William Taylor, Old Time Resident Called by Death

Died at Home in Omaha After an Illness of Some Duration— Buried at Union.

William L. Taylor, son of Henry P. Taylor and wife, Barbara, was born on the 22nd day of September, 1871, and died at his late home in Omaha on October 2nd, 1927, and was fifty-six years and ten days old.

Mr. Taylor was born in Liberty precinct and resided at Union for the most of his life, but a number of years ago he went to Manning, Iowa to reside and after having lived there for a time moved to Omaha, where he followed his chosen line of work that of a butcher. During the past year or more his health has been failing, and he in order to secure relief went to a hospital, where under an operation it was ascertained that he had a cancer of the stomach. The operation was stopped when the truth was known and the patient not long thereafter passed away.

Mr. Taylor was united in marriage some thirty-five years ago to Miss Lovina Clarence, and from this union there were born four sons, they being: Almond Taylor of Sidney, Neb.; Garrett, Wilson and William Taylor, all of Omaha. There were of his brothers and sisters, Mrs. Emma Becker, Eva Pell, Louise Mickel, who died some years since, Luella, who makes her home in Colorado, Mrs. Minnie Banning, Mrs. Elsie Porter, all of Union. Mrs. Hattie Keeley of Ashland, C. H. Taylor, a brother who makes his home at Los Angeles.

The funeral was held from the Baptist church of which the deceased was a devoted member, the services being conducted by the Rev. W. A. of Union, and the pastor of the Mount Calvary Baptist church of Omaha of which Mr. Taylor was a member. Two songs were sung by a quartette composed of Mr. Whitworth, J. D. Cross, D. Ray Frans and W. A. Taylor, while Mrs. Clifton E. Smith presided at the piano. The community which Mr. Taylor lived in his life, and the family will miss his ministrations and everyone who has known this gentleman will realize that he has lost a friend.

The Journal with the many friends, extend sympathy to the bereaved family in their hour of profound grief.

Create Board of Trustees for New Building

American Legion Decide on Body of Three to Have Rental and Care of the Building.

From Wednesday's Daily— Last evening the regular meeting of the Hugh J. Kearns post of the American Legion was held at the new community auditorium which has just been opened to the public.

The post has the problem of getting the building on a practical working basis and with the rentals and activities of the Legion to retire in as short a time as possible what indebtedness may have been created in the completion of the structure and with this in view of having a definite plan of management for the building it was decided to have a board of three members to serve as trustees who will have the rental of the building and the general conduct of the affairs pertaining to the care and upkeep of the building.

The trustees named and approved by the post were Leslie W. Niel, Elmer A. Webb and Maldon D. Brown, they all having been actively engaged in the campaign that resulted in the successful completion of the building.

It is one of the big goals of the Legion to have this first unit of the building completely cleared of all indebtedness as soon as possible and with this end in view the post will use the most careful methods in the handling of the finances of the post with this end in view, also it may check many of the other lines of activities that the post wishes to take up but which must rest until the large aim is realized.

The Legion dancing committee have booked some of the best orchestras in the state for the next few weeks and which will be featured at the dances at the new auditorium and which are being awaited with the greatest of anticipation by the dancing public of this part of the state.

C. E. Wescott's Sons Have Unique Window Display

Public Is Invited to Take Part in Contest That Is to Be Conducted at the Store

From Wednesday's Daily— The largest and smallest shirts ever made are on display in the windows of the C. E. Wescott's Sons store. Perhaps a man of this stature existed in pre-historic days, and if so, you can very well visualize what a giant he must have been.

The public is invited to take part in this contest of guessing the correct sizes of both shirts. The C. E. Wescott's son will award a "Racine" shirt as prize to the first person giving the correct sizes.

"Racine" shirts are built along scientific lines to give more comfort to the wearer, and less work to the women by eliminating mending jobs." Mr. C. E. Wescott declares. "Most shirts are designed to fit the cloth, disregarding the wearer's comfort, but each size of 'Racine' shirts is cut over its own individual pattern, guaranteeing a proper fit for the average man. Sleeves are cut extra wide and will not break out. Collars have four thicknesses at wearing edge. Bodies are cut full ten inches larger than actual chest measurements. There is no binding or strain anywhere to interfere with action."

Mr. Wescott further states that he has distributed "Racine" shirts for years, and every sale is backed up with the maker's as well as his own guarantee.

DOES SOME DONATING

From Wednesday's Daily— Ray McMaken, who operates the truck line from this city, is among those aiding in the Legion chair campaign by hauling the chairs from Omaha to this city free of charge, the chairs having been purchased thru the firm of Christ & Christ.

