Life Giving Rain Falls in This Locality

Inch and a Half of Rainfall Registered—Great Benefit to Corn and Pastures.

From Thursday's Daily— Commencing last night about 1 o'clock and continuing off and on during the morning a life giving rain fell throughout this community and a total of an inch and a half was registered in this city and the nearby territory.

The rain came in good time as corn and pastures have suffered very much in the last week from the intense heat and sun and was badly in need of the moisture that came with the storm and refreshed the crops as well as this part of the country.

The rain was also reported as being heavy in the extreme west portion of the country in the vicinity of Greenwood and which was a great aid to the crops, although more rain has been recorded there in June than in this section of the country.

The rain was accompanied by a very heavy electrical storm and the flashes of lightning were severe in the main portion of the storm that broke over the city shortly after 4 o'clock and continued for some time.

In the storm the manse of the Presbyterian church was struck by lightning and damaged to some extent. The bolt was very peculiar as it seems to have struck near a window on the roof of the manse and the force of the lightning bolt was upward, it tearing off a large section of the shingles and after going through the roof hit a tree nearby and stripped off a great deal of the bark. The members of the McClusky family were not injured, however, in the lightning striking the house.

Making Improvements at Sattler Funeral Home

Remodeling to Give More Space for Chapel is Now Being Carried Out—New Heating Plant

From Friday's Daily— The Sattler Funeral home at Fourth and Vine streets is undergoing a very extensive remodeling for the purpose of affording more room in the building for the funeral chapel which is one of the very convenient and attractive features of the home.

The basement of the building is being remodeled and placed in the very best of shape with concrete walls and floors and lighting effects and which will be used by the management of the funeral home as the display room for the caskets and other stocks in the future and take this line from the upper floors of the home where they now are held.

When the display room is arranged on the basement floor there will be a change made in the interior of the building on the first floor, a large arch being cut through the wall and which will give one large room instead of the two separate rooms and give this additional space for the use of the chapel for funeral services.

Later Mr. Sattler is planning a number of changes on the upper floor of the home that will fit them for living apartments and which will be occupied later by the Sattler family if it is expected.

During the spring and summer some landscaping work has been carried out on the lawn surrounding the home and a fine driveway will be constructed around the building that will be very convenient and useful in handling the funerals that are held from the home.

A new heating plant is also being installed in the home which will be adequate to serve to keep all portions of the home heated and ready for use at any time.

Plans for Fall Festival are to be Started Soon

Date Not Definitely Decided Upon But Will Probably Be in the Late Fall After Fair Season.

From Friday's Daily— The fall festival in which the Chamber of Commerce, Ad club and the American Legion will join, is now being started on the first steps and plans will be outlined as soon as the committees from these three organizations are duly appointed and start in functioning. While it has not been definitely decided upon it will probably mark a several days celebration.

The dates on which the festival will be held have not as yet been decided upon and will follow, it is thought, as soon after the fair season in the state and the final harvest as possible.

The fall festival idea is one that should be followed to a successful completion and was broached this year at the time of the discussion of the plans for an extensive observance of the Fourth of July, the sentiment being that a community observance in the cooler fall weather would be more enjoyed and escape the blistering heat of the mid-summer season.

While the plans of the event are still in the first stages of formation one event that has been generally fixed upon as to be part of the fall festival, is that of a homecoming day for all of those who have called this city their home and who will be invited to return and visit the old time friends and their relatives back in the old home community—the old town has many very tender memories for those who have lived here in the past and they will be well pleased to again let their footsteps wander back to the old scenes and to meet those they have known and been associated with in the past.

There will be many other features outlined for the festival that will make it a real event and a fitting observance of the close of the bounteous summer season and the great crops that are always garnered in this garden spot of the state.

The completion of the American Legion community building will give a fine place for the holding of many of the features of the fall festival and which will be available for the use of the committee by the time that the festival will be held.

As soon as possible the committee will get busy and start the plans that will be pushed to a rapid conclusion and permit the arrangements to be perfected for this pleasant fall attraction and in which our neighboring communities will be able to participate.

The boy on the bicycle came in sight directly in front of the truck and before either the rider or the driver of the truck were aware of the danger, the truck crashed into the bike, smashing it beneath the wheels of the heavily loaded truck and the boy was thrown up onto one of the front fenders of the truck where he clung tightly and which saved him from injury or death as the truck loaded as it was and on the hillside ran some distance before it was forced into the curb by the driver and stopped.

Religious Workers Have Dispute Over Services

Parties Holding Street Services Here Have Run in With Salvation Army Forces.

From Saturday's Daily— Several days ago there arrived here several parties who conducted religious services on the street and who had a rather manner similar to that of the Salvation Army, one of the greatest and best known religious bodies in the country. The services were held and donations solicited to help out the good cause and now the aftermath arrived.

This morning several representatives of the Salvation Army of Omaha, the home community, arrived here to investigate the meeting and whether or not the parties were representing themselves as members of the great Salvation Army or merely wandering religious workers who were seeking to get through on what donations and funds they might raise by soliciting.

After an investigation made by the Omaha officers of the Salvation Army it was decided that the parties who had been here were properly carrying on their work of spreading the gospel and that they had in no way caused any misrepresentation, but were sincere and devout laborers in the cause of the army.

HAS A CLOSE CALL

From Thursday's Daily— Yesterday afternoon the coolheadedness of Herbert Minor, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Minor, was all that averted his serious injury or perhaps death, and which saved the spectators of the accident in which he figured, a very hectic few moments until the boy was safe.

Herbert had been playing with Tommie Patterson at his home and had started to ride around for a few moments on the bicycle of the Patterson boy and as he rode the bicycle into Fourth street a large truck of the Rozinky Bros. junk dealers of Omaha, came down from the north the truck being heavily loaded with iron and other junk. From Saturday's Daily— Plattsmouth's handsome theatre and chief place of amusement in the city will be closed for a ten day period after Sunday, August 7th, and during which time there will be extensive changes made that will make it one of the very best theatres in the state in every respect.

The theatre is a handsome structure and the management, Messrs. Cloidt & Moore, have long contemplated changes that will modernize the structure more and also add to the theatre by having it cleaned and redeccorated for the coming fall and winter season.

The plans for the redeccorating and cleaning of the theatre will amount to several hundred dollars but the chief addition made to the theatre will be the pipe organ that will be installed in the building by the owners.

The organ will be one of the new type Wurlitzer organs, the cost of which will be $10,000 and which will be one of the very best of its type in the state and similar to one that is used in one of the leading Lincoln theatres and which was just recently installed.

RAINS "WATER PUPPIES"

From Friday's Daily— Following the rain last evening there was a very large number of "water puppies," apparently a variety of lizards, in the business part of the city. The lizards were crawling over the pavement and walks in the lower portion of Main street and one party gathered a small bucket full of the creatures. They are something like the regulation lizard and where they come from following a rain is a mystery. They are also a distant relative of the "water dogs" one of which has been on exhibition at the Clark barber shop for some time, the only difference being that the "water dogs" are partly web-footed and resemble more a fish than the puppies.

One party who returned last night from Omaha on the Burlington train and saw the "water puppies" crawling along on the sidewalk was heard to remark that he would quit buying his supplies in South Omaha if they had that effect.

The new organ will make it possible to have the most suitable of musical programs to offer in conjunction with the motion pictures and make a feature that will be most thoroughly appreciated by the amusement loving public of this city and the surrounding territory.
