

Band Concert Draws a Crowd for the Opener

Eagles Band and Legion Juvenile Band are Heard in Pleasing Concert Last Night.

From Thursday's Daily—
After the winter of rest and with occasional practices to keep up the music spirit, the Eagles band last evening was heard in the first public offering since last year, and which entertained a very large number of the music lovers of the community at the concert which was staged at the court house lawn and given under the direction of W. R. Holly, who had charge of the program last year.

The band has a large number of experienced artists in their personnel and who always assist in making the concerts most enjoyable and real musical treats, the local band having the reputation of being one of the best in the state.

Last evening the program included some of the always popular standard numbers, featuring Meacham's well-known "American Patrol," as well as the popular song hit selections, "A Night in June" and "Highways are Happy Ways," and the Spanish serenade "Visions of Madrid." On the concert program, Peter Gradoville was featured as the solo artist with a cello and a number, "The Octopus and the Mermaid," which was very much enjoyed by the audience.

Not the least pleasing of the features of the evening was the first public appearance of the American Legion Junior band, which has for the last few weeks been under the direction of Mr. Holly and L. D. Hlatt and these young musicians made themselves recognized as coming band men in the excellent way in which they handled the various numbers on their part of the program, which included the old favorites, "Maryland, My Maryland," "Old Folks at Home" and "America," while the saxophone quintet composed of Donald Cotner, Robert Hall, Edward Eckenberger, James Begley and Herbert Minor, with the number, "My Old Kentucky Home."

This young band is full of promise of some splendid musical work in the future years and the manner in which they responded to their part of the program was a real delight to the audience and the youngsters received a real hand for their work in making the program of the evening a real success.

VISITS OLD TEACHER

The experience of having a school pupil of more than 50 years ago come back to visit his former teacher after a 40-year separation, was that of John Tighe, Cass county pioneer, 116 North Fortieth street, Omaha. Mr. Tighe taught the pupil, Henry Boedeker in what is now known as the College Hill schoolhouse near Louisville, Cass county, in the middle seventies. Mr. Boedeker has lived at Landers, Wyo., for the past 32 years, and returned to Nebraska last week for the funeral of his brother, Adolph, who also went to school to Mr. Tighe.

"He was one of the 60 pupils I had, some of them 20 and 21 years old, and larger than I was," says Mr. Tighe. The teacher before me almost got thrown out of the school two or three times, and let the pupils run over him."

After teaching the school for a few years, Mr. Tighe entered the grain business. He conducted an elevator at Manley, Cass county, for years, until an injury forced him to retire.

Mr. and Mrs. Tighe celebrated their golden wedding anniversary several years ago. A daughter, Miss Lily C. Tighe, won a competition held by The World-Herald for a trip to Europe several years ago, and made the trip with her sister.—World-Herald.

SUFFERS SEVERE INJURY

From Thursday's Daily—
The many Plattsmouth friends of Miss Kate Sidenstriker, of Omaha, will regret to learn that this estimable lady is at the St. Joseph hospital, where she is recovering from the effects of a fracture of the right arm as well as several fractured ribs, sustained as the result of an auto accident.

Miss Sidenstriker, who resides in the south portion of Omaha, was en route to her home from a church meeting and in crossing one of the streets, she was struck by a passing auto, the fender of the car striking her and knocking her to the pavement, causing the fracture of the arm and the ribs. The affair was purely an accident and the driver of the car assisted in getting the injured lady home and at first it was not thought that her injuries were as severe as later developed, but later it was necessary to have the patient taken to the hospital, where the members were set and the patient made as comfortable as possible, although suffering more or less from the effects of the injury.

MARRIAGE BUSINESS BETTER

From Thursday's Daily—
County Judge A. H. Duxbury, whose office gives him, in addition to the usual routine of estate matters and trying law violators, the right and power to perform marriage ceremonies, has had two of the pleasant events in the last few days. One wedding was that of Glen Kuhn of South Bend and Miss Esther Ward of Ashland, the young people being accompanied here by Florence L. Kuhn, sister and brother of the groom and who witnessed the happy ceremony.

