LEWISTON ENTERTAINMENT

The entertainment that was sponsored by the Ladies Aid of Lewiston was a very pleasing success last Thursday evening at the church. A very enjoyable program was given which was greatly enjoyed by the large audience present. At the close of the program very delicious refreshments were served. On departing, many expressed their wish that the ladies would have another such program in the near future. The ladies realized the neat sum of $22.25 which will be used for the benefit and repairs of the church. The ladies wish to cordially thank all who took part in the program and especially Mr. Frank Mrasek for the use of the piano.

VISIT AT AUBURN

A number of the members and their families of the Lewiston Aid motored to Auburn, Nebr., November 6th, where a very enjoyable day was spent with their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kidwell. At the noon hour a bountiful feast was served cafeteria style, the members all coming with well filled baskets along with the delightful dinner Mrs. Kidwell had prepared, which was greatly enjoyed by all. Those present at this delightful occasion were: Messrs. and Mesdames Chas. Read, Arthur Hansen, Fred Campbell, Glen Todd, Perry Nickels, George Park, Mrs. W. F. Moore, Mrs. J. Altman, Omaha, Mrs. Mary Wiley, Misses Margaret Moore, Helen and Rose Read, Gwendlyn Hansen, Mary Park, Messrs. Miles Altman, Omaha, Henry Rice, Malvern Read, Carl Park, Jimmy Hessenow, Dale Hansen and Robert Nickels.

Dr. Caldwell Has Part in the Fall of Manila

Well Known Plattsmouth and Omaha Dentist a Member of Fighting First Nebraska.

The Omaha World-Herald of Sunday had a very interesting sketch of the campaign against the city of Manila, in the Spanish-American war of 1898, which was prepared by the local representative of that paper, Raymond J. Larson, and in which Dr. A. D. Caldwell, well known dentist, formerly of this city and now of Omaha, was the central figure.

The following is the story of the part the First Nebraska played in the capture of the city of Manila:

"Dr. Alfred D. Caldwell, dentist, living at Plattsmouth, with offices at Omaha, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, the Philippine insurrection and the world war, possesses an interesting collection of photographs of the Spanish-American war, many of them taken under fire. Although now nearly 30 years old, after their trip back from the tropics, the pictures are remarkably well preserved, being without a scratch or wrinkle of any kind."

"The pictures were obtained by Sergeant Tate, a member of Caldwell's company and were presented by the sergeant to Caldwell. "Anticipating the chance of getting some good pictures before he left this country, Tate managed to carry a camera with him to the Philippines. Once there it was necessary to send to Japan for plates and then it was essential that no time be lost before the pictures were taken. The hot, sultry climate of the islands played havoc with emulsion on the plates and necessitated their immediate use. Following their discharge from the service, the members of the company have become separated. Tate is thought to be a resident of Greycliff, Wyoming, at present."

Camp in Peanut Field "Caldwell and Tate enlisted in Company D, First Nebraska, United States volunteers, and were mobilized in Lincoln in the spring of 1898. From there the regiment proceeded to San Francisco and camped in the mountains near the Presidio. The regiment embarked for the Philippines on June 15, 1898. They arrived at Cavite during the middle of July, and pitched camp in a peanut field near that city. Two miles away the Filipinos were entrenched in front of the city of Manila, awaiting a favorable opportunity and the necessary reinforcements that would cause the city to be captured. The Nebraska troops, new to the service, new to the country, used their pup-tents for the first time. Soon they were bearing their share of the fighting and were rotating with Pennsylvania troops in holding trenches in front of the city."

