Soren Scandalous of Weeping Water was a visitor with friends in Murray on last Sunday driving over in his auto for a visit of a few hours.

Harry Nelson and the family were visiting in Nehawka on last Sunday and were guests at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Carper and Peter Johnson and families.

A. J. Hallas and the family of Omaha were guests on last Sunday at the home of Louis J. Hallas and family of Murray, where all enjoyed a very pleasant visit.

Ralph Amick was working in Omaha for a number of days last week and was with the Chevrolet company but on account of lack of work returned home late in the week.

Wm. Obernulte, the hustler has completed the first coat of the plastering on the new home of Wm. Reeves, and the remaining coats which will finish the work in this line in a few days.

On last Tuesday Fred L. Hild and Thomas Nelson were constructing a new hay rack, for G. H. Meisinger, and which will be used by this gentleman for his harvesting and thrashing this summer.

John J. Toman and B. H. Nelson were over to Omaha on last Monday afternoon where they were looking after some business matters and securing some repairs for some farm machinery of Mr. Toman.

Henry Heebner is installing a new pressure tank for the water supply at the Berger hotel, to replace the one which has been in service and has rusted out, and this new installation will again give water pressure to the hotel.

The new house of G. H. Tams east of Murray which is being constructed by J. A. Scotten and his crew of efficient workers is now ready for the laying of the shingles which it is expected will be completed by the end of the week.

Clyde Gilmore who is working near Louisville was visitor in Murray on last Tuesday and was visiting with his friends. He also had the Journal sent to his address that he might keep in touch with the happenings of the county.

We dropped into the Murray Blacksmith shop, on our rounds in Murray this week and found the blacksmith very busy with his work and hammering away getting the work on schedule time, notwithstanding the large amount of it.

building of a concrete walk in front of his residence on Main street. Green Piggot the gent and efficient road man was making some repairs on the intersection of the Red Ball highway and the west street of Murray one day this week and will endeavor to have it so that there will be no mud hole in the future.

T. J. Brendel better known as "Jeff," and Dr. O. E. Brendel of Los Angeles who is visiting here and better known as "Pete" were down near Kamp Kill Kare on last Tuesday afternoon practicing on fishing. We do not know the score but apprehend it was a pretty fair one.

C. H. Boedeker jr. who returned home last week from his studies at Fairbault Minn., following the close of his school year, visited for a few days and then returned to continue his studies, for the summer term which continues for some six weeks and will keep those attending working until near the end of July.

Elmer Yardley living with the mother east of Murray was in town getting a portion of a pump repaired which has become so it would not work. Harry Nelson soon had the part made good as new, and Elmer went home and soon had the pump working and then hopped into the corn field and got after the weeds.

While Fred Hild the carpenter and builder was working with J. A. Scotten on the new house of G. H. Tams east of Murray and was nailing over the head, the hammer which he was using struck a glancing lick and also struck Fred on the face near one of his eyes blacking the optic, so that it looked like he might have been splitting kindling.

With the departure of Charles Barrows for the north and his intention of entering the aviation service, the Murray garage was left without any help for Mr. Bakke, and after working alone a week, he was able to secure a new man, in Frank Nelson who comes from Des Moines, Iowa, and thus make another citizen for the hustling village of Murray.

Murray Stores Again Visited by Burglars

Earl Lancaster Store Suffers Heavily From Infraders—Goods Hauled Off by Trucks

From Monday's Daily—This morning the office of Sheriff Bert Reed was notified of the fact that the little city of Murray had again been the victim of a gang of robbers and the store of Earl Lancaster was again one of the sufferers of the night invaders as was also the Harry Nelson hardware store that occupies a part of the double store building.

The robbery occurred sometime Sunday night but was not discovered until this morning when the hour for opening the stores for business arrived and as the result the parties that pulled off the robbery had a good lead in making their getaway from the scene of the robbery.

The loss will amount to several hundred dollars worth of merchandise. The Lancaster store being the largest sufferer in this respect as the greater part of the merchandise taken was in the form of overalls, clothing, shoes, shirts as well as cigars and cigarettes. In addition to the merchandise taken the robbers made way with the new Atwater-Kent radio, loud speakers and battery that Mr. Lancaster had just recently installed in his store.

The Nelson hardware store suffered the loss of a great many tools of various kinds but an estimate of their value had not been made while in the Lancaster store the loss was from $200 to $300 in merchandise.