Yesterday afternoon Louis V. Biggs and Miss Elizabeth Kuhl of Falls City came here to seek their life's happiness and on their request the judge joined them in the bonds of holy wedlock.

Legion Secures Isler Shows for June 11 to 16

Twenty Car Carnival Here in 1925 Coming Back This Year—One of Best on the Road.

The "Greater Isler Shows," traveling in their own special train of twenty odd cars, will be in Plattsmouth the week of June 11th to 16th, inclusive. Contract for their appearance here was entered into by the American Legion post last Saturday, when the advance representative of the concern was here to close the deal that has been pending for several months. In fact, the Legion has been endeavoring for two years to secure a return engagement of the Isler shows, which exhibited here in 1925, and lived up to their reputation of being one of the cleanest carnival concerns on the road, but their 1926 and 1927 routings did not bring them near enough to Plattsmouth so they could afford to make the long jump.

In 1926, the Noble Fair company, a smaller, but equally clean carnival, exhibited here during the week of July 4th, under Legion auspices. Last year, after early-season efforts to secure a good company had proven futile, a contract was made with the Dominion shows for appearance the fore part of September, but later canceled by the Legion when it was learned the shows were not up to the type desired here. Thus the revenue that might have been made was not only lost, but an advertising and job printing bill left for the Legion to pay.

Louise Isler, who is known among the Billboard followers as the "Sunday School Carnival Man" is with the shows personally from the time they start out in the spring until the close of the season, supervising the conduct of the various attractions, which accounts for their ability to go back year after year in the towns where they have once played.

He travels via special train and three years ago when here took advantage of the lay-over in a railroad shop town by having several of his cars overhauled in the Burlington shops.

Besides the five riding devices, upwards of ten clean shows are carried and a limited number of concessions. Legion members will make several advertising trips to the nearby towns and villages during the two weeks before the arrival of the shows and provide ticket takers at all the attractions as well as extra police and parking officers adjacent to the grounds during the six-day engagement here.

RAIN DOES DAMAGE

From Thursday's Daily—
The southwestern part of the state was visited by a very heavy rain storm yesterday afternoon and last night and which has done a great deal of damage in that locality and caused considerable loss and delay in traffic to the railroad companies.

The Burlington had a very bad washout on the McCook division that necessitated a detour of the main line trains and No. 6 eastbound from Denver, which was due here at 7:15 this morning, will not be here until around 8 o'clock tonight, while No. 2, the afternoon train due at 4:30 is expected to reach here between 7 and 8 o'clock, as it is expected to get the damaged track repaired in time to allow No. 2 to come over the main line under slow orders.

MAKES GOOD SHOWING

From Thursday's Daily—
In the opening game of the new State league which was held yesterday, Harry Newman, former shortstop of the Plattsmouth team and who is now playing the short territory for the Buffaloes of North Platte, showed up well in the opening contest. The North Platte team played York and scored an 8 to 4 win over the York team. In the game Honos secured two put outs and four assists and without an error, playing one of those smashup games that he often staged with the locals when he was grabbing them all in his part of the diamond.

Cass County Poultry Raiser Has Success

Chicken Farm of W. F. Nolte Has Recognition Given by South Omaha Farm Journal.

Anyone at all interested in the poultry game, would get a real thrill from visiting the W. F. Nolte farm near Mynard in Cass county, Nebraska. Here at all seasons of the year, interest centers in a big flock of Buff Orpingtons. Early this spring it was the privilege of the writer to spend some time on the Nolte farm. We watched them bringing in the pullets of eggs, something like 500 every day. In the incubator room we saw a 12,000-egg machine and watched Mr. Nolte take out hundreds of fluffy chicks. Out on the range we watched 3,500 White Leghorn chickens scrambling for their feed—a healthy, happy lot, reflecting the care and attention given them.

