Peter Opp who is visiting in Nehawka at the present time, has not been feeling the best but is still much better than a short time since.

Delbert Switzer was the first of the week building a road drag for use on the road which he is looking after in the vicinity of Nehawka.

Charles Bates was installing a threshold in the market of John Opp the old one had worn out and Charles was replacing it with a walnut one.

A delegation of the Knights of Pythias were visiting in Omaha and attending the convocation which was put on by the lodge at that place.

Z. W. Shrader was a visitor in Omaha one evening last week where he went to attend the speaking at the Court house by Congressman Morehead.

Messrs Marion Tucker and Granville Heebner were over to Plattsmouth last week where they were enjoying the venison roast which was put on by the Masons.

Adolph Stenkamp of Manley was a visitor in Nehawka on last Monday and was looking after some business matters for a short time in the lane of the sale of stock foods.

Mr. F. R. Cunningham was called to Plattsmouth last week by the very serious illness of her mother, Mrs. J. R. Vallery, who is very poorly at the home in Plattsmouth.

Albert Wolfe and family were over to Plattsmouth last Sunday where they visited with friends and also were in attendance at the Ritz picture show of the county seat.

Robert Taylor was a visitor in Omaha with a load of stock for the farmers about Nehawka and on the return trip Mr. Taylor brought a load of merchandise for the business men of Nehawka.

Miss Vera Martin who has been making here home at F. P. Sheldon where she had and is still employed, is spending this week visiting at the home of her parents, Sam Martin and wife of Seward.

The company drilling for oil at the oil well south of Nehawka, beginning with the first of this week began running a day and night shift with the hope of making more rapid progress with the work.

Bert Willis turned the store over last Monday to the wife and he went to the farm of Henning Johnson where he sailed into the picking of corn for a few days and relieve the congested corn picking situation.

Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Barritt were over to Omaha for the day on Monday where they were visiting with friends as well as doing some shopping and Dr. Barritt also making purchases for his office in the line of medicines.

Z. W. Shrader who has been the owner of a farm near Elmwood for a number of years disposed of it last week, selling the 160 acres for $19,500. Besides this he has a number of other farms in this neighborhood, and good paying property.

The new cement works which is just now in the last stag of completion and will ere long be ready for the manufacturing of the products which is in such demand in the various building trades.

Lycurgus McCarthy of Union was a visitor in Nehawka for over the week end and on last Monday returned to Union accompanying Mr. Morris of the Standard Oil company on his return after having delivered an invoice of oil and gas to his customers in Nehawka, of which Mr. O. Lundberg is one of the heaviest users of the standard products.

Mrs. John Opp who but recently returned home from the hospital at Omaha and had hoped that she would now enjoy good health will have to return for further treatment in a short time. She and her friends are hoping that she will not have return to the hospital after this time, and she will soon be able to return to her home again entirely cured.

Mrs. W. S. Scott from out in the state and an aunt of Mrs. D. C. West who is at the Methodist hospital where she recently has been receiving treatment and where she is convalescing, was visited on last Sunday by Mrs. West who was taken over to the big city by Walter Wunderlich and wife, they driving in the car.

They also took Lloyd August who has been visiting here, to Omaha where he took the train for his home at Farley, Iowa. Mrs. August who was visiting here also remained for a longer visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stone.

The garage which is being constructed by Clarence Hansen, is coming along very nicely at this time the foundation is all in and the walls for the building proper are going up very rapidly, the work being done by Wm. Obernite and Frank Martin, the construction being concrete blocks for the main walls and the front with pressed brick. The building when it shall have been completed will make an excellent place for Clarence and provide good room for the work which he is engaged in.

Also is a very creditable addition to the business interests of Nehawka.

You care well for your loved ones while alive. One of our concrete vaults protects their remains when buried. An absolute guarantee. MILLER & GRUBER, Plattsmouth, Neb.

Entertained Their Friends. Mr. and Mrs. Silas Munn entertained at their home a short distance from Nehawka on last Sunday and had as their guests for the day and a most delightful dinner R. C. De Les Denier and family of Elmwood, Geo. McFadden and family of near Weeping Water and Carl Giles and family of Wyoming, and Albert Wolfe and family of Nehawka. A most pleasant day was spent.