The robbers made their entrance to the double store building by getting through a rear window in the Nelson hardware store and then took the hinges off the door connecting with the Lancaster store and made their way into that place to loot the store.

Indications point to the fact that the robbers made a thorough job of it and had a large truck backed up to the rear of the store and loaded in the merchandise and then made their escape.

Sheriff Reed was not given any trace of the robbers but the long time elapsing between the robbery and its discovery gave ample time for the parties committing the crime to get away cover.

RETURN FROM HOSPITAL
Herman Gansemer of near Murray, who was at the Immanuel hospital in Omaha for several days, taking treatment and recovering from the effects of a small operation, has so far recovered that he has been able to return home and will have to spend some time in recuperating from the effects of his illness, but is feeling fine and hopes to depart for some permanent home from the effects of the operation.

During the absence of Mr. Gansemer at the hospital, the fine farm of the Gansemer family has been looked after by the sons, Leslie and Ralph Gansemer. The many friends of Herman are well pleased to see him back home and trust that he may enjoy his old time health in a short time.

CROP REPORT
[By H. Nave, Reporter for the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., and member of the Biological Game Survey]

The outstanding features of the report are unusually heavy abandonment of winter wheat and the low condition about 25.1% the average remaining for harvest. Condition is 74.9% of normal compared with 85.6% a year ago. Last year the average on wheat was 13.6 bushels compared a yield of 14.6 but Nebraska wheat is in fair condition considering the dry condition that has prevailed and rains since May 1 have been beneficial. Due to deficiency of subsoil moisture the crop needs more rain, most of the abandonment took place in the western and especially the southwestern counties.

Oats are 78.3% is the lowest ever reported. The growth was retarded by drought. Good many fields thinned by April freezes. Tame hay and pastures showed improvements, but wild hay slumped from last year.

Fruits of all kind showed improvement as compared with last year.

DEMOCRATIC SOLO VISITS OPPOSITION
Kansas City, June 11.—A democratic presidential candidate, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, invaded the quarters of the republican delegates Sunday and got a hearty reception.

Arch foe of the republicans, Senator Reed found himself a host to that party upon his arrival here Saturday. He was at one time mayor of Kansas City and spends all his spare time at home here.

Senator Reed paid his respects to the republicans Sunday. Asked what he meant by coming into the republican lair, Reed, Reed smiled and joshingly replied: "Just trying to raise the average."

BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday, June 17th
By M. S. Briggs

Golden Text: (Used) "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

The Redemption of Mankind
When Christ went to John the Baptist to be baptized, and John said, "I have need to be baptized of Thee," the Master replied: "Suffer it so now for thus it behooveth us to fulfill all righteousness." The Father, when He made the world and everything therein, as well as the universe, could have made it impossible for man to sin, and in living free from sin, not to have lost his home in the Garden of Eden or forfeited his right to eternal life. But God's plan was to give man an opportunity to have a part in the redemption as well as the saving of mankind in the first place. Man wanted to be as wise as the Father and therefore was easily tempted to disobey the commands of the Father and the mandate which would bring eternal life, joy, peace and happiness during all the aeons of eternity.

So when the devil cunningly placed the proposition before man, he fell and since then the human race has been enthralled in sin, and until such time as he shall fully put his trust in the Father and accept the sacrifice of the Son and be guided by the Holy Spirit, mankind will never get away from the effects of sin.

The Father sent his Son, Jesus, the Christ, from heaven to earth on a mission of salvation, and in order to fulfill all righteousness, the Son of God was to die an agonizing death on the cross atop Calvary hill that he might purchase the sinful world and be able to give them salvation. For there was no credit that could apply for the salvation of mankind, other than that possessed by the Master, inasmuch as all had sinned and gone far from following Jehovah. Without sin, men thought they were playing an important part in doing away with what they claimed was a disorganizing element, the Master and Savior of the world. But in reality Christ's blood gave His life, after He had uttered those immortal words, "Father, into Thy hands I commit My spirit. My Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." He gave up the ghost, thus voluntarily sacrificing His life for the redemption of mankind.

The Savior Crucified
To keep all indignity upon the Savior of the world, those in what they thought was authority, placed the cross upon the back of the Master, compelling Him to carry it to the place where he was to be crucified, and when they could bear it further, they caught Simon, of Cyrene, whom they pressed into service. They thought they were heaping an indignity on this man, but as the ages have told, they were conferring on him a privilege which none through the ages have ever possessed, for he was serving the Master and taking some heavy work off His shoulders, and a privilege which all the world would like to have. While they cannot be granted this boon, they can in a way serve the Master, by contributing to the well being of His followers, when they are suffering without friends and needing any aid that can be given. Whether it be actual physical labor, sympathy or moral aid, as standing for the principles which the Son of God came to teach.

