where. Under the discussions of the at the Business Men's club and President Ackenbach, asked chairman of the executive committee W. B. Banning to get the committee together and see what could be done to effect work for the best interests of the city. W. A. Taylor gave some very good advice in his remarks before the meeting and also asked that John Roddy make some remarks looking iting in Murray for a time on last to better conditions, who responded with some very good remarks, relative to making the town and surrounding country look better, and which he assured all would add much to the value of the lands contiguous to the city.

W. B. Banning spoke relative to the new proposed bridge which has been talked of and which all agree would be a very fine thing for Union to have the bridge cross the Missouri river on O street. Mr. Banning advised that a concerted effort be made to get the bridge, if not this year the coming year. In his address he said there was good reason to believe that six miles of paving would be done the coming year from the intersection east of Union west. This would put it through the city and thus afford the town to get paved streets at a less cost than if they had to do it all themselves.
