There will be two crews of surveyors in Union soon, who will make tentative surveys of the road from the intersection east of town to the Missouri river and also of the river, with a view of ascertaining the better place to locate the bridge which is to span the Big Muddy at this place. One of the crews will be furnished by the state and the other by Woods Brothers, of Lincoln, who are reported to have the contract for the erection of the new bridge. This gives hopes for the early beginning of the work of building the bridge, which will be pleasant news to the people of this vicinity.

RATES ON CANNED GOODS TO STAND

Lincoln, May 29.—The state railway commission Wednesday refused to go into the matter of a readjustment of the canned goods rate structure in the case where the Burlington, Northwestern and Union Pacific had asked permission to reduce rates on carload shipments from Omaha to Hastings and Grand Island and intermediate points. It suggests that the jobbers at Hastings and Grand Island, who wanted specific commodity rates from their cities, both to the west and the east, have proper recourse if they desire an investigation.

FAIL TO DECORATE GRAVE

Seward, Neb.—Should the grave of a Civil war veteran who was hanged for murder be decorated on Memorial day? That is a question which William H. Smith presented editorially without an answer Thursday in the Seward Independent Democrat. The unmarked grave of Orlando Cassler, who was executed here fifty years ago May 20, prompted his remarks. Cassler's name has never been called on the list of soldier dead published each year. Mr. Smith points out, nor was included in the original role submitted twenty years past. When M. M. Campion made a survey of the graves in the county a few seasons past, he found no marker on this grave and was advised not to try and get one. For a time, flowers were placed on the mound each year, but they disappeared soon afterwards each time so the practice was given up.

Kansas City, Mo.—Maj. Andrew Drumm, cattleman, attending a meeting here of working boys, learned in his talks with the youths that in a big city there were boys without homes who often had to sleep in doorways. As an outgrowth of that revelation the Andrew Drumm Institute for boys, established near Kansas City, has now been opened.

Calls for Vote on Farm Relief Before Recess

Hoover Also Wants Definite Date Decided on for Tariff Action; Congress Leaders Join In.

Washington—Support for the stand of the senate and house republican leaders against a summer recess of the special session, unless farm relief legislation is first enacted and a definite date fixed for disposing of the tariff bill in the senate, was announced Friday by President Hoover.

Statement of President.

President Hoover's statement made in response to inquiries by the press was as follows: "The majority leaders, both Senator Watson and Congressman Tilson, are united in their recommendations to come that there should be no recess in the special session until farm legislation is complete, and that there should be no recess after that except for a few weeks to accommodate the senate finance committee in its hearings on the tariff bill, unless there is a completely fixed agreement in the senate as to an early date upon which a vote will be taken on the bill, with a further agreed period for debate on the conference reports, which would assure a final vote in the senate as early as possible. The interest of the country obviously necessitates the rapid determination of both these questions and I am entirely in accord with their views."

Opposed to Any Recess.

Whether the November date for a vote on the tariff measure in the senate will be agreed upon is problematical. Senator Borah of Idaho is opposed to any recess. Senator Jones of Washington, the assistant republican leader, likewise thinks a recess unwise. Both would have congress stay here and hasten the finance committee along with its work. There is some talk of seeking a special order or rule in the senate whereby a two-thirds vote would fix a limitation upon debate on the tariff and thus make sure a final vote on it.

Real Home for Boys.

One of the buildings contains a commodious, well-lighted dormitory, library, dining room and other facilities. This will be the real home for boys which Major Drumm envisioned. Another structure will serve as a school. Instruction will be given in the manual trades and the many of farm work, supplemented with actual labor on the soil in the 40-acre orchard, with the live stock and poultry. The boys will be prepared to become dairymen, horticulturists, gardeners, herdsmen, poultrymen or to follow other agricultural pursuits.

LINDY KEEPS HIMSELF LOST

New York—The lone eagle was still the last Wednesday night. Driving out of the driveway of the Dwight W. Morrow estate at Englewood, N. J., Monday afternoon Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the former Anne Spencer Morrow, disappeared as completely as he did when he soared into the mists above Roosevelt field for France that May morning two years ago.

The colonel's own speedy Falcon plane, equipped with enough gasoline for a thousand mile flight and two parachutes stands in the hangar at Schneckady, N. Y., where it was flown yesterday, but its master so far has failed to appear and claim it. A vigil on the Morrow summer home at North Haven, Me., also failed to bring any sight of the Lindberghs.

Those who know Lindbergh believe that he is away somewhere on an aerial honeymoon, probably landing on private fields or impromptu ones, thus evading the wave of publicity which for two years has rolled unceasingly over him. But that's conjecture, too.

Your ad in the Journal will be read, and they sure do get results.
