If the American army illated, there would be no need for navy: if Oregon became alien terr itory, California would suffer; and if electric customers are accidentally cut off from unfailing power, business is sure to slump.

So progressive companies pool their surplus for the good of all, even while fighting for their own individual growth or supremacy. They insure the user against loss, by providing him a number of power units to meet his every cocneivable need.

Nothing but such an agreement would give the nation service. It is the reverse of monopoly--it is democracy at its best.

BRIAND PACT DISCUSSED

Washington, Dec. 16 .- The Briand proposal for a treaty for the outlawing of war between the United States and France was the subject of a conference today between Paul Claudel, the French ambassador, and Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee.

The ambassador, who already has discussed the subject with Secretary Kellogg in a preliminary way, was a visitor at the senator's office for an hour. Mr. Borah said afterward that the whole situation has been fully gone over and that he got the impression that the French government was willing to be practicable at this time.
