Ralph Sexton has accepted a position with the Sanborn garage and will be found at the back shop anytime ready for the work which shall come to the institution.

The state fair record up to Thursday on last week was good for the authorities of Greenwood did not have to apprehend but one speedster, on his way to see the big show.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Meyers from west of Greenwood were visiting for the day on last Sunday at the home of the parents of Mrs. Meyers, E. O. McDonald and family of Murock.

While Nels and Wayne Emelund were at the Pelican Lake fishing last week, Wilbur Emelund, a brother was in Greenwood looking after the affairs at the bank in the place of Nels.

The people of Greenwood took occasion to visit the state fair on last Monday and were a force which made that the record day of the year as well as of all the history of the institution.

Herman Brunkow began on last Wednesday to his wheat which consists of some 25 acres and as he has good land and to hgrain is going in the best manner he should have a good crop of this grain next year.

Leonard Jardine, better known as Pete, and a hustler when it comes to playing ball, was looking after the garage, while E. M. Jardine and wife were visiting the state fair, they having driven over to the big city in their Whippet car.

Mesdames Emmitt Landon and Wayne Landon were attending the state fair on Monday of last week and say that the dust was just about as deep as one could get through and the crowds were simply awful. Still the exhibits were good.

Wm. Whitlach the raiser of honey, had some of his product at the state fair which was among the very best which were on exhibit there. Mr. Whitlach has had a very profitable season in this line, he having at this time taken off some two tons of excellent honey.

Orison Johnson and wife were visiting at Red Oak, Iowa, for a short time last week, they driving over to the bustling Iowa town in their car and were accompanied as far as Omaha by P. A. Sanborn who was looking after some business matters in that bustling village.

Mr. Wright the gardner, sure knows his business for the amount of produce which he induces mother earth to separate herself from is wonderful. We have noticed the excellent things which he raises, and of which we have enjoyed eating, and can say he knows his business.

As many had gone to the fair, and left the business rather quiet, George Bucknell and wife and their son also went to Lincoln, where after looking after some business they enjoyed mingling with the crowds which thronged the state fair grounds and touched elbows with the people there.

The operation was of much moment but since he is reported as getting along nicely. The folks were over to see him on last Sunday, and found him resting nicely at that time.

Mathews and Peterson have overhauled their wrecker, and put another chassis under the body, which has made an excellent machine for them. And by the way they have been having good use of it, for they had in their shop on last Wednesday four wrecked cars in their shop for repairs at one time. When people do not use care in driving they must abide the consequences.

Travelers Obey the Law. There has been installed two stop signals on the highway passing through Greenwood which calls for the stopping of cars going through town. There has been a tendency for many not to know that the city is here and make the forfeiture at a sixty mile clip. The danger to the pedestrians, and the liability of some one getting hurt, or killed has caused the city dads of Greenwood to call a halt on some of the fast driving which has endangered the welfare of the village. Better keep in line with this ruling and save the expense which a violation of the rule will cost you.

PAID FOR HER LESSON Mrs. Smith wanted a new flat iron. She wrote to a mail order house for a catalog. It was a week in coming. It took another week to decide and write the order. She had to pay in advance and went to the postoffice after a money order. It was too late, the widow was closed, so she had to go the next morning. A week later she had to go to the postoffice for the package. It did not suit her and another two weeks was wasted in correspondence, all to no purpose. Then she telephoned to the local company for an iron to be sent out. It was delivered in an hour, was satisfactory, charged to her bill and she learned a lesson for which she paid full price.

Honorable J. B. LaChapelle Passes Away

Dear Tuesday Sept. 6, After illness of Few Days of Heart Trouble—Interment at Glenwood, Iowa.

Citizens of Ashland vicinity were shocked Tuesday afternoon when the news was given out that Hon. J. B. LaChapelle was dead. His illness was of short duration as he had been confined to his bed only ten days, heart trouble being the cause of his illness and death.

Mr. LaChapelle was a useful citizen of this city, and for many years took an active interest in city, county and state politics. For nineteen years he was city clerk and also held the office of police magistrate and justice of the peace for a number of years. During the last session of the state legislature he had the honor of being representative from this district.

He was a member of the I. O. O. F., the A. O. U., and the K. of P. lodges, going through all the chairs of these organizations and the higher degrees offered by the state. For twenty years or more he held the office of secretary of the Knights of Pythias lodge and he was also secretary of the library board of this city. He was an active and ardent member of these lodges and for several years edited a column in the Gazette covering the activities of the secret organizations of this city.

