Burke Out of Speaker Race

Bankrupt Representative Declined to Be a Candidate For Pre-siding Officer

State Representative Allen G. Burke who spent Thanksgiving in Lincoln accompanied by his family, his decline to get into the race for speaker of the house, although he has had tenders of support for that position from a member of his old colleagues in previous sessions.

"The members of the coming legislature, in my judgment, should be thinking more about what they can do to help Governor Weaver in solving such serious problems as the bank guaranty situation and other matters of vital consequence to the people of Nebraska, than about securing personal honors for themselves," Mr. Burke told "The Star" in his room at the Grand Hotel.

"I am willing to do what I can on the floor of the house and in committee deliberations to serve the best interests of our state," he continued. "As to the speakership, I will be satisfied to have any good man possessing the proper qualifications chosen for that office."

Aside from Mr. Burke himself, who was speaker in the 1925 session, those most prominently mentioned for presiding officer of the lower chamber are Bern R. Coulter of Bridgeport, A. E. Alypa of Hastings, and E. P. Bailey of Carlisle.

Max Kier of Lincoln, like Mr. Burke, is not inclined to enter the contest for speaker, although he has been talked of in that connection. Mr. Kier will probably ask for the chairmanship of the judiciary committee, which is next rank to the speaker.

Burke thinks comprehensive bills amending the bank guaranty and intangible tax laws ought to be drafted before the legislature meets, but he is not trying to do so himself.

C. Petrus Peterson and his law partner, R. W. Devoe of Lincoln, are working on a bill for a new form of governmental organization to fit in with Governor-elect Weaver's ideas regarding changes in the code system to harmonize it with the constitution and trim out unnecessary and duplicated activities. Mr. Devoe is the man who drafted the original code law upon the request of former Governor McKelvie in 1919. Mr. Peterson was among the legislative supporters of the code when it was enacted, but he was also chairman of the platform committee in the last republican state convention which endorsed a number of Weaver's suggestions for making it over.

GRAND DUKE IN AMERICA

New York, Nov. 29.—Grand Duke Alexander Michailovich, a cousin and brother-in-law of the late Czar Nicholas II of Russia, and cousin-in-law of King George of England, arrived tonight on the liner Leviathan for his first visit to America.

The Russian nobleman, who has been in exile in Paris, said his visit will be "like family reunion" for he has two sons—Prince Dimitri of New York City and Rostislav of Chicago—and two nieces in this country. His niece, Mrs. W. B. Leeds, formerly Princess Xenia of Russia, and Prince Dimitri greeted him at the pier. Mrs. Leeds last winter befriended Madame Anastasia Tschalkovsky, who claimed to be one of the surviving daughters of Czar Nicholas.

The grand duke said he had investigated her claims and found no grounds for them. "She is not the niece of my wife," he asserted.

TARIFF REVISION ASKED

Washington, Nov. 29.—Immediate enactment of an emergency tariff act devoted solely to upward revision of the rate of duty on certain agricultural importations was advocated by Senator Capper, republican, of Kansas, in a statement issued today.

"To attempt general tariff revision now," he declared, "keeping the existing general relationship between agricultural and other goods, would be playing a rather threadbare joke on the farmers of the country. And I believe they show signs of becoming tired of being denied proper consideration by tariff makers.

"There should be a higher tariff on meat products and dairy products, on livestock, on wool, cotton, grain and grain products an doll seeds. There should be a reduction in a few overprotected manufactured articles—notably aluminum."

SLAIN DENVER MAN TOOK ASSUMED NAME

POLICE TOLD TO GET BUSY

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Police Commissioner William Russell laid down the law to his cabinet of deputies last night, telling them to clean up Chicago or quit their jobs, and they were demonstrating went "over the head" of a deputy commissioner to conduct a raid on south side.

The raid, conducted by Captain O'Connor of the commissioner's office, was on the second floor of the building occupied by one of the bright spots of south side night life. The car itself was not involved although it was thrown into the air by the rush toward the door leading to the upstairs rooms. Roulette wheels and other gambling paraphernalia were seized and four men arrested.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 29.—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen said here today that she regarded as a joke an effort being made in Florida to invalidate her election to congress on the ground that she could not meet the constitutional requirements as to citizenship in this country for seven years.