Nolte's Ideas on Poultry Situation

Since Mr. Nolte has been interested in poultry for a good many years, we were interested in getting from him his latest ideas on what might be considered the trend of the industry. He stated that this season it is pretty evident that the persons who might be called in-and-outers in the poultry industry were out this season. Our readers will recall that during the past few years, a lot of folks on the farms and in small towns and cities, who have never been particularly interested in poultry, began to dip rather heavily into the game. They thought perhaps that profits in poultry were rather easy, but soon discovered that the novice has a lot of grief coming to him. Naturally a lot of them dropped out and this will make it better for the people who do know poultry and who are in business permanently.

Mr. Nolte says that there is evidence that people purchasing baby chicks are more careful than ever with regard to the quality of the chicks. He thinks that it is coming to the time when there will be many sales made of chicks two to four weeks of age. He does not know just how the prices of chicks that should compare with those of baby chicks, but in his own business he finds that people more and more are asking if they can buy chicks which are several weeks old. They would like to secure them after the heavy mortality which usually is the lot of beginners in the first few weeks is past. Mr. Nolte referred to the fact that at the time of our visit, they were 5 cents a dozen for baby chicks, but in his own business he finds that prices for broilers will also be higher this season.

Equipment on Nolte Farm

One is impressed in visiting the Nolte poultry establishment, with the splendid equipment on hand. This equipment includes 4 laying houses, one 20x40 feet; one 16x60 felt in area; one 20x20, and one 24x32 feet in area. The latter is for the Buff Orpingtons, there being about 225 in the flock. There is also an incubator house, 14x60 feet and seven or eight brooder houses. These brooder houses are 10x12 feet, four foot six inches high in the rear and seven feet high in front. The chicks in these brooder houses have an opportunity to run on rye and alfalfa. They are given commercial feeds and at all times, plenty of water.

Speaking of the comparison between the Buff Orpingtons and the White Leghorns, Mr. Nolte stated that the Orpingtons do not stand the hot weather as well and their egg production is lower in the spring and summer than the White Leghorns, but they lay better in the winter months. The feed consumption of the Orpingtons is also greater.

The Laying Flock

We have stated at the time of our visit, about 500 eggs were being gathered daily. Mr. Nolte makes it a plan to keep no hens more than two years. Half of his flock consists of yearling hens and half pullets. The production of the pullets during the winter is considerably above that of the yearling hens, but at the time of our visit in March the production per bird was about the same. April is the best egg month. Mr. Nolte has heaters in his pullet houses in the shape of brooder stoves, so that if the winter weather gets very severe he can supply heat.

Nearly all the White Leghorns on the farm at the present time are of the Tanager strain, going back to the well known Tanager establishment, located at Kent, Wash. Last year Mr. Nolte secured 150 eggs from the Tanager farms. Previously he has purchased breeding stock. The Tanager flocks have a record for high production. In trap-nesting his flock one year, Mr. Nolte found that 50 per cent of his hens on test, laid over 200 eggs. One hen made a record of 284 eggs. This test demonstrated that "blood will tell" for most of these hens came from 300-egg strains.

Fertility Good This Season

The fertility of eggs according to Mr. Nolte, has been very good this season, running around 87 per cent. It has also been a good season for baby chicks because of being dry and with lots of sunshine. The egg crop on this farm is for selling baby chicks. For the latter use, eggs are hatched from yearling hens only, the pullet eggs all being sold on the market. About 9,000 eggs have been hatched for customers, practically every breed being represented in this business.

One of the pieces of equipment on this farm which we thought filled a good purpose was the coal bin which has been built on wheels and which can be drawn about by a horse or by a team. This holds a little over a ton of coal. It is easily drawn about to the various brooder houses and to the incubator room and helps to lighten labor. A total of about eight tons of anthracite coal is used each season. In the summer this coal bin can be used as a feed bin, and drawn about to the various yards.

The Nolte poultry establishment is a place where up-to-date methods are being used and where the utmost care in sanitation and feeding methods is the rule. A start has also been made with the Holsteins and in a few years there will probably be a fine herd of the Black and Whites.

From Thursday's Daily—
Last evening at 6 o'clock, M. C. Brown, one of the highly esteemed residents of the city passed away at the family home on South 9th street, following a period of several months of ill health due to a very severe attack of heart trouble.

