HEADS JUNIOR COLLEGE

C. A. Spacht, one time instructor in the Plattsmouth high school, who for the past two years has served as superintendent of the Bellevue high school has just been elected as the head of the junior college which will take over the buildings formerly occupied by the Bellevue college and vocational school of the U. S. Veterans bureau.

Mr. Spacht is now organizing the work for the junior college which will open in the fall and which will offer the first two years of the college work, permitting the young people residing in the vicinity of Bellevue to attend this school for their first two years work and which will entitle them to enter any accredited college of the state university in Nebraska.

A great deal of encouragement has been given the project in the vicinity of Bellevue as well as South Omaha and a number here are becoming interested in the work as it will permit the students to reside at home and carry on their school work as well.

AGED MAN POORLY

Isaac Wiles, one of the long time residents of Weeping Water and a member of one of the best known families of Cass county, has in the past several months been growing more feeble in health and in the past two weeks has failed very rapidly, necessitating his being taken to the hospital at Omaha on Monday and where he is being cared for. Mr. Wiles is past seventy years of age and has been suffering with arteriosclerosis and to which has developed other complications that makes his case quite serious. All that is possible is being done to give Mr. Wiles relief but the serious nature of his case makes the matter of recovery one of the gravest doubt.

Circus Coming to Plattsmouth on April 24th

Cole & Rogers Shows will be Here Next Wednesday—To Exhibit at the Tourist Park.

Community life, hereabouts, is due for a genuine upsetting in Plattsmouth on Wednesday April 24th, when Cole & Rogers Circus comes to town for two performances that day. There is nothing short of a visit from a circus that so changes and disarranges the social and economic habits of the countryside—for there is nothing like a circus to appeal so generally to the hearts of normal humans big and little. Old age gets the thrill of youth recalled; youth lives its full day of happiness and talk of politics, crops and work-a-day things are for one day submerged in the appeal of the circus. Make up your mind, then, to soon be jolted out your usual trend of mind and action.

Cole & Rogers Circus comes heralded with just enough heurics to make it foretell a real circus event. There are no extravagant claims to greatness, no false declarations of magnitude, no superlatives to clog the story in its telling. Cole & Rogers Circus promises good entertainment; promises novelty in its program of events and undertakes to assure lovers of thrills and strange presentations an afternoon or evening of true enjoyment at the Tourist Park grounds.

There will be an excellent collection of wild and rare animals. There will be brought before the children the very beasts and birds they see pictured, have dreamed of and can really behold in their natural state. Lithe and sinewy galls will fly through the air or prance gaily on the back of beautiful horses. Strong and sinewy men will perform the feats of giants with grace and seeming ease. In short, Cole & Rogers will present a circus performance well worthy of the great traditions of this fascinating style of amusement.

Feats of horsemanship, exhibitions of animal training, and an attractive array of interesting and odd performances will lend novelty to the program. Among the rare and curious sights will be the tiny horse so appropriately named "Pewee" weighing only 40 pounds, standing 26 inches high and glossy shining in its mouse-colored hide, a perfect horse done in miniature. Indeed "Pewee" is said to be the smallest horse in the world and if this be not entirely so "Pewee" is surely the smallest horse our townfolk are ever likely to see.

CONTINUES ABOUT THE SAME

From Tuesday's Daily—

Mrs. W. P. Gillespie, who has been so very gravely ill for the past several days at the Immanuel hospital at Omaha, has shown but little change since yesterday and her condition remains very serious. A blood transfusion was made late yesterday in the hope of giving her more strength but has made but little change in her condition and which gives but little hope to the members of the family circle.

Well Known Speaker Here Next Sunday

Peter Collins of Boston Will Discuss National Wide Subjects at K. of C. Hall

In the store house of his vast experience to equip him for the discussion of such a subject as THE HIGH COST OF LOW MORALS Peter Collins has indeed a series of unique and important contacts in life. These are days that cause thinking men and women to wonder about the future of civilizations days of world-wide revolt, revolt against authority, against government, against law and morals and yes, revolt against international peace among nations.

This lecture will be given at the Parme theatre next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

One of the interesting and important contacts of Mr. Collins that gave him a large insight into the manage of international amity and the disregard of law and morals among men and nations, was when serving as Extension Labor Secretary of the League of Enforce Peace, William Howard Taft, former President of the United States, now Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, was President of the League when Mr. Collins was Secretary.

On the knowledge of what was what in world affairs. Then too, he had the opportunity of reading and studying the correspondence between the League and the great thinkers, diplomatists, ministers and massagers of their government, rulers of nations throughout the world. He learned to know in no small degree the international mind, the seething whirlpool of world propaganda and the methods of the whispering galleries of modern diplomacy. Then too, his personal contact with the leaders of American Labor (and the so-called labor movements of foreign nations) in regard to these great moral issues, problems and evils gave him clear insight into the mind of the mass, what they thought and what their reactions were to modern machinery movements.