Joseph B. LaChapelle was born at St. Albans, Vt., Dec. 30, 1860, and was educated at Bristol, R. I. Upon reaching his majority he left home and gave his attention to newspaper work. On coming west he was employed on the Omaha Bee and World-Herald for five years. He then went to Glenwood, Iowa, and purchased a newspaper and later had papers at Tabor, Randolph and Sidney, Ia. In December 1926, he came to Ashland where he published the Saunders County Journal for ten years. He lost his plant in 1927 by fire and did not engage in that business again, but gave his attention to the real estate and insurance business.

July 2nd, 1885, Mr. LaChapelle was united in marriage with Mrs. Rose Lyon, of Glenwood, Ia. This union was blessed with two sons, Robert Lyon, born Nov. 16, 1886, who is now superintendent of printing and binding at the Men's Reformatory at Anamosa, Ia., and Harold L., who was born Nov. 11, 1887, and is now equipment engineer for the American Telephone and Telegraph company and is located at St. Louis.

Mr. LaChapelle was not a member of any church, but since residing in Ashland has attended the Congregational church.

In carrying out the duties of the various city offices that he held, in meeting the hundreds of members of the secret organizations to which he belonged and in his larger acquaintance which he acquired as member of the state legislature, Mr. LaChapelle was a man widely and favorably known, and being a man of even temperament, with a good word for everyone, he made many warm friends, who are deeply grieved at his passing.—Ashland Gazette.

CHILD TAKEN FROM SCHOOL From Saturday's Daily—The kidnaped child, Mary Louise Spies, who disappeared in Kansas City a few days ago, was lured from the St. Vincent's Catholic school at that place where she had been a student since being taken by her aunt, Mrs. Marie Cline of the Missouri city several weeks ago.

A woman who is thought possibly to have been the divorced wife of Elmer Spies, and mother of the child, had accompanied Mary Louise to school on Wednesday and obtained permission of the school authorities to take the child downtown and since which time the child or the woman have not been seen.

Mr. Spies has been in the habit of meeting his little daughter at noon at the school and accompanying her on home and on Wednesday when he called for her he asked one of the teachers as to Mary Louise and the teacher confusing her with another child of the same name informed him that she had gone on home and it was not until sometime later that the fact that the child had disappeared was learned.

The description of the woman seen with the child does not closely follow that of the mother, Spies told Kansas City authorities, but he admitted that the child had often received presents from the mother.

Corn Crop of Cass County Seems Assured

Reports From All Sections of the County Are That Yield Will Be Large and Out of Danger.

From Saturday's Daily—The general condition of the corn crop over Cass county seems the best that could be desired and with a larger part of the crop out of danger of serious injury from frost should it come at this time and with the prospect of at least a week more of the summer weather prevailing, the whole crop with a few isolated exceptions seems to give promise of being one of the greatest in the last few years.

The lateness of the planting of the corn in the spring caused a great deal of nervousness to the farming interests but the conditions have been such in the late summer and the first weeks of September that seems to assure the crop.

Those who have been out over the county report the corn ears as large and in fine shape and each day hardening and getting in shape for market and those who have investigated the crops feel that the larger part of the crop now is safe from frost danger.

State Fair is Record Breaker with 355,196

Surpasses Goal Set by Fair Management by 21,963—Next Year Thought Even Greater.

When Nebraska's greatest state fair came to a close Friday night it was found that the fair board's attendance goal for the week of 333,333 had been surpassed by 21,963. The total was 355,196.

Friday, the attendance was 42,973. This number does not include the many hundreds who entered the grounds after 7 p. m., when no admission was charged. It had been estimated that the mark might go to 60,000, but gate keepers doubted if it would go over that.

Friday was the only day that did not set a record over the corresponding day in 1926. Last year the last day attendance was slightly over 50,000. Every other day of this year's exposition has set a new mark over last year. Monday, of course, was the greatest of them all when more than 101,000 sought admission to the fair grounds for entertainment.

The 1926 fair attendance figure was 47,364 less than the 1927 exhibit. In 1926 the attendance was 270,684, the third largest state fair crowd on record.

The 1927 show drew record crowds on three days. Sunday, Monday and Thursday were better attended than any other day during any other fair. The record Tuesday and Wednesday crowds were in 1919 while the record closing day attendance was in 1926.

