton Lahoda and Mrs. Josephine Schmaeder of Omaha.

In their bereavement the members of the family will have the deepest sympathy of the many friends in this community where the family has so long been residents.

WE MUST WATCH THE GAME

We think highly of the British and Japanese. We regard them as friendly to the United States, and as anxious to promote world peace. In fact, we almost love them.

But when we sit with them in a disarmament conference we are reminded of the Missouri Colonel sitting in the poker game who didn't dare turn his head to spit.

Time, much time, is necessary to restore to normalcy all the minor conditions which were put out of joint by the war. But one by one they are climbing back to their original plane and we hail with satisfaction their restoration to their pristine place in our scheme of living.

There was an item in the papers the other day about a man named John Pershing being on his way home from Europe. Doubtless the ship news reporters will find out who he is. Possibly he may be a relative of Charley Lindbergh.