Helped Make Nebraska. On last Monday when we were in Nehawka, Uncle Z. W. Shrader met us and gave us two dollars to advance the subscription of his paper and incidentally told us that he had been a subscriber of the Journal for forty-six years and likes the publication very well, and would be lost without it. Mr. Shrader is a very progressive farmer and has resided in Cass county for much over a half century and has struck many valiant blows for the making from raw prairie, one of the very best counties in one for the very best state in the best Nation on earth, and having thus labored

He estimated that 5,000 birds were killed last Monday, the opening day. After that first day, however, the flocks were scattered and the bags were smaller. The season closes Tuesday evening at Sundown.

Among the first arrests made were those of three army officers from Fort Crook, O'Connell said. They were fined $300 and costs in Merick county for having seven hen pheasants in their possession besides their bag limit.

A number of hunters failed to tag their birds when they took them from the counties in which they were shot, O'Connell said, and as a result the department has put two motorcycle officers to work patrolling the highways between the larger towns and the open counties.

O'Connell used an airplane only a little more than two hours, he said. It was found that the gasoline and oil consumption was too costly to pay for the value of the service. One day early last week he flew north from Grand Island over a number of the counties in which the season was open and the surrounding counties which were closed.

Some Auto Bargains I have a 1927 Essex coach that is in excellent condition and which I will sell at a very rare bargain, and also a 1925 Willys-Knight coach that will go to some one at a bargain. You can see the cars any time at Nehawka. Also, we can sell you a new Reo of any style or model. V. P. SHELDON, Nehawka, Nebr.

Married Last Week. Miss Freda Peterson, who formerly made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johnson, but who has some time since made her home in Omaha, was united in marriage to Roy Snider of Waverly. On last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johnson entertained in her honor, at their home and had a large number of their friends as guests, the gathering being a most happy one.

U. B. Church Notes Answer to last week's question: Methuselah, 969 years old; Enoch his father was 355 years old when God took him by translation (a type of rapture of church) to Heaven. Question: Why did Noah build the ark? How did the people co-operate with him in this work, and why?

Few Pheasant Hunters Fined Game Laws Are Observed by Most of the Nimrods in Central Nebraska. Thousands of hunters invaded the nine central counties last week for the open season on pheasants but violations of the regulations which were thrown around the shooting were comparatively few. State Game Warden Frank O'Connell said Saturday upon his return to Lincoln.

The greatest trouble was encountered in the shooting of pheasant hens, which were protected by law. The season was opened only on male birds, O'Connell said, and for the remaining three days of the season vigilance will be increased in this respect.

To the Voters

I am not a lawyers candidate, nor will I be dominated by any clique or group of lawyers. When I filed as a candidate for District Judge, I did not believe then, nor do I believe now, that a lawyer dominated court is best for the rank and file of the people. If I am elected Judge of the District Court, I want my commission to come from the common people, and not from any clique or group of lawyers, or from any clique or ring of any character. I have not bought newspaper support with money or promises. I look directly to the people for my support, and I shall be directly responsible to the rank and file of the people. I have presented the record and what the record reasonably shows. I can therefore be fair, impartial and fearless, and give everybody a square deal. It is upon this basis I solicit your support. Beware of eleventh hour falsehoods about me, which I cannot have an opportunity to answer. In return for your support, I promise each and everyone a square deal. n1-lsw-2td. A. L. TIDD.

DRY AGENT IS CONVICTED

Elyria, O., Oct. 29.—Louis Cicco, former Lorain dry raider, charged with shooting to wound Miss Betty Hayward, twenty-two, when he fired upon an automobile which he mistook for the convey of a liquor truck, was convicted of assault and battery by a jury in common pleas court tonight.

The verdict of the lesser offense was permissible under the original indictment. The element of intent was thereby eliminated from the case to determine the extent of power permitted to dry officers.

The conviction carried with it a fine of not more than $200, imprisonment in county jail for not more than six months, or both.

Tells How He Fattens Hogs

James Kunz of Wood River, Who Frequently Tops Market Talks On His Experience

Four hundred Nebraska hog raisers attended the morning session of the annual Rotters Day at the agricultural college Friday. Six or seven hundred were expected for the afternoon session. The early morning rain and threatening weather held the crowd back until late in the morning.

