Don't get touchy. You get up an unenviable reputation.

Why is it that California gets so much free advertising?

Nebraska is having a bumper crop this year and alfalfa in abundance.

When you have it down pat, remember something else is needed.

Something is going to emerge out of China, with the powers wondering what.

Gov. Ritchie of Maryland does not tire. He sends out expressions of interest.

Carol's conclusion must be that the parable of the prodigal son is just a parable.

France purchased more cutlery from the United States last year than any other country.

Political economy and economics get along very well together. Little differences don't count.

What's become of the Europeans who used to complain that Americans drank only ice water?

Civilization certainly is progressing since Chicago is turning from machine guns to boxing gloves.

The plan of Mr. Jardine, secretary of Agriculture, for the solving of the farm problem is characteristically Republican.

The federal constitution is the guide for all with some states thinking different, as some of their proceedings indicate.

A good lot of folks forget the president represents all of the people, and not just a part of them. That is what the constitution says.

The conservation commission of six members is expected to save the forests of Missouri as a labor of love, as members receive no salaries.

We suppose some time hence when these many foreign loans fall due and there will arise fresh outbreaks against American greed and heartlessness.

The old system of separate organizations engaged in relieving suffering humanity was attended by too much overhead expense and lack of comprehensive work.

The passing away of Gen. Wood, one of the ablest administrative generals the country ever has had, will bring up the Philippine problem with a new angle. He has been governor general of the islands since 1922.

A dispatch from Rapid City to the New York Sun states that President Coolidge does not intend to ask for any appropriation by congress for the relief of the flood victims, as he believes that private contributions through the Red Cross will be adequate.

This seems to be a year of come-backs.

Don't try to make a mystery of it when there is really none.

Eye-brow styles will soon develop into merely dotting the eye.

China articles by able minds seem now a series of ifs and surmises.

When one makes a plunge, make sure there is water enough below.

An item says the president is easy in his mind. This is Coolidge all over.

Delusions are very pleasant while they last. Some have them all the time.

It is an unusually cool day when the president is not appealed to for some aid.

Mosquitoes are a great deal more consistent about their biting than the fish are.

It is moved, seconded and unanimously carried that the Chaplins now vacate the first pare.

Japan is not saying a word, but if one thinks it is not keeping track of the Philippines, he is in error.

Mr. Mellon has done so well reducing the national debt perhaps he could give a few hints to the ladies.

There is a school in London where the children take up and study what they are minded to. What happy things these may be.

President Coolidge says he doesn't care to be a candidate for re-election to the presidency. He doesn't say he will not run next year.

The Pan-American congress does not turn down the Monroe Doctrine. This has its good points in times of need, and this is realized.

By fumigating methods, $620,000 worth of woolen cloth and felt at the United States Army depot, was saved from destruction by moths.

ENGAND AND FRANCE AND MONEY

It is not necessary to hold a brief for England nor against France, but it is just a bit boring to hear the French rave because we want them to pay their debt to us while England is keeping to the letter of her bond and forking up to our treasury, but the same contrast in money matters and morals is as evident in small things as in big:

Here are two examples:

When you pay a bill of over three pounds sterling in England the tax authorities require a two-penny stamp—about four cents—be put upon it to make it legal. When you pay a bill over a certain amount in France, the taxing authorities require that a stamp be put upon it. But note this difference: In England when you pay a hotel bill, if it is three pounds, you pay three pounds. The hotel pays for the receipt stamp. In France, when you pay your bill for the equivalent of three pounds, you pay that, plus a small amount which is noted on the bill as a "timbre" stamp. The Frenchman makes the customer pay for the stamp. If you ask him why the difference between his picaunish way of doing business and the English way, he shrugs his shoulders and exclaims:

"But, Monsieur, the stamp is yours. You are taking it away with you on your receipt. It is for Monsieur to pay, not me."

Example number two: England expects of an American the equivalent of ten dollars for a year's visa on his passport. France asks for the equivalent of two pounds sterling. Now your passport may be an old one, running only for one month. Then you get a new one. The British passport authorities cheerfully transfer the unexpired eleven months of your new passport. They say it is only business. As one Briton explains:

"We sold you a year's visa. We took your money. It is only right that we should give you value."

Not so the French passport authorities. They will not transfer the unexpired balance of your year's visa to your new passport. They merely shrug their shoulders, say they are very sorry and—"Two pounds please."

It is nothing less than a hold-up, but as one American clergyman, who toured France this spring, declares, "France is making Americans pay as much of the French debt as she possibly can."

CO-OPERATION NOT A CURE-ALL

The report of the Department of Agriculture on the Co-operative marketing of last year's cotton crop reveals a curious situation. One would assume offhand that the record-breaking yield of 1926, accompanied by a sharp break in prices, would have proved a great stimulus to the co-operative movement, as the growers would be anxious to take advantage of the more orderly marketing which co-operation affords.

