Nebraska in Republican Column by 100,000

Democratic Upset Began in Omaha and Spread Over Entire State

Omaha, Neb., Nov.—The early hours after election day found Nebraska apparently safely in the republican column as far as major offices were concerned—namely, president, United States senator, governor and attorney general.

Returns from nearly half the state gave Herbert Hoover a lead of approximately 40,000 over Governor Smith. The same relative reports gave United States Senator R. B. Howell, running for re-election, a lead of like proportion over his democratic opponent, Richard L. Metcalfe of Omaha.

Arthur J. Weaver's lead over his democratic opposition, Charles W. Bryan, for governor, was less than that in the presidential and senatorial races. With 688 precincts reported the vote stood: Weaver 99,481, Bryan 77,470.

Charles W. Bryan said he was not ready to give out a statement yet and Mr. Metcalfe, his family informed inquirers, had retired and did not wish to be disturbed.

A member of the family, asked if Mr. Metcalfe desired to express a concession to Senator Howell's election, said: "We don't know yet."

The closest race in the state was for congress in the First district where E. J. Burkett and Congressman Morehead, democrat, were running a nip and tuck race.

Returns from a third of the 1,983 precincts in the state show that the republicans have carried the state widely figures on some of the lesser candidates are meager, republicans believed that the state ticket had been carried along and that perhaps one or two democratic congressmen had been displaced. The vote seemed so close in the First, Fourth and Sixth districts that doubt was expressed as to whether the democratic candidates for re-election would be returned. Early figures showed the closest contests in the First and Fourth districts. Howell was leading strongly in the senatorial race and on the face of returns at hand Sorensen had better than a fighting chance for attorney general.

Ed Danielson, secretary of the republican state committee, was the one official left at headquarters Tuesday night. At midnight, after studying the figures he said it would not be surprising if Hoover's majority exceeds 100,000 and Weaver's majority reaches between 60,000 and 70,000. On the face of returns he thought the entire state ticket would be elected. "Now, with victory in our grasp," he said, "we are happier than ever over the fact that we made a clean campaign from start to finish."

A State Journal special from Auburn said that Morehead was leading Burkett by 499 votes in Nemaha county.

Hoover's lead on 638 precincts approximately one-third of the precincts of the state, was 42,153. In these precincts the total vote was 178,895, and if this total represents approximately one-third of the total vote the vote total will be well above half a million. On this basis Hoover's majority would figure out about 130,000.

Returns from Omaha indicated that disaster had overtaken the democrats in that stronghold and that republican candidates there were jubilant.—State Journal.

SHOWS SOME IMPROVEMENT

From Wednesday's Daily—Everett Fulton who underwent a very serious operation at the Immanuel hospital in Omaha a few days ago, is showing some signs of improvement in his condition and yesterday had rallied a great deal and seemed very much better than he had been previously, altho the serious nature of his operation made his condition still dangerous. The many friends of this excellent young man are trusting that he may soon be far enough along on the highway to recovery to be out of danger.

A New Music School Opened in Plattsmouth

Advantage of Theatre Organ Training Available Under Direction of Expert Organist.

The fact that there are very few theatre organ schools in the United States, and yet, a great demand for theatre organists, proves the need for more and proper training facilities along that line.

Plattsmouth is fortunate to be one of the small number of cities in all America that can boast of a modern theatre organ school, which is under the personal direction of an internationally known and highly respected organist as is Mr. Weigel.

Mr. Weigel, who came here from Denver, has selected Plattsmouth to be the location of said school for important reasons, chief amongst which are: First—This beautiful little city, adjacent to Omaha, offers great advantages, in that ambitious students are given a better opportunity to confine their thoughts to the kind of musical endeavor required for the successful termination of each course. Second—Living expenses are lower and there are splendid private residences, recommended by the school, where pupils may enjoy a truly home-like atmosphere, which is another advantage rarely found in the large cities.

The Nebraska Organ School offers a complete course in preparing organists or pianists who wish to become theatre organists. Each Theatre Organ course includes film training, cueing and song slide playing. Each week Mr. Weigel gives one class lecture free.

A most valuable as well as unique feature of the Nebraska Organ School is the actual theatre organ playing experience offered to each student as soon as qualified.

The school also offers its students free employment service to the extent of putting the names and qualifications before interested parties.

The executive office of the Nebraska Organ School is located in the Parmele Theatre building.

Murray Begins Term in Penitentiary Yesterday

Former Dunbar Banker Taken to Lincoln Sunday to Start Sentence of 5 to 10 Years

Lincoln, Nov. 4.—Thomas Murray, former Dunbar banker, was committed to the Nebraska state penitentiary this evening to start serving a sentence of from five to ten years for forgery. Plans had been made to bring her here from Nebraska City either Friday or Saturday, but impassable roads made postponement necessary. He had been in the Nebraska City jail 197 days.

Mr. Murray was arrested several months ago, after an extensive search which followed his disappearance and the subsequent discovery of a shortage variously estimated at from 50 thousand dollars to 100 thousand dollars in the bank's funds. He was taken into custody in Mount Vernon, Wash., where former Nebraskans met him and informed authorities. He was returned to Nebraska City and was convicted of forging a five thousand dollar note.