James Kunz of Wood River, a practical farmer and extension market hog raiser, was the principal speaker of the morning. He topped the Omaha market with carload after carload of hogs in the last few years. All his offerings have been thrifty, well grown hogs less than six months of age and weighing 180 to 240 pounds per head.

The secret of his success lies in the hog lot sanitation system plus his use of alfalfa pasture and alfalfa hay, he said. He feeds hay to brood sows like most men feed it to cattle. Old sows on his farms get two pounds of hay for every pound of cottonseed cake, and they go through the season in thrifty condition. He gets more than eight pigs average per litter. The hay is fed on concrete floors rather than in feed racks, and the coarse stems are given to other stock. A warm dry shed is provided in winter rather than keeping the hogs warm with expensive corn.

Stock Inspected.

Just before noon the crowd went to the yards to look at the hogs that had been on test, the lambs starting on winter experiments, and the feeder cattle just in from Valentine for the completion of the tests started there. In explaining the tests at Valentine, E. M. Brouse, superintendent there, said that they had compared prairie hay with combinations of prairie hay and varying amounts of alfalfa hay. The calves that went through the winter gaining about a pound a day made the best use of pasture last summer. Those getting more feed in the winter failed to gain as well on pasture, while those which received prairie hay alone were stunted so they did not catch up with the other lots in the summer.

Professor Gramlich had a few words to say regarding the feeder cattle market, which has been high but is very unsettled at the present time. His advice was that those who had bought high priced feeders should get ready for a long winter, and that the man who does not get excited but who starts his cattle slowly for the best market that presents itself next spring or summer will probably come out the best.

Prof. William J. Loeffel opened the morning program with a demonstration of hog carcasses, which proved the market value of medium type hogs. In addition to conducting the hog experimental work, Loeffel has in charge of the meats library at the college and slaughters hogs, cattle, and lambs to follow up the studies made in the tests.

Things Look Better.

Harold Hedges of the rural economics department reviewed the present situation in the marketing of hogs and pork products and assured the crowd that things look better than they did a year ago. Prices are not as high as a year ago but they promise to be better.

V. P. Snyder of the North Platte experimental station reported that figures obtained there in hog feeding tests, which compared the value of tankage with cottonseed meal and oil meal. He feels that hogs will eat when allowed to run to a mixture of tankage and cottonseed meal or oil meal. Costs have been about the same at the North Platte station Alfalfa has been one of the best feeds they have used there also.

Prof. A. D. Weber of the college, who has charge of the sheep experiments, showed the importance of doing loss in lamb feeding. For example on the 250 lambs now on test at the college, they can probably afford to sell them for only 30 cents a hundred more than the cost if the death loss is nothing. If two per cent of the lambs are lost, they would have to get 50 cents a hundred more. If six per cent are lost, the selling price would have to be 91 cents above the cost price, and if the loss is ten per cent, the selling price would have to be $1.30 higher than the cost. Forcing lambs to cause a heavy feed of corn seems to cause heavy death loss, he said. Most successful feeders prefer to feed bulky feeds with corn and hold down the loss.

At the afternoon program, A. R. Hecht of Buffalo county was to tell how his farmers have used the hog lot sanitation system of raising pigs. James Burch of the University of Missouri was to talk about the tests at the neighboring station, and Professor Loeffel was to give out the results of hog feeding experiments at the college during the past season.

Value of Tankage. The use of tankage, or a mixture of tankage and oil meal in a ration of corn and pasture for hogs, stimulates feed consumption, increases gains, and reduces the amount of feed required for 100 pounds of gain, according to another test made this past summer at the agricultural college and reported by Prof. Loeffel.

Similar results of several years' experiments lead hog men to believe that the results are conclusive and that it pays to add tankage or other high protein feeds to the big ration the year around.

Splendid Record of A. J. Weaver Commends Him

Republican Candidate for Governor Gives Views on the Important Issues in Nebraska.

I am a native Nebraskan. Have served as mayor, county attorney, member of the Legislature and President of the State Constitutional Conventions. My associates and the people have approved my public service.

