Porter, who said "Don't stay long or you will not get back tonight" and as we passed, we noticed the creek was about a third full.

Well, we did not hurry and when we got to the south branch, which was a mile west of the main stream we found Fleming Robb waiting to be towed over and we waited for our turn, with Jack Lindsay and his team, and hurrying along to the main stream found the tractor going over with four trailers, and that was the limit, so we waited and finally were told that there was not more trips to be made that night, as we accepted an invitation to stay with John Finkle and were pleased with a fine bed. At day light we hurried back to the bridge but the water was too high, then we wished we had waited for breakfast at Johns as he had pressed it on us but we thought we could get across the water as soon as we got there but had to wait for two hours for the water to recede before we could get across. Well, that's that.

The latest victim was Mrs. Bertha Fellows. She had been in ill health recently, police were told. With a woman companion she was strolling beside the river. She darted out into the swift swirling stream just above the cataract. There is no fence at this point. Trenmore Cone is Sued by Estranged Wife

Divorce Plea Says Legislator Has "Over-Inflated Idea" of Importance; Married in 1921.

Lincoln, Neb., March 11.—Trenmore Cone, representative in the legislature, living at Valley, Neb., was sued for divorce here Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Freda Cone charges in the petition that the legislator has an "over-inflated idea of his own importance as a result of political campaigns."

The Cones had been estranged for about 18 months. They were married in Lincoln March 30, 1921. They had lived in Lincoln, Omaha, and Valley since that time.

Representative Cone, informed by newspaper men of filing of the suit, said, "I have nothing to say." He let it be known, however, that he had no intimation of the suit. He had not been served with the summons when seen by reporters.

Cone was first elected to the legislature in 1907. He also served in 1927 and the present session. He was a candidate for the democratic nomination for senator in 1924.

He is 58, and formerly operated an elevator in Saunders county. He now has a sand and gravel business at Valley.

Mrs. Cone, in her petition, avers the legislator has failed to support her properly, has spent his money on others, and has an "ignitable temper."

She alleges that her husband has failed to give schooling promised for a daughter of her former marriage. A claim that Cone was "practically insolvent" when she married him, but now has an income from 15 to 20 thousand dollars a year, is also made. Property held in his name is estimated at 150 thousand dollars.
