Wm. Obernulle was working in Murray for the greater portion of this week, constructing a chimney and building porch columns at the new house which is being built by Uncle S. G. He expects to reach Guaymas, 900 miles from Fresno, tomorrow evening. He will be accompanied by Preshe Stephenson, vice president of the Beacon Airways, Inc., and William Benton of Evansville, Ill., who will act as co-pilot and mechanic.

TURN ON THE LOBBYISTS

Washington, April 16.—Lobbyists drew fire from the senate today as Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas proposed an inquiry of the financing and activities of various associations and special organizations about Washington. Senator King, democrat of Utah, joined in the attack. An equally vigorous assault upon those who would influence congress in behalf of special legislation and both senators charged certain organization leaders with sending out "lies."

Senator Caraway mentioned the National Reclamation association, whose head, George H. Maxwell, he said, had sent out a letter containing "lies" about flood control. Senator King mentioned a Mr. Noble of Chicago whom he charged with circulating "lies" about the position of senators on a bill for development of agriculture extension work.

Senator Bruce, democrat of Maryland, put in the only kind word during the brief debate, declaring there were some organizations about the capital supplying accurate information in good faith. Both Senator Caraway and King agreed, but they believed a line could be drawn between the good and the bad.

Metcalf in Mood to Debate with Howell

Challenge Given by Democratic Candidate for Series of Joint Meetings Over the State.

Omaha, April 16.—Representative Edgar Howard, of Nebraska, today delivered to Senator R. B. Howell at Washington the following letter: Omaha, Neb., April 14. Hon. R. B. Howell, Washington, D. C. Dear Sir:

Congratulating you upon your nomination to be United States Senator from Nebraska, I invite you to a joint canvass of the state, the same to begin soon after July 4th, according to your convenience. I am extending this invitation at this early day in order that both of us may have time in which to make our arrangements accordingly.

It seems to me that a joint canvass is desirable for the following reasons:

It will enable us to present the issues to voters generally. For the reason that we will speak to large numbers of men and women we will both avoid much of the waste and useless expenditures common to campaigns; and we will be able to campaign with the spirit as well as the letter of the law with respect to campaign expenditures. This is no small consideration for the reason that public sentiment throughout the country has rightfully revolted against the exorbitant campaign expenditures in Pennsylvania and Illinois.

It will make it possible for local republicans and democrats to arrange for one big meeting where otherwise it would be necessary to have two meetings, thus economizing on expense to the various communities.

It will tend to arouse the interest of men and women to their duty as citizens, thus encouraging a more general and intense participation in the politics of their country.

Assuming that we would meet in joint canvass six evenings each week for fifteen weeks, there would be a total of ninety speeches for each of us during the campaign. If this plan is acceptable to you, I suggest that the time each evening be divided in two, alternating on the opening and closing.

For the convenience of both of us, as well as for that of the various communities where the meetings will be held, I suggest an early answer to this invitation. If agreeable to you, we can arrange for two or more of our friends who are well acquainted with the state to meet at an early date and perfect arrangements, selecting the towns at which meetings are to be scheduled.

I believe that men and women of all political parties will welcome this proposed return to the old fashioned method of campaigning. With pleasant anticipation of a swing around the Nebraska circle in your delightful company and assuring you of my best wishes for you in everything other than your election in November, I remain, Yours truly,

RICHARD L. METCALFE.

BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday, April 22nd

By M. S. Briggs

Golden Text: "Honor thy father and thy mother, which is the first commandment with promise."—Eph. 6:2.

Jesus and the Home

Jesus Christ, the savior of the world, who came down from Heaven to suffer and work out the plan of redemption for mankind after they had forfeited all claims to recognition by the Father and creator of the universe, and were without hope of the hereafter. He who affords the one sustaining influence which attaches mankind to the Father always taught that the home was the central place of all earthly life and worthy of the high standards that should make it most essential to the happiness of mankind. It is not strange, then, that coupled together they make the very heart of all earthly hopes and of that life which is to continue beyond the grave.

Jesus in the home therefore is the one central theme which challenges man to his best efforts to make the home Christian. While Christ had no home after he became grown, he said, "The winds of the air have nests and the foxes have holes, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head," this meaning that which he owned in the sense that we maintain a home.

Born in a Manger

Christ, the Savior of the world, that is of mankind, for he purchased their life which had been forfeited, and has that of every one to give to them when they shall believe on the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit, was born in a manger in a stable attached to an eastern inn or tavern, and under circumstances that were most inconvenient, attaching him to the poorer of the race.

When the Master came to this earth on his mission of humanity as well as divinity, he had to endure the hardships which come only to the very poorest, and he was placed in that position which enabled him to know the worst conditions that come to the lot of man. This rude stable, among the animals which were cared for there, was his first home. True he had entrance to many homes in the person and among them was that of Lazarus and his two sisters, as well as that of John Mark's mother, the home of Peter and others of the disciples. Christ never entered a home but that home was blessed.