For twenty-five years actively engaged in orchard, live stock and farming business; Vice President of the State Board of Agriculture; Trustee of the Nebraska Dairy Development Society; past President of State Horticultural Society; President Missouri River Navigation Association.

My record is an index as to my qualifications and ability to work with others. As an owner of farm and city property, I have a common interest with all tax payers. I am opposed to extravagance in administration as well as false economy. Will seek every economy consistent with the welfare of Nebraska and proper provisions for its institutions. There was no deficit in the Constitutional Convention of which I was president. If I become Governor, there will be no deficit in the state administration.

I will faithfully and impartially enforce all laws as provided by the Constitution and co-operate with the Legislature to secure the following legislation:

To bring the executive branch of the government into full conformity with the new constitution without the numerous boards and commissions that formerly existed; favor full utilization of the constitution, all state officers with fixed responsibilities; elimination of duplicated agencies and reduction of number of expending agencies. The State Republican Platform pledges repeal of the general provision of the code law in conflict with these principles. I stand squarely on that platform. It will not affect any of the codified laws, many of which were passed before the code was adopted.

To amend the tax laws of the state so as to compel intangible property to bear its just share of the burdens of government. This just share shall be not less than the average rate paid on farm lands in the state.

To secure legislation to protect and strengthen the Bank Guaranty Law; to provide liquidation of assets of failed banks as rapidly as sound business judgment will permit; to obtain the utmost vigilance in bank supervision and examination. The banking situation in this state calls for sound thinking and the application of business principles. It cannot be remedied by the methods of the ancient medicine man. The Legislature and the Executive department should approach and solve this problem without partisan bias. I pledge my utmost efforts to achieve that end.

I am full of accord with our "pay as you go" good roads program under the 2-cent gasoline tax. I oppose issuance of bonds or a property tax for road building purposes. The 2-cent tax should be continued until every part of the state is connected by the state highway system approved by the legislature. Any increase in the gasoline tax is a matter for the Legislature, but if an increase is made, it should go to build farm-to-market roads so the smaller communities may be connected with the state highway system which all have helped to build.

I believe in the preservation of all the remaining natural resources of the state, for the benefit of the people, not only as a rightful inheritance, but as a means of protection through competition with private utilities, when necessary, to secure just rates and industrial development. To that end I supported and helped secure the adoption of the new Constitution which provides that the use of the waters of the state for power purposes shall be deemed a public use and shall never be alienated, but may be developed as provided by law, and reserves to the people all mineral rights under the remaining one-million six-hundred-thousand acres of state school lands. To that end also I favor the impounding of the waters by the Federal government of the streams of our state as a part of the flood control program which will give the people, through district development, the benefit of stored waters for irrigation and power purposes.

In common with a great majority of the men and women who have built Nebraska and are building it today, I have every confidence in its future.

I am interested in my native state and the welfare of each and every citizen thereof and I believe that I can be of real service to the people of my state as Governor.

ARTHUR J. WEAVER.

Newspaper Comment

The Spaulding Enterprise, speaking of Mr. Weaver, said: "By the way, while there has not been much said about local politics around here we would like to make the remark that Arthur Weaver is one of the ablest men that has run for the office of Governor of Nebraska for many years, and to our mind, there is not the slightest doubt of his election. He is well versed on all the needs of the state and his heart is with the people, so that he can be trusted to give an able, honest and business-like administration of the affairs of the state. We do not look for him to make any big promises of what he will do, but we do expect that when he goes out of office, no matter how long he may be kept there, that Nebraska will be better off for his having been governor, and there will be no kickback for five million dollars to make up for being made fools of during a campaign like we have been for years past. We can trust him to make Nebraska bigger and better as far as that can be done by administration of the affairs of the state, and when we vote for him we know we are not voting for political promises but for an honest administration by one who knows the interests of the people, and one whom we are willing to trust with a business and not a political administration. If we did not know him and know that he is of the people, we would not be so strong for him."

The Adams Globe, of August 30, 1928, speaking of Mr. Weaver said: "Mr. Weaver is one of the most popular candidates that the republican party ever produced. He is not a politician, but a prominent citizen and statesman who is always alive and alert in his efforts to advance every enterprise that he considers for the betterment of his community and state."