Episcopal Church to Enlarge Program with Indians

Will Have a Great Part in Helping Eliminate the War Paint From the Red Man.

Stripping the feathers from the Red Indian and eliminating war paint, with the possible exception of that which is used by the younger generation of Indianapper, are among the projects which are included in the general program of the Episcopal church for 1928, the canvass for which is now being conducted in the church throughout the United States. There is also the matter of the Indian dances which is the subject of widespread controversy. The church leaders are not arrayed against the Indian dances of the customs of the red man as archaeological curiosities. They are at one with all friends of the Indian in agreeing that the ancient rites of the Indians be preserved as a part of the folk lore of the tribes.

The point lies in the difference between the red man of half a century ago and the Indian of today. Rev. Hugh L. Burleson, D. D., bishop of South Dakota declared at Pine Ridge agency early in August, referring to the Indian shows with which President Coolidge was being regaled, that the red man is not being given a chance to see the Indian of today, who has abandoned warwhoops, paint and feathers and is trying to make a self-respecting and self-supporting citizen of himself. A few days later the president stopped off at the convocation of the Episcopal church in Omaha at Pine Ridge, and he was welcomed by 1,500 of the Indians of today, two score of whom were priests of the church and wore its vestments.

Incidentally, on this occasion, the Indians presented the president with a petition urging his assistance in their ambition to forsake the ways of the past and become good Indians. These Indians in their petition point out that too much stress is laid today upon their ancient rites; that the only hope for the Indian of the future lies in encouraging him in his habits of industry and usefulness; which the stress on Indian shows retards.

It is to carry out the work of Americanizing the Indians in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Arizona, New Mexico and elsewhere that provision is made in the Episcopal program for 1928, for a liberal appropriation for the work among the Indians which is being conducted by the church on the reservations. This program which involves an expenditure of $1,212,370, provides not only for the work among the Indians, Negroes, foreign born, mountaineers and remote rural communities in the United States, but for evangelistic, educational and social service work throughout the world, including China. Announcement has just been made by the church authorities that the work in China will be pursued with renewed vigor despite the upsurge resulting from revolutionary outbreaks.

The funds for carrying out this program will be collected wholly within the church, and in every Episcopal parish and mission station throughout the United States a vigorous educational campaign is being conducted to inform the membership of the details of the program, prior to the every member canvass in November when every listed member will be visited by groups of canvassers and asked to pledge according to his or her means for the carrying out of the 1928 budget.

Millers Told of Smut Evil

Professor D. L. Gross Tells Millers That Weather Favorable to Wheat Disease.

"It looks very much like stinking smut would be bad in Nebraska wheat next year because the past three weeks have been so favorable to the growth of the spore on the young wheat plants," D. L. Gross, of the agricultural college, told fifty or more Nebraska millers in session at the college Tuesday morning. "Wheat smut spores develop most rapidly when the temperature is between 48 and 68 degrees and there is plenty of moisture," he said. This condition prevails over the state this fall.

Millers have been helping in the control of smut by installing and offering for use of farmers good treating machines. Smut can be controlled by coating the seed wheat with copper carbonate. The treatment costs less than a nickel per bushel and takes 30 second of time per bushel. It was hard to make farmers realize the importance of treating this year, however, because there was little smut present, Mr. Gross pointed out. The fall of 1926 was warm and wet and the wheat grew rapidly while the smut never had a chance. This year conditions are reversed and unless something unusual happens smut is going to be present in most untreated fields next year.

Smut cost farmers in loss in yield and cut in price per bushel about two million dollars in 1926 when it was bad. It probably costs millers more because smutty wheat must be washed, and after it is washed it is harder to make into good flour.

Some Varieties Resistant. "Varieties of wheat that are resistant to smut, to rust, and to winter hardness have been found and are being used now in the Nebraska experiment station in cross with common varieties of wheat to produce resistant kinds of wheat," Dr. A. Kieselbach of the experiment station said in his talk before noon. The resistant kinds of wheat are low yielders and not practical for Nebraska farms. Attempts are being made to transfer a part of their resistance to common varieties and at the same time lose the low yielding characteristics. When this has been accomplished, the benefits of the work will be given to the farmers of the state who in turn will pass it on to the millers with better wheat.

Five years of study. Five years of study is shown that early plowing followed by disking to pack the ground and keep down the weeds is the best way to prepare seed beds for wheat, he said. He showed a number of slides to bring out the procedure in developing new wheat from single heads of smut from that seed, etc. All enough is available to plant small fields on farms of the state.

F. J. Zowenechek of Wilber, president of the association, and June Campbell, secretary, of Omaha led the discussion after each talk. Questions from the millers brought out in more detail what interested them most.