The figures compiled by the department of agriculture do not bear out this assumption. The proportion of last year's crop handled by the reporting associations was 6.7 per cent, compared with 9.1 per cent for the crop of 1925 and 9.2 per cent for the crop of 1924. Actually more cotton is marketed by the co-operative association when prices are high than when they are low. The explanation offered is that the small producers in a time of low prices are so hard pressed that they cannot afford to wait the slow process of co-operative marketing, but must sell at once for ready cash.

Co-operation, then, does not appear to offer much hope of relief to the group which in an emergency like that of last year is likely to need it most. This does not detract from its palpable benefit, but it does indicate that co-operative marketing is not a cure-all for all agricultural depression.

When the baseball season opened the Chicago Cubs were hailed most generally as a crowd of misfits. They might win a game now and then, the majority of sport scribes conceded, but nothing very good could come of this outfit.

Now the Cubs are out in the lead and fighting like the very blazes to keep it. They stand an excellent chance of taking the flag and meeting the New York Yankees in the world series. And the Cubs have no Ruths or Gehrigs either.

When a fair ball club catches the old fighting fire great things result. And that seems to be what the Cubs have caught, aided by Manager Joe McCarthy and led by one good pitcher, Charlie Root. It seems to be jolly pennant weather when misfits get together.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal of said court this 29th day of August A. D. 1927.

TAXES AND THE SURPLUS

The recent visit of Gen. Lord, director of the budget to the Summer White house has been followed by expressions of widely divergent views as to the feasibility of further reducing Federal taxes at the next session of congress. From the Black Hills have come intimations that the surplus of $214,000,000 indicated at the end of next year is too small to permit more than a very modest reduction in 1928. Senator Smoot has been sufficiently impressed with the late budget estimates to decide that the reduction should not exceed $150,000,000, instead of the $300,000,000 limit formerly contemplated by the Republican leaders.

Other members of congress, however, insist that a more substantial reduction is practicable. They maintain that the Treasury Department's estimates of surpluses in recent years have always been too conservative. Senator Harrison announces that he will continue to advocate a cut of $500,000,000, which he believes is justified by last year's huge surplus. Senator Tyson insists that tax reduction should take precedence over flood relief, and even Secretary Hoover can see no reason why the extra appropriations for the Boulder Dam and the Mississippi flood relief projects should prevent a sizable tax reduction.

As 1928 is an election year, it is not going to be an easy task to hold congress in check, either in the matter of appropriations or of tax reduction.

Reports of corporate earnings indicate that federal revenues this year will fall somewhat behind those of last. Even if the tax rates remain unchanged. Approximations, meanwhile, will be still larger if a farm relief bill is passed. The president is likely to face a hard struggle in order to keep the budget in equilibrium.

MAKING SPEED SAFE

One of the rather unexpected advantages gained from the installation of automatic traffic signal lights now in general use, has been a curbing of the speed mania on through highways. By timing the lights so that they operate progressively and permit traffic to move continuously at fixed speeds, they are serving the double purpose of making the slow-pokes step on the gas a bit, and forcing the sixty-mile-an-hour drivers to slow down if they wish to avoid shifting gears at every light.

The next refinement in this procedure is to inform drivers at what speed the lights of a given system are set. If, at the entrance to every city and town having traffic lights, a sign were posted to inform drivers at what speed the signals changed, the menace of the speed demons would be materially diminished.

PLENTY OF YAPS

There are 19 nations that send no immigrants to the United States. They are: Ethiopia, Muscat, Nepal, Tanganyika, British and French Togoland, the French Cameroon, Nauru, New Guinea and Yap.

We have no feeling against most of these people, but we are glad about the Yaps. We have too many Yaps now. If what they are trying to do to us is any indication of what their homeland is, it must be a place of such backwardness and blindness, of so many antediluvian beliefs, and so many medieval notions, that no Yap would leave it.

We are therefore not surprised that no Yap does.

With women's clothes growing visibly less day by day, life is becoming one unending "comic strip."

ORDER OF HEARING and Notice on Petition for Settlement of Account

In the County Court of Cass County, Nebraska: State of Nebraska, Cass County vs. To all persons interested in the estate of Ida Grace Tritsch deceased:

On reading the petition of Elmer Tritsch, administrator praying a final settlement and allowance of his account filed in this court on the 29th day of August, 1927 and for final settlement of said estate, determination of heirship, assignment of property, and for his discharge.

It is hereby ordered that you and all persons interested in said matter may, and do, appear at the County Court to be held in and for said county on the 9th day of September, A. D. 1927 at ten o'clock a. m., to show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted, and that notice of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this order in the Plattsmouth Journal, a semi-weekly newspaper printed in said county, for one week prior to said day of hearing.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal of said court this 29th day of August A. D. 1927.
