He who is in debt must endure insult lest he incur the displeasure of his creditors.

Some men would rather sleep an hour later than to wake up and find themselves famous.

Avoldupois is like compound interest. Your start with a small figure and keep doubling it.

In a small town it isn't necessary for daughter to tell mother everything. The neighbors will attend to it.

We are having a great deal of talk in constructive, because it is backed by action, but much of it is just talk.

Rag dealers of northern Europe plan to combine and get a corner on the rag market in order to boost the prices.

Red enameled skillets are on the market, but many a woman sees red when she looks at any kind of a frying pan.

"Pulchritude," said Mayor Jimmy Walker, to Ruth Elder, "is no bar to courage." Nor to anything else that we can think of.

Of course the month of the Thanksgiving dinner was sure to bring its report of a serious shortage in the cranberry crop.

Some people say that there's never any news in the newspaper but they are usually the one who hollers the loudest when the paper is late.

Mr. Lyle Womack, who came from Colon to tell Ruth Elder—his wife—to return to the Womack kitchen, must have been living in the Canal Zone for many years.

As a rule men do things because they need the money.

An old bachelor says that a prude is a coquette gone to seed.

What this country needs is less talk about evolution, and more of it.

A lecture on fish was feature of a tea recently given by the Emperor of Japan.

When his Satanic majesty bids you adieu, keep an eye on him until he turns the corner.

Cold weather was needed to discourage the fellows that were sitting on flag poles.

There ought to be an organization of People Who Have Been First to Ride in the new Ford Car.

The average woman's ideal here is a man who will eat a cold dinner on wash day without grumbling about it.

With no sign of matrimony on Wales' horizon, it looks as though the son may never settle in the British Empire.

Mustapha Kemal, the "strong, silent man" of Turkey, kept quiet just so long and then made a 400,000-word speech.

A stone-age saxophone has been found. Next thing you'll be hearing is that Adam and Eva got chased for playing one.

A big gardener warns us that daffodil bulbs are deadly poison, if eaten. If you are getting your onions from a bootlegger, be sure to take them to a reliable chemist and see that he isn't substituting daffodil-dillies on you.

Women are adepts in thrift, says a headline. That means that a woman can save enough on one purchase to buy something else.

Authors once coveted the distinction of having books published in Boston. Now they earnestly hope to get them suppressed there.

Spain uncovered another revolutionary plot. Well you can say one thing for old country—it's doing its best to catch up with daughter Mexico.

To some of the wets it is perfectly clear why our people break laws—it's because there are laws to break. Anarchists argue the same way.

Perhaps President Coolidge actually derived a thrill from having all the transoceanic flyers to lunch, but it's a good bet that theidea was Mrs. Coolidge's.

The American Legion pilgrimage to Paris cost $9,238,000. Barring the $6, which was spent for table water, it was a great bargain, most buddies agree.

Did you hear about the college man who was expelled for cribbing in a botany examination? He had a flower in his buttonhole when he went to class.

China is criticized for not knowing what she's fighting about. Of course Europe, in her recent unpleasantness, knew what she was fighting about.

A college education is essential if the boy wishes to become a doctor, lawyer or engineer, but in all cases he must have not only the wish but the will to study.

Just why they have been taking the braid off the dress uniform of the army and navy is not understood until one sees an ambassador in full dress. There's not enough to go around.

When Mr. Coolidge still was only a state leader he made the sentimental observation that he never got into trouble because of things he didn't say. He might add that he never has been embarrassed by his wife's telling things she didn't know—or did.

 THE GOVERNMENT USED MILLIONS OF POUNDS

RUBBER AND SUGAR

Some two years ago, official Washington resounded with indignant cries because the British Government had placed certain restrictions on the marketing of rubber. Mr. Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, was in high dudgeon. He denounced the British for deliberately causing American automobilists to be gypped.

Recently Cuba empowered her President to limit the amount of sugar shipped to this country. The certain result of this will be to raise the price in the American market and gyp the American housewife. But while the same administration reigns in Washington that reigned there two years ago, the town does not ring with cries of indignation. And though Mr. Hoover is still Secretary of Commerce, he shows no signs of dudgeon and utters no denunciations.

The Democrats are asking the administration to explain its inconsistent conduct. They want the Republicans to tell the country why it is wrong for the British rubber interests to hold up the American consumer but perfectly all right for the Cuban sugar interests to do so.

We think the Democrats, in asking this, are showing neither chivalry nor good taste. Chivalry would lead the Democrats to respect the terrible fix in which the Republicans find themselves. Compared to it, the fellow who was between the devil and the deep blue sea had a snap. If they don't get the Cuban restrictions removed, the electorate is sure to howl over the price of sugar. If they do get them removed, the price of sugar will fall and American sugar interests will howl. And a national election is coming, and the administration needs both the votes of the electorate and the contributions of are sugar interests. Aint it awful?

LISTEN TO THE SILENCE!