Mr. Brown has made his home in this city for the past six years and in this time has made a very large circle of friends by his splendid character and his quiet and unassuming part in the community life in which he has ranked as one of the best of citizens. Mr. Brown was employed by the Burlington until his health failed and for the past several months his condition had been very poor, due to the attacks of heart trouble that has made necessary for him to give up his usual activities and be under the care of a physician the greater part of the time.

An upright, honest and christian gentleman, Mr. Brown will be very much missed in this community where he has a host of warm friends, and in his taking away the family will have the deepest sympathy of the many friends throughout the community.

Mr. Brown is survived by the wife and one daughter, who resides at Chicago and arrived here this afternoon in response to the message of the father's death. Mr. Brown was able a short time ago to visit at Plattsmouth with the daughter, and since the return here has been quite poorly until the end came last evening.

Central P. T. A. Has Interesting Meeting at School

Part of the Child Health Week Campaign Found in the Addresses of the Evening.

From Saturday's Daily—
The closing meeting of the year of Central P. T. A. was held last night in the high school auditorium. The music of the evening as furnished by Mr. Frank Cloit who gave two pleasing vocal numbers and Mrs. Leosis an enjoyable piano selection. Mrs. Hayes, program chairman, presented a very fine health program. Dr. J. S. Livingston, the principal speaker of the evening gave a short history of vaccination for small pox, diphtheria, and typhoid fever. He told how vaccines are prepared, how absolutely safe they are, and emphasized the necessity of having children immunized at an early age for both small pox and diphtheria. He graciously answered all questions on the subject and a number of parents present reported that their children had been given toxin anti-toxin and so were protected against diphtheria.

Supt. Bailey, the next speaker, told us the plan of the board of education for the conduct of the school in regard to epidemics. For the more serious contagious diseases the home is quarantined by state law, but for measles, mumps, chicken pox and whooping cough, children who attend school from the home where anyone is ill must have daily medical inspection. He also explained the regulation requiring a doctor's certificate of absence of more than a day as not only protecting others from exposure to disease but also preventing needless absence where children are really able to be in school.

Miss McVey, head of the high school economics department gave the most interesting talk on the Merrill Palmer Nursery school at Detroit. She gave a complete program for one day, from the time the little tots come at 9 a. m., their food, play and rest. They have six requirements for care of children that any mother may follow: (1) Outdoor play every day. (2) Regular sleep at night and naps. (3) Short attention span. (4) From 1 pt. to one qt. milk daily, a cereal, fresh fruit, vegetable other than potatoes, with egg and meat a few times a week. (5) No pickles or highly spiced food. (6) Regular eating hours. Miss McVey also stressed good eating habits.

Mrs. Hayes then introduced Miss Specks, the state nurse who has charge of the Child Health Conference, who spoke very briefly of the history and benefits of this line of welfare work made possible by the Shepherd-Townner act.

At the conclusion of the evening dainty refreshments were served by the committee in charge of the evening program, Miss Helen Johnson, Mrs. Minnie Pickard and Mrs. T. E. Olson.

LADY "SLICKER" FOILED

Yesterday a number of the business houses of the city were visited by a party that seems to have been a lady "slicker" and short change artist all in one. It was the mode of operation to visit a store, look over articles in stock, make a small purchase and then came the "works," the flashing of a large denomination banknote that would require considerable amount of change which, when presented would be counted and it was discovered that there was a shortage in the amount of change that had been given the lady and the clerk would then give her the missing amount and thereby make the profit in the transaction for the lady who had so cleverly befuddled the clerk as to the change.

So far as learned the lady failed to get away with the stunt very effectively due to the fact that the local clerks are wise in their day and generation, many through bitter experiences, and they failed to come up with the short change racket of the fair lady.

RECEIVES GOOD NEWS

MORE COYOTES

From Thursday's Daily—
The latest of the lucky Cass county residents to bag coyotes and turn their scalps in at the office of the county clerk is Ben Hoffman, Jr., of near Elmwood, who yesterday brot in two of these scalps and for which he received the $4 bounty, which is paid to rid the state of these animals.