It was the practice of mothers to take their children to those whom they had reason to believe could do them any way and when by the spoken word wonderful cures were made by the Savior, they had sufficient right to believe that a blessing from the Master and the laying on of his hands would bring joy and gladness to the little ones. Therefore came the mothers with their little ones that the Lord might lay his hands on them and thus bless them. The disciples, who had not as yet grasped the full meaning of the coming and mission of the Christ sought to keep the little ones away from the Master, but Jesus, perceiving their intent, called to them saying, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Adding also that unless one shall humble himself and become as a little child, he shall in no wise enter therein thus signifying that in order to gain admittance, we all must depend on the saving power of the heavenly Father, the Holy Spirit and Jesus Christ, the very Son of God.

The Marriage Relation

Then came the parables unto him, seeking to entrap him by some cunning question, and as the matter of divorce was being discussed by many at that time, and there was division among the people, some holding that a man had a right to divorce his wife and send her away, while others held that for only one cause could a man divorce his wife, and that for unfaithfulness. They asked "It is right for a man to put away his wife?" trying to entrap him and make either one set of men against him or another. In answer the Master said, "What did Moses command you?" The questioners were non-plussed and fished for an answer. Finally they said, "Moses suffered to write a bill of divorce and to put her away." Then Christ answered them, "For your hardness of heart he wrote you this commandment. But from the beginning of the creation, male and female, made he them. For this cause shall a man leave his father and his mother and shall cleave to his wife; and the two shall be one flesh, so that they are no more two, but one flesh. What therefore God has joined together, let no man put asunder."

Foundation of the Home

Christ taught us that a man and his wife are a new single creation of God and joins them together. If they come together without God's will, following their chance desires, or following their unallowed impulses, seeking social status, wealth or dignity by that sacred step; if, in a word, they are married atheistically, not bringing God into the relationship, then there is not marriage at all—it is only sin, and cannot be hidden as sin by any institution that the law chooses to create.

But when they are married in the true way, joined together by God, then the tie which is formed is indissoluble; it is indeed for better or for worse that they take each other. (Rev. R. E. Horton, D. D.)

Make the home the best place on earth to live, for it is the central pivotal place for the human race. Take Jesus into the home, make him and the faith of the Father and the Holy Spirit the safeguard of the home and

New Science Hall for the Peru Normal

State Normal Board Votes to Erect a New $50,000 Structure at South-eastern Teachers' College.

With President T. J. Majors of Peru occupying the chair for the first time since his illness last summer, the state normal board in session at the capitol Monday voted to receive bids and award contracts at its next meeting for the new $50,000 science building at the Peru normal school, for which an appropriation was made by the last legislature. The date of the meeting had not been decided upon when the board took a recess at noon.

Plans for the structure were received from the architect Monday and met the approval of the board. It will replace the old normal school building, the original edifice on the campus, which was abandoned as unsafe about ten years ago. Materials in the old building will be salvaged for use in erecting the new one.

The science building will be joined onto the north side of the auditorium, projecting as a wing from that structure. Its ground dimensions will be 80 feet by 60 feet, and it will be three stories in height. The exterior will be of red brick.

Will Help on Sewerage Plant

The board passed a resolution in which it was agreed that Peru Normal would pay a portion of the cost of the construction of a sewage outlet, should the village of Peru install a sewage system.

The village was expected to decide Monday evening upon the proposition of installing a sewage system. It desired an expression of the normal board as to what its sentiment would be regarding the school's sewage disposal, before taking final action.

According to the resolution, the school will connect up with the village main outlet and for the present will pay a rent of $300 a year for the use of the main. If later the legislature appropriates money for the purpose the school will pay a part of the cost of laying this outlet main, providing that cost to the school does not exceed $5,000.

At present the village has no municipal sewage system and the school has only a very inadequate means of disposing of its sewage.

Annual Essay Contest

On the suggestion of Member Fred H. Berry, the board voted to authorize the purchase of three medals by each of four state normal schools to be awarded in essay contests for their students. These contests are fostered by the state bar association to stimulate interest in the American constitution and system of government. It is planned to present the medals at the time commencement exercises are held in June.

Member E. Ruth Pyrtle submitted a report of her attendance at the National Educational association meeting in Boston during the last week of February, where she represented the normal board.

Among faculty additions and the changes reported were the following:

Kearney—W. H. Ziegl, University of Missouri, professor of education, $250; Walter A. Klehm, University of Illinois, industrial training instructor, $200; Calvin T. Ryan, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, head of English department, $275. Chadron—Miss Nena Hunter, St.

Lawrence, S. D., assistant registrar, $150, to succeed Mrs. Amanda H. Osnes, resigned. The bookkeeping work will be assigned to Miss Genevieve Williams, another assistant in the same office.

Wayne—Miss Helen M. Pence, now a student at Columbia university, as dean of women, succeeding Miss Dora Carlson.

Peru—Resignation of Paul E. Kuhnink as assistant director of physical education; place not yet filled.

MRS. BRYAN TO FLORIDA

Los Angeles, April 17.—The fighting spirit of William Jennings Bryan, living again in his wheelchair-widow, inspired an offer from her today to throw her weight into her daughter's Florida fight for a seat in congress. Mrs. Bryan already had decided to return to her home in Florida in June. Today, however, the frail but indomitable lady said:

"My daughter needs me and Florida is my home. I have wired her that I am prepared to leave at once." The daughter, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, is a candidate for the house of representatives at Washington. Mrs. Bryan, often called an inspiration of the great commoner, has been staying here with her son, W. J. Bryan.
