condition. Nearly everything I ate gave me indigestion and heartburn. I was so nervous I rarely got a good night's rest. My liver was sluggish and I had a tired, achy feeling all the time. The day I got Sargon was the luckiest of my life. Now my stomach is in fine condition. I eat anything without the slightest bad after-effects. I have been wonderfully strengthened. The nervousness is entirely gone and I sleep long and restfully. I actually feel ten years younger and my friends all remark about how well I look. Sargon is the greatest medicine in the world." —Mrs. John A. Gray, 1119 Elm St., Dubuque. Mrs. Gray is the mother of ten children. Weyrich & Hadraba, Agents.

World Wheat Selling Group is Believed Near

Canada, United States, Argentina Thought Eventually to Control Market

Washington—Relief for the wheat growers of the United States is contemplated in the organization of a centralized selling agency, such as Canada already has in operation. The Federal Farm Board has been working on this project which proposes co-operation with Canada and in time with Argentina. This would group virtually all the New World producers in two or three gigantic organizations which would deal direct with consumers in the food-buying nations. At the same time unified buying by consumers is being seriously contemplated in European wheat-importing countries. With the change from individual to pool operations, Farm Board officials see the possibility that nation will come day deal with nation and continent and stupendous world barter of wheat.

"The centralization of grain selling in the United States contemplated by the wheat pool should be to the advantage of other wheat selling nations," said Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board. "If we are successful through the wheat pool in putting American grain growers on a parity with Canadian growers, it is my judgment that the result will be beneficial to each."

Argentina Considers Subject

"If the Argentine growers were organized either on the basis of the Canadian pools, according to our proposed system, the Western Hemisphere would be in a position to meet on an equal basis the concentrated buying effort of the consuming nations. Incidentally, this subject is having some consideration in Argentina."

How the wheat of a whole nation is already being mobilized at one time is shown in Canada, officials explained here. Interior elevators in western Canada are bulging with unsold wheat as the gigantic wheat pool dumps up the grain of half a continent in order to secure better prices for the farm. Statisticians forecast a short world crop and Canadian farmers through their wheat pools believe they can get better prices by hauling back wheat. Therefore, instead of dumping 300,000,000 bushels in the world market with the inevitable effect of crashing prices, the farmers are now calmly sitting back until the market is stabilized on the expected level. Incidentally the Canadian wheat pool now markets the crops of more than 140,000 farmers, making it the largest business organization in the Dominion. What the wheat pool is doing in Canada, the Farmers' National Grain Corporation under the Federal Farm Board is being organized to do in the United States.

Wheat on National Basis The corporation is capitalized at $10,000,000, under the Capper-Volstead Act. It is trying to put wheat-selling on a national rather than individual basis to enable the farmer to bargain for a price, rather than to accept whatever is offered. With the huge central agency rising in the United States, Farm Board officials seek co-operation with Canada forced upon it by friendship and other economic circumstances. In fact, the eventual co-operation between all Western Hemisphere producing countries resulting from the new national scale of operation.

"So far as we are concerned there is not going to be any competition—nothing but co-operation between our central agency in the United States for marketing grain and the Canadian wheat pool," Mr. Legge stated. "As I see the situation, now that we have got an American central grain selling agency under way it will be possible for the two national organizations to co-operate with each other for more orderly marketing and for stabilization of prices. I am as ready to encourage and secure co-operation in the grain-growing industry between the United States and Canada as I am to encourage and promote it among our own co-operatives. We can each help the other to our mutual benefit."

SENATOR WARREN MENDING Washington—Despite his eighty-five years, Senator Warren of Wyoming, the dean of the senate, was believed Monday night to have gained the upper hand in a struggle to overcome bronchitis. "He is considerably better," said his physician, almost jubilantly, as he left the bedside of the veteran legislator. For ten days Senator Warren has been confined to bed by a cold which developed into bronchitis, but only Monday did his friends learn of the serious attack. Illness is strange to the western senator and his rugged condition was counted upon by colleagues to bring him thru. He is regarded as one of the most active members of the senate.