"It is such an absurdity that it is not worth taking seriously," Mrs. Owens said, "but I am glad you told me about it so I can telegraph my thanks to Governor Martin for his kindness."

Mrs. Owens, the daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, lost her American citizenship in her marriage to the late Major Reginald Owen of the British royal engineers.

"The matter of my citizenship," Mrs. Owen said, "is not in question now, for the law was a very great injustice to women. It should never have been passed, but, having passed it, congress not only did right in repealing it, but in wiping out the stain it once had placed on our citizenship record. I am as much a full-time citizen as any other American woman—and I am just as proud of that fact as can be."

Mrs. Owen is in the west on a lecture tour.—World-Herald.

End of Inquiry Into Sinking of Ship is Near

Examination of But a Few More Witnesses Remains as Task for Investigators.

New York, Nov. 29.—The end of two official inquiries into the loss of the liner Vestris is in prospect for tomorrow. Before taking a holiday recess, Charles Tuttle, federal attorney conducting the government's investigation, and a department of commerce board reviewing an examination of the Vestris by steamboat inspectors had taken the testimony of scores of survivors, officers and shipping experts. Only the examination of a few witnesses remains before the hearings are concluded.

Both Tuttle and Dickerson N. Hoover, supervising inspector general of the United States Steamboat inspection service of the department of commerce, indicated they expected to include their investigations tomorrow. It is not known when opinions will be given. Outstanding developments of the two hearings to date include:

An acknowledgement by Edward Keane, one of the inspectors who examined the Vestris five days before she went down, that the vessel would not have been issued clearance papers if he had reported he failed to follow lifeboats to the water as called for by regulations.

Testimony by the surviving ranking officer, that Capt. William Arroy had declined assistance before he sent his SOS.

Testimony by engineers that the negro stokers had quit their posts when they could have helped keep the liner afloat longer, and denial of this testimony by some of the "black gang."

Criticism by some survivors that the life boats were leaky and their gear faulty, and that no rescue organization was shown by the ship's personnel who left passengers to shift for themselves in the disaster.

Four possible causes have been suggested for the sinking: leaking seams in the hull, ruptured hull plates, improperly sealed ports and hatches, and shifting of cargo in hull.—State Journal.

Mexico Puts Portes Gil in as New President

Friendship for U. S. Pledged by New Executive; Promises Hands Off Next Election.

Mexico City, Nov. 30.—Emilio Portes Gil took the oath as provisional president of Mexico today, and pledged his administration to a continuance of the policies of the Obregon and Calles governments, especially in regard to friendship with the United States.

Immediately after being sworn in, the new president read a brief message outlining the policies his government will pursue. Approximately 25,000 saw the inauguration.

Portes Gil said that, as long as the American government continued to show a desire to respect Mexican sovereignty, the American people would have no cause to complain about their southern neighbor.

"Fortunately," he said, "the wisdom and patriotism with which President Calles and Ambassador Morrow have served their respective countries have eased distrust and created a mutual understanding which, with all my heart, I hope may continue."

Portes Gil pledged his government to combat war, "even thoughts of war." He said he would make sure that history would be taught in the schools of Mexico from a pacifist viewpoint.

The incoming president said that Mexico was proud of its hospitality and generosity. It would not change its policy of allowing foreign workers and capital to come and share the advantages of the land.

The government, he announced, would adhere to Article 27 of the constitution, referring to oil and land problems, and also to Article 23, referring to labor laws. Freedom of expression, including the full right to criticize the president, would be respected by the government, he said.

He promised that the state would take no part in the presidential election of next year to choose his successor, other than to guarantee equal rights to contending factions.

No Mention of Religion.

The religious problem was not mentioned by the incoming president.

Portes Gil took the oath of office on a huge wooden platform erected in the middle of the stadium. On it were seated the retiring president, members of congress, general officials, supreme court judges, the diplomatic court, governors of states and military chiefs from all parts of the country.—Omaha Bee-News.