Thus Mr. Collins has had in this respect an opportunity that few men get in a lifetime to meet intimately great world leaders and to know from that experience that prime things that concern vitally the future of our institutions.

Mr. Collins' lecture is free to the public. No collection is taken up and questions are gladly and courteously answered.

Family Feud Principals are Given Freedom

Testimony at Inquest That Court Settlement Was Refused by Two Assaultants.

North Platte, April 16.—A coroner's jury decided that it was defensive warfare that won the feud between the Ridenour and Moore families over custody of three little children, in whose veins coursed the blood of both.

The jury exonerated the four Ridenour men of blame for the killing of Frank Moore, 30, and his father, Charles Moore, of Dunning, Neb., at the Ridenour home south of Sutherland, Neb., Saturday night.

The jury found that the Moores went armed with guns and knives to the Ridenour home to take the three children of Frank Moore and Viola Ridenour Moore from the Ridenour home by force. The jury declared the Ridenours acted in self-defense.

Legal Method Rejected.

O. A. Ridenour, father of Mrs. Frank Moore, declared the Ridenours acted solely in self-defense, and attempted to persuade the Moores to let the domestic relations court decide the custody of the children this week, when it was to hear his daughter's suit for divorce against Frank Moore.

O. A. Ridenour, dangerously wounded, is in a hospital.

His story was told on the hospital bed. He said:

"About six years ago my daughter was married to Frank Moore. We had been friends of the Moore family for 33 years. After the first son was born to my daughter, she and her husband started having trouble.

"Mrs. Moore was compelled to stay at her father-in-law's home, where she was mistreated. She wanted her husband to get a home of their own, but he refused. Trouble between the two continued until last August, when they agreed to take the matter to court. My daughter returned to my home, retaining the custody of the children. At times the two families met and we were threatened on several occasions.

"When the two Moores came to my house last Saturday evening, demanding the custody of the children, I insisted that they wait until the case was settled in court. Frank Moore would not listen to this, and brandished a butcher knife he had brought with him.

Had Knife, Claim.

Correspondent Testifies.

One of the chief witnesses was Hazel Keller, the domestic named by Mrs. Viola Moore in her suit for divorce from Frank Moore. She had driven to the Ridenour home with the Moores and remained in their auto.

Another was Adren Ridenour, who was arrested although bullets passed through his clothing.

His brothers, John and Archie, were also wounded in the family battle over custody of the three little Moore children, who remained in another part of the Ridenour house with their mother while the men folk argued and shot it out.

The eldest of the children over whom the battle was fought is 7. The youngest was born after Frank and Viola separated last fall.

Class at the Methodist Church Has Splendid Record of Service—Enjoy Fine Time

From Tuesday's Daily—
The Young Men's Bible class of the First Methodist church last evening observed the twenty-third anniversary of its establishment, the event being held at the class room in the basement of the church and the church parlors and in which the business meeting was followed by a very pleasant social hour.

This class had an enrollment of eight members when organized and the years that have past have been filled with progress and many of the young men of the community becoming enrolled in the class and serving the cause of the church in this organization. At the present time the class has an enrollment of fifty members.

H. Wescott, and who received a hearty greeting from the members of the class.

There was also present one of the charter members, James B. Rishel, who has been active for the greater part of the time in the class work for the past years.

One of the chief matters of the evening was the election of the officers and so well pleased were the class with their work that all were re-elected they being:
President—J. A. Capwell.
Vice-President—R. E. Kelly.
Secretary—W. L. Heinrich.

members of the two classes. Vocal numbers were given by John Prady, Joe Capwell and Mrs. W. A. Bennett, Mrs. J. A. Capwell gave a very charming reading and Edgar Wescott who was home for the vacation from the university was heard in one of his pleasing mimic numbers.

The members of the Y. M. B. C. were presented with a "cake" which instead of being dough was found to be putty, the Philathea class making the presentation, and when the men were lamenting the dashing of their hopes of being "cake eaters" the ladies arrived with the real cake, a beautiful three deck cake of pink and white and adorned with the glowing candles. The cake was the work of H. E. Wentworth of the Cream of the West bakery and was a real beauty.

The refreshments of ice cream and cake completed the evening of fun and frolic.

Phone your news to No. 6.

Wiles, Miss Olive Gass, Mrs. Robert Troop, Mrs. Will Gorder and Mrs. C. L. Wiles.

Mrs. Robert B. Hayes told of the S. T. I. work over the country and the growing benefits of the scientific temperance instruction in the schools and which was doing much to check the liquor evil.

A beautiful part of the afternoon was the two readings and two vocal numbers given by Elizabeth Ann Wiles and whose accompaniment was played by little Mary Katherine Wiles on the piano accordion.

At the close of the afternoon the hostess served very dainty and delicious refreshments that were very much enjoyed by all of the party.