HELPS ROAD SITUATION

The city street force has aided in the attempt to secure some better roadways leading out of the city by having Lincoln avenue graded and smoothed up and it is now much better for travel and a great boon to the traveling public to the south and southwest and who can take this roadway into the city instead of the longer route to the west.

The result of the visit of the local good roads committee to the office of the state engineer cannot be determined until today when State Engineer Cochran arrives home and will take up the proposition of securing some relief to the roads that lead into the city from the south.

HAVE FINE MEETING

Fontenelle chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met at the home of Mrs. J. S. Livingston on Monday afternoon with a majority of the membership in attendance and a most interesting session was enjoyed by the members.

Mrs. Fred G. Morgan presented the resolutions adopted by the W. R. C. and asking that the new highway to the Missouri river traffic bridge be designated as the R. R. Livingston highway in honor of one of the early residents of the city and a distinguished officer of the Union army as well as a leading physician of the state and which family had given three of the sons as members of the medical profession in this community. The resolutions were endorsed by the ladies of Fontenelle chapter as to the naming of this highway.

Several applications for membership were received and which will add to the strength of the local chapter which has a large number of its members now living at other points. The chapter voted to give the prize of $5 to the senior of the class of 1920 who has the highest rank as the student of American history.

In the keeping with the defense program of the D. A. R. for the year, Mrs. Henry C. McMaken gave a very interesting paper on "The Defense of Childhood and Youth" that was most interesting and gave many fine points on this subject of national defense. The ladies enjoyed very much the refreshments arranged for the occasion by the hostess. The chapter had the pleasure of having as a guest Mrs. D. C. Morgan of Los Angeles who is here for a visit in the old home.

Hidden Deals of Lobbyists Draw Anger

Committee Wants to Know All About Farm "Conferences;" Evidence Indicates Collusion.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Secret, under-the-table deals entered into by lobbyists on tariff and other legislation will be probed by the senate lobby committee, it was learned Sunday. The committee is especially anxious to know how far the so-called farm lobbyists have been engaged in "pulling the chestnuts" out of the fire for other industries.

Evidence introduced thus far has indicated that the farm lobbyists have been working hand in glove with the sugar interests, the industrialists, and with the private interests seeking to gain control of the government's huge power and nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala. Senator Blaine (R.), Wisconsin, has openly denounced this group as "racketeers" who are betraying the interests of the farmers in federal legislation.

Most Active. One of the most active of the "farm groups" has been J. A. Arnold, whose operating methods were thoroughly aired in the committee's investigation of the Southern Tariff association and the American Taxpayers' league.

Arnold has been meeting constantly with the farm lobbyists during consideration of the tariff bill acting as a member of their "rate committee." Two other members of the group, Charles W. Holman and A. L. Loomis, representing national dairy organizations, received money from Arnold's lobbies.

In its probe of the sugar lobby, the committee also learned that the farm group was to take the lead in demanding higher tariff on sugar.

Before his investigation is ended, the committee plans to ask Chester H. Gray, lobbyist for the American Farm Bureau federation, why he has been promoting the bid of the American Cyanamid Co. for the muske shoals plant.

In Grundy Quiz. Gary will be asked also about his agreement with Joseph R. Grundy, head of the industrial tariff lobby.

DEATH CALLS T. P. O'CONNOR

London—T. P. O'Connor, "father of the house of commons," died at 3:16 a. m. He was eighty-one years old. The aged parliamentarian, who was affectionately known as "Tay Pay," had been unconscious for a considerable part of the last forty-eight hours. For ten days he had been confined to his bed by the septic condition of one of his legs. With the death of the last survivor of the Irish nationalist party, his venerable but of course unofficial title of father of the house falls on the head of Lloyd George, liberal leader, who has been longer a member of parliament than any other.

Had there been more Irishmen of the type of Thomas Power O'Connor back thru the centuries of the Irish question, it is possible that there would have been no such issue. Certainly it would not have developed the acuteness that marked it at frequent intervals.

"Tay Pay," as he was more familiarly known to the public, always was a nationalist—in fact, the last survivor of the Irish nationalist party. But he was not an agitator, nor did he express hatred for England.

Contrariwise, he advocated a better understanding between the English and Irish, and with the establishment of the Irish free state there came to a reality one of the most cherished dreams of his long life.