The Master's Last Words
Crucifixion was about as hard a death as could be devised by a cruel age, for after the nailing of the one to be crucified to the cross with large spikes, which tore the flesh, the cross was raised and the foot of the cross placed in the top of the beam, and the man was going down with a thud, which would almost tear the nails through the flesh and in some instances did so. Then the one was allowed to remain there in whatever weather, cold or hot, sunshine or stormy, and as the wounds grew sore and festered and one by reason of the loss of blood became feverish and thirsty and in many instances delirious, the suffering ended only when the physical forces waned and death came in merciful completion of the terrible ordeal. Frequently a drink which was drugged to produce a stupor was given the victim, that his suffering might be eased, but the Master refused it, for He wanted His full faculties to the last.

Thus was Christ nailed at and mocked, and every indignity possible was heaped upon Him.

While suffering on the cross, the Master of Ocean and Earth and Skies made a number of utterances that showed his wonderful fortitude and kindly disposition. As He was being raised upon the cross and the cross was allowed to drop into the hole, He said, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." Then again when the thief asked forgiveness, Christ said, "Today thou shalt be with me in paradise." Again, in addressing His mother, who stood by the cross, indicating that John should be a son to the mother of the Lord, He said, "Woman, behold thy son," and "Behold thy mother."

When darkness came over the land and His sufferings were great, the human part of His nature cried out, "My God, My God! Why hast thou forsaken me?" And again when He was feeling the loss of the blood and claimed, "I thirst." Nearing the end of the day was waning and life was about to take leave of his bruised and mutilated body, in a strong voice He proclaimed the victory when He said, "It is finished," signifying that He was giving his life freely for the salvation of the world.

The last utterance was, "Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit." And thus was fulfilled the sacrifice of the Son of God for the wiping away of the sins of the world.

It is now up to us to accept the sacrifice and obey the commands that he has left. "Follow me."

McKelvie is Being Pushed as Logical Man

Former Nebraska Governor Mentioned for Vice Presidential Nomination; Represents West.

Kansas City, Mo., June 13.—Who is with Hoover? That is the question in which the Nebraska delegation was deeply interested Tuesday night in view of a statement given out by Robert W. Devoe, Lincoln, vice president of the State Bar association and formerly chairman of the state central committee.

Former Governor Sam R. McKelvie, heading the victorious Hoover faction of the delegation at the caucus Monday, was put forward as "logical man" for the vice presidency by Devoe. He is down here in Mr. McKelvie's interest. The former governor would not comment on the possibility of him as the Hoover running mate. He remained in seclusion in his rooms at the Baltimore hotel.

Mr. McKelvie is regarded as "the spokesman" of real spirit of the agricultural west" by Mr. Devoe. "Hoover," said Devoe, "will be the republican nominee on the first or second ballot. His genius and experience in industrial and commercial activities and his capacity to find and apply sound policies for economic and social problems makes his candidacy a real promise for relief of agriculture.

Leading Advocate.
"Methods involved in bringing agriculture to a position of equality with industry and labor is the outstanding problem. The basis for the solution is orderly commodity marketing by the cooperative agencies. McKelvie is and has consistently been a leading advocate of this policy. This no doubt will be the program of the national convention in the agricultural plank of its platform."

"McKelvie is prominently identified with the councils of the party. He is a nation-wide acquaintance. He is a forceful speaker. His nomination will meet with approval of all sections of the country."

Though McKelvie would get a majority of the votes from the Nebraska delegation and probably more than any other new lining up for Hoover, it was indicated at the farm relief headquarters that Governor McMullen and other leaders would not vote for him. The governor was silent on the question, however.

No Steam Roller.
Earlier in the day, McKelvie took occasion to deny that he would attempt to apply the "steam roller" to the delegation by pressing the unit rule. His faction comprises 10 votes for Hoover while McMullen has nine for Lowden. "He won't slip any unit rule over on me," said the governor. "I have no intention of asking for the unit rule, said McKelvie, "nor have I entertained the idea at all. We play square and will continue to do that."

The Nebraska delegation joined in the applause for President Coolidge Tuesday when his name was referred to by Senator Fess, keynote. The Nebraskans had an ideal chairman's location in the convention hall. They are directly opposite the chairman's platform, several rows back and a row ahead of the Iowa delegation. One row is allotted but Gould Dietz, chairman of the delegation sat a row ahead of his colleagues.