"The Silent Drama." Ah! A wonderful institution! We enter the stygian darkness, stumble over countless hoots extended in all directions, sit on some matronly lap and finally drop exhausted into an empty seat—empty with the exception of a hat a candy box, and a vanity case. The appearance of the villain on the screen diverts the embarrassing attention of our critical neighbors. A subtitle, "That Night," flashes on the silver sheet. Countless voices take it up in all parts of theatre. "What night ma?" exclaims a squirming offspring. The inevitable peanut fiend adds his humble contribution to the general unrest. Efforts at community singing have fallen flat in some theaters but community oral title reading! Ah, that's something else again! Appearance of the hero is enough justification for a rapid fire of admiring comment from the ladies, mixed with an undercurrent of hoarse grunts of derision from male escorts. Raucous voice in rear explains quite audibly the exact means of deception employed in films where hero plays double part. Closeup of American flag waving dauntlessly brings great applause from one hapless patriot. Finding himself applauding in solo, he subsides with half-smothered comment on lack of patriotism. At last the climax in the fadeout. The lights come on and the spectators file out solemnly amid the first real silence of the night, is indeed, a wonderful institution, the silent drama, but when the origin of the term?

THE GREAT CRIME

At a time when the country is laying itself out to punish bribery in high places and nobody has yet gone to jail for this crime, it may be interesting to learn from the National Conference for the Reduction of Crime, recently in session at Washington, what the country really takes seriously in the category of evil doing.

It seems that what has most aroused us as a people, if we may judge by the new laws devised to stop it, is not bribery in either high places or low, but chicken stealing. There is something that is something, a crime of such diabolical premeditation, and of such unquestioned injury to society, that it enjoys the righteous detestation of everybody. In Idaho, for instance, there is a new law prohibiting the purchase of poultry between sunset and sunrise without notifying the Sheriff. Seven states in all have within the last year increased the penalty for chicken stealing.

After all, the people who corrupted the Government have not stolen any chickens. We defy to say that the country is lost.

A NOTABLE NAVY DAY ADDRESS

At the Navy day celebration in San Francisco a notable address was given by William Van Antwerp who officiated as state chairman. He is a former graduate of the Annapolis Naval academy but did not follow that career and entered the business world, achieving success and prominence in the world of finance, and was a former member of the board of governors of the New York stock exchange. If the speaker did not follow up a naval career, at least he has followed up this history of our navy and is thoroughly conversant with its condition and progress. He is firmly convinced that the government is not alone responsible for our present inefficiency and lack of cruiser strength, but that it has a partner in the indifference and neglect of the American people themselves. There is no room for doubting the accuracy of this judgment.

There will be some interest in reading what this civic observer has to say upon this very important theme, and this is reprinted from the Chronicle of San Francisco of a late date. This follows:

"Due to the indifference of the American navy to fall so far behind in modern light cruisers that it will take us years to catch up to the two leading naval powers, even if we have the will to build up an efficient cruiser force and round out our one-sided navy to an efficient and balanced whole," said Van Antwerp.

"No unbalanced navy can be efficient, any more than a baseball team that lacked most of its fielders. We are merely hoodwinking ourselves, wasting vast treasure and sending the finest and most loyal body of men under the flag to certain and senseless death, if we are unwilling to build a balanced navy."

"We are in third place because we have not the will to be in any other position. The United States is like a wealthy man complaining about the expense of fire insurance premiums and risking millions of dollars to save a few thousand on a bad gamble, namely that there will be no fire."

"An analysis of the three leading naval powers shows our decidedly inferior position. The following figures speak for themselves:

"Great Britain—Number of modern cruisers less than 10 years old, 46; displacement, 266,000 tons; broadside, 23,900 pounds; speed, 29 knots and over.

"Japan—Number of modern cruisers, 25; displacement, 155,000 tons; broadside, 21,800 pounds; speed, 33 knots and over.

"United States—Number of modern cruisers, 12; displacement, 95,000 tons; broadside, 13,400 pounds; speed, 33 knots and over.

"Our inferiority still is further emphasized by the fact that both Great Britain and Japan have battle cruisers of from 27 to 31 knots speed, mounting 14-inch guns and larger, carrying fairly heavy armor and displacing from 26,000 to 42,000 tons each. The United States has none of this type of cruiser."

"IF WINTER COMES—"

Bleak days are ahead, with winter closing down across the land, but there are visions, too, and these help make life worth living. The other day a flower catalogue came in the mail, and brought with it a breath of spring right into the shadowy old office.

The bounds of winter are fairly upon us, but a cracked bowl or a colorful garden always are a vision of something better, something more beautiful, something finer than this wintry day.

Fog, clouds, and darkness, but there—a flower! There a rife in the clouds, with the sun peeking through, bringing a glint of sunshine and a promise.

Robin redbreast, barefoot boys in a daisy field and violets in the forest, are no strangers to those who can behold flowers these days and understand. All the beauties of spring are coming back to us.