"The Nebraska troops were holding the extreme left part of the line, to their left was Manila bay, to their right was the circular line of trenches surrounding the city. Regular troops, a heavy coast artillery regiment fighting as infantry, were on the right. The American positions were shelled daily by the Spanish with their canon. The Americans had little artillery with which to reply. "Many incidents of the fighting were recalled, one especially that clearly demonstrated the strategy of the American officers held of the American soldiers. The Spanish officers, unacquainted with fighting qualities of the Americans and thoroughly confident of the ability of their own troops to follow out their orders, planned a surprise attack on the American positions. The Spanish were so confident of the success of their plans that they ordered that a dress parade should be held the following morning on the parade ground of the American troops. "Needless to say, they did not hold the parade. Although they were all prepared, even to the extent of wearing their full dress uniforms during the attack, they were repulsed and turned back after advancing within all five hundred yards of the American positions. Hang Up White Flag "Meanwhile preparations for the capture of Manila were being completed. On August 13, 1898, the regiment advanced in battalion formation with Company D in the first line of the battalion. Following them came Companies L and A. The regiment was under command of Lieutenant Colonel Colton. Swamps and deep creeks were encountered, rifles had to be held over heads to keep them dry, a small bugler had to carried across. However D company's elation at being in the lead was too good to be true. "When within a thousand yards of the walls, the members of Company L received orders to take the lead and D company was second. It is hard to imagine whether the men of D company were fighting mad at the regimental commander or at the enemy. The advance continued with the heavy Mauser bullets singing into the troops, ricocheting off electric light poles, and some finding their mark. "When the American troops were within two hundred yards of the walls, the Spaniards ceased firing and hung up the white flag. Caldwell said it looked as big as a table cloth. A conference was held at the gate between Spanish and American officers, the Spanish troops laid down their guns and were herded inside the walled city. "The Nebraska regiment went on guard in the custom house district, at the mouth of the Pasig river. The campaign against the Spaniards was virtually at an end. But other troubles were brewing for the American troops. American commanders refused to consent to a joint occupation of Manila with the Filipinos. The Filipinos were allowed to enter the city only when unarmed. Feeling sprang up among the natives. Kills Native Who Doesn't Halt "The American troops were deployed around the city at a distance of about eight miles. All outposts were ordered to stop and search all Filipinos who attempted to pass through the lines. They became harder to manage. Affairs reached a crisis on the night of February 4, 1899. About 8 o'clock a Filipino appeared in front of No. 1 outpost of the First Nebraska. Private Grayson was on guard. Acting under orders he challenged the native, who failed to halt, whereupon Grayson shot him. Within five minutes the American troops encamped about Manila were subject to a general attack. Several hundred Americans and several thousand Filipinos were killed in the fight that followed. From that time on the Nebraska troops engaged in from 20 to 30 engagements during the insurrection. Through swamps, across rivers, in rice fields and bamboo thickets they fought the natives until the situation was under control. Finally, on July 2, 1899, they left Manila for the United States. Reaching this country they were soon demobilized and discharged."

Girl Probably Fatally Injured Near Elmwood

Auto Crash on the Highway South of That City Between Yellow Way Coach and Sedan.

From Tuesday's Daily—Margaret, the twelve-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stoddard, of Lincoln, was probably fatally injured last evening and three occupants of the Yellow Way bus en route from Denver to Kansas City, suffered minor injuries when the sedan in which the Stoddard family was riding collided with the Yellow Way bus on a concrete culvert on the highway south of Elmwood. The Yellow Way bus was coming east from Lincoln while the Stoddard family were returning home both the sedan and the large coach driving on the concrete culvert at the same time, the sedan striking the larger car and turning over. The injured girl was hurried to the hospital in Lincoln where her injuries are being cared for and her condition is quite serious as she is suffering from a fracture of the skull. The three men injured in the bus were: John Page, Denver, right shoulder dislocated; John Scott, Keokuk, Iowa, scalp wound and facial lacerations; Charles Byers, Hastings, scalp wound and facial lacerations. The injured men were taken on into Nebraska City where they were given treatment at the hospital at that place. Messages received here from Elmwood this morning state that the accident occurred when Mr. Stoddard in attempting to turn his car out of the roadway swung too far to one side of the road, the side of the car striking the edge of the culvert and turning the car around directly in the path of the oncoming Yellow Way bus. There being little reason to suppose there was any fault of the parties that may have caused the accident the matter will not be investigated by the county.