Mrs. Margaretta Dietrich, expressed keen interest in the opening of the convention. Pressed for a statement as to whether she would vote for McKelvie as vice president, Mrs. Dietrich indicated she preferred to wait until "we come to that." Former Governor McKelvie is publisher of the Nebraska Farmer, a middle-west farm paper.

The general boom in vice presidential nomination speculation brought back into the picture the name of Hanford Macnider of Iowa, former assistant secretary of war and former national commander of the American Legion. It was put forward Tuesday night by Representatives Royal G. Johnson of South Dakota and A. Piatt Andrews of Massachusetts.—Omaha Bee-News.

DAWES ARRIVES MARIETTA
Marietta, O., June 8.—Vice President Charles G. Dawes arrived here from Chicago today to take part in the commencement exercises of his alma mater, Marietta college, which will be held next Tuesday. He was accompanied here by F. C. Bachelder, vice president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, in the latter's private car. Mr. Dawes said he would remain here only until the commencement exercises are over.

FIND BANKER'S BODY
Liberal, Kansas, June 12.—The body of a man identified as E. A. Kessinger, who was kidnapped in the holdup of the First National bank of Lamar, Colo., May 23,—was found in an abandoned shack near here late today. He had been shot to death.

Kessinger, assistant cashier of the bank, was abducted by the four bandits who robbed the institution and killed A. N. Parrish, president, and his son, John. Escaping into western Kansas, the men later kidnaped Dr. W. W. Wineinger of Dighton, Kans., and shot him to death. Presumably the physician was lured away from home to attend one of the bandits wounded in an exchange of shots in the bank.

New Record Set for Promptitude by Supreme Court

Adjourns for Summer With Calendar Nearer Caught Up Than Ever Before

Washington, June 12.—The Supreme Court adjourned for the summer having come nearer than ever before to catch up with its calendar. The court adjourned up with its calendar and thereby set an example to the American judiciary to speed up justice. Cases of a criminal character had been dealt with when the court adjourned. As against 295 unfinished cases left last year at this time, the court adjourned with only 190 cases still on its docket. Of these 175 were appellate cases and 15 or original jurisdiction.

Mr. Taft forecast before the American Law Institute in April that all criminal cases before the court would be disposed of by the time it adjourned.

May Arouse Bar's Query
At that time he said, "We are hearing today cases that were filed in October and November last, in the regular calendar. And we are likely to arouse in some members of the bar the query, 'Whether the Constitution does not forbid such promptitude.' He expressed the hope for an even better record next year.

In the fall term the full effect of the change in the law relating to the right of appeal will be felt. This limits the number of appeal cases brought to the Supreme Court. It is hoped this will further speed up justice before the highest tribunal.

For the first time in history cases in the term just ended have been argued in the same year in which they were brought, contrasted to past experience of delay sometimes amounting to years, due to congested calendars. At the back of the new record is a story of greater efficiency and hard work on the part of the justices.

Revision of Procedure
Before adjournment the court announced a revision of the rules of procedure to take effect July 1 in accordance with the congressional action abolishing the procedure of writs of error, and substituting, therefore, appeals for obtaining review of lower court decisions by the Supreme Court. Mr. Taft announced that the work was chiefly indebted to Justice Van Devanter for the revision work.

On adjournment the court continued eight cases under advisement, three of these dealing with the lake diversion case involving the right of the sanitary district of Chicago to take water from the Great Lakes.

The court disposed of 859 cases this term as against 888 last year.

IMPROVED HIGHWAYS PAY BIG DIVIDENDS
It is expected that 1928 road building activities will exceed all records. Twenty thousand miles of surfaced roads are to be built, and about 8,000 miles graded and drained. Throughout the country a multitude of plans have been laid for improving the existing highway systems as well as building new ones.

A high degree of road service is assured, by the fact that about 240,000 miles of the total of 288,000 in state highway systems are this year to be maintained under state highway departments' supervision.

Early estimates give amount available for road expenditures as being much greater than last year. From the various sources, it is expected that highway funds will be upwards of $1,300,000,000.

These highway facts should please everyone. There is no such thing as road building expense, unless it be shortsightedness that constructs poor or inadequate roads. Every dollar put into a modern highway for building or widening is an economy and a dividend-paying investment.

The United States highway system is the best in the world.