Monday of 1927, with 101,348 record breaking day over the entire period during which the fair has been held. The second largest day in fair history was on Monday, 1926, when a figure of 75,250 was attained. Wednesday, 1919, drew 71,744 the third largest crowds in a single day on the records.

Fair officials were jubilant Friday night over the showing made this year and the first thing in the mind of President Wake of the fair board was the possibility of securing more room for the fair next year.

"We certainly need more buildings," he declared. "It was all we could do to handle the crowds this year. The fair is growing too fast to be cared for in the limited space we have at present. No definite plan for increasing facilities have been made as yet."

Nebraska Never Backs Up He uttered something that is in a way toward becoming a classic. "Nebraska never backs up."

That was his reply to a question as to whether the fair next year would be planned on as large a scale as was the 1927 show.

He said that Secretary Jackson would have a financial report ready soon, probably early next week.

A feature inaugurated this year was the evening show in the grandstand and coliseum. Thavius band and singers, the high spot on evening programs all thru the week performed again Friday night to a good sized crowd.

STUDY CLUB MEETING From Saturday's Daily—The Goldenrod Study club of Myrand met on Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Ida Cole, for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year, and planning their course of studies.

This club has derived much benefit, as well as pleasure, in the past few years, in the various study work that they have taken, and will continue in the same manner, with a new series issued by the Home Economics department of the college of agriculture at Lincoln.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are: Mrs. Sherman Cole, president; Grace Livingston, vice-president; Mrs. Royal Smith, secretary-treasurer.

The program committee: Mrs. S. Cole, Mrs. C. C. Barnard and Mrs. C. L. Wiles have charge of the year books, and in the music committee Mrs. Elbert Wiles, chairman, with Mrs. Roy O. Cole and Mrs. Howard Wiles will conduct the musical programs.

With the completion of the new community basement the ladies are anticipating a very beneficial year, for the club and surrounding community as well.

At the close of the business session, they adjourned to indulge in the delicious refreshments served by the hostess, with Mrs. Evert Spangler and Mrs. L. Huffer assisting.

PLAN SAVING DAMAGED CORN Lincoln—Three possible solutions have been offered the farmer who corn has been hauled out. In a recent statement on the subject the agricultural department of the university here said disposition of hauled corn crop depends almost entirely on the extent to which the crop is damaged. After a beating sort of hail that does more than 50 per cent damage to a corn field it is recommended that the best move is to turn stock onto the crop to get what food value there is left. In the event the crop is not more than half ruined by the storm the best solution is to mediate harvest of the remains of the crop and its disposition in a silo. This statement said little food value is left in this manner and it was pointed to as by far the most practical solution.

Corn Crop is Increasing in the West

Acreage Decreasing in East and What Pays Best in Southwestern States.

Washington—Farm history shows that wherever there is corn there are hogs, which explains, market specialists say, why swine production has doubled since 1914 in the northwest corn belt—Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Government charts tracing the phenomenal increase also show that hog receipts have fallen off in the eastern corn belt—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan—and in the southwestern corn belt—Kansas and Missouri.

Substantiating the rule that hogs follow corn, other charts show that the northwest has led in acreage since 1912, and in production since 1918.

Market experts say the tendency toward corn expansion in the northwest and the tendency of hog production to follow it closely is in harmony with the general western progress of corn culture that made Cincinnati, and then Chicago, the pork-packing center of the nation. While Chicago still retains its supremacy and is expected to keep first place for many years, it has not been able recently to obtain the business that it once had.

For the present, corn acreage in the eastern belt is believed to have reached a maximum, due to invasion by the European horer. The southwest is not expected to expand its corn acreage because other crops, notably wheat in Kansas, offer greater profits. In the northwest, however, expansion is said to be both possible and probable. As a rule corn and livestock in this area are more profitable than small grain, which is the only possible substitute.

Consequently swine production is expected to increase in the northwest, because, federal data shows, corn has a small commercial value there than in the east and is worth more when fed to hogs.

By a study of hog receipts at the leading markets of each region—Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, East St. Louis and Indianapolis in the eastern belt; Kansas City, St. Joseph and Wichita in the southwest; and Omaha, Sioux City and St. Paul in the northwest—it is seen that pork follows the general trend of corn acreage. Two or three good corn crops in succession usually are followed by increased hog receipts, especially if corn is cheap as compared to hogs.