NORRIS KEEPS UP ATTACK
Washington, June 12.—President Coolidge was charged today by Senator Norris, Nebraska, with "almost forcing a third party" into the coming presidential election thru his veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill and the refusal to sign the Muscle Shoals measure.

Senator Norris said he is opposed to a third party but the "question is squarely up to the convention."

"As a republican president has stood in the way of relief for agriculture," he declared in a statement, "and the preservation of our natural resources, and in submitting to domination by the power trust. A republican congress takes the opposite side. If this convention repudiates a republican congress in favor of a republican president, it will second the move of President Coolidge for a third party."

HOOPER CONTINUES TO KEEP SILENCE
Washington, June 12.—Secretary Hoover was precipitated today unexpectedly into the turmoil of an actual political campaign with the sudden emergence of his probable nomination for the presidency by the republican convention at Kansas City.

Nevertheless, the news from Kansas City failed to break the self-imposed silence as to politics which has been followed by Mr. Hoover for weeks.

It was made clear Mr. Hoover accepted the fact of his nomination assured and that he and his intimates today threw themselves into the mapping out of further plans and campaign arrangements. Notwithstanding, Mr. Hoover would give no word as to his views on the platform, upon the selection of a vice-presidential candidate or any other political topics.

Whittier Home Setting Restored
Scenes of Poet's "Snowbound" Brought Back Through Efforts of Admirers

Haverhill, Mass.—More than $3000 has been expended in repairs on Whittier's birthplace, and in arranging the interior of the house so that it will have the exact appearance that it had when Whittier wrote "Snowbound," says Charles D. Potter, chairman of the board of trustees.

Mr. Potter said that the trustees have spent a great deal of time in research work. The dishes, "boots and kettles on the hearth," the open door leading to the bedroom and everything else mentioned by the poet in the poem are in as near the exact spots where they were when Whittier gazed out the window on that wintry day as it is possible to have them.

The bee-hives "on the side of the stream" have been put in place, the interior and exterior of the house painted and many other repairs have been made.

At the annual summer meeting of the Whittier Club the Rev. John More of Amesbury, who was the principal speaker, spoke upon "Wisdom of Whittier." He discussed some of the qualities of the poet as exemplified in his poems. He said in part:

"It is Whittier's genius that makes the noblest thoughts of duty and love into simple songs, direct, straight to the heart, touching the emotions making an appeal to the deepest feelings of human nature, singing striking the chords of the primordial elements, touching the tops of praise."

BEATRICE VICINITY IS HIT BY TORNADO
Beatrice, Neb., June 12.—A tornado passed from the south between this city and the state institution for feebleminded, one mile east of here, during the night, razed and unroofed three buildings and completely demolished another, killing over two hundred chickens, the property of F. X. Willemes.

A steel windmill and tower was twisted from its foundation and fragments hurled for half a mile. Crossing the road north the storm levelled an old hay barn, after which the storm split and dispersed. An eight-inch boiler was driven completely thru an 18-inch telephone pole, both ends of the boiler protruding on either side in the form of a cross. The pole was twisted off twelve feet above the ground and its top, together with cross arms and insulators, hurled several hundred yards north into a corn field. Not a wire was broken. No one was injured.

ELECTRICITY ON THE FARM
To be permanently successful, rural electric service must be able to provide the farmer with electricity at a reasonable rate, and must equally produce a fair return upon its investment to the electric utility company.

While rates must necessarily be high when only a small amount of current is used, due to high cost per consumer of constructing rural transmission lines in sparsely settled territory, they can be reduced as consumption of electricity increases.

Therefore, the solution of the problem of supplying the farmer with electric power is to increase the number of tasks which it will perform for him. New types of farm machinery adopted to electric drive will have to be perfected, and a method of financing the purchase of equipment by the farmer must be developed.

M'KELVIE, HOOPER TEAM PREDICTED
Kansas City, June 12.—If Herbert Hoover, with his superior organization, is able to whip off the attack of the "allies" and to come out of the ballooning here the republican candidate for president, Samuel R. McKelvie, former governor of Nebraska, may be selected as his running mate.

If things get to that point it is understood that Petrus Peterson of Lincoln will deliver the nominating speech.

"It would be a great honor, of course," said Mr. McKelvie. "A place in the cabinet has no allurements for me, but naturally the vice presidency is something one could hardly decline."

Mr. McKelvie said the thought had come from some of the leaders close to Mr. Hoover, that he had given it no encouragement and that if he was to be nominated the initiative would have to come from his friends on the Nebraska delegation.
