FESTIVAL OFF TO GOOD START

From Tuesday's Daily—

The Fall Fun Festival of the American Legion opened last evening at the Community building and a very satisfactory opening night crowd was in attendance, the visitors viewing the points of interest, getting acquainted and ready for entering into the spirit of fun and frolic which will prevail this week up to and including Saturday night. The decorative features of the hall this year are the most pleasing that has been shown in the annual fall indoor carnivals and gives a much more pleasant setting for the big festival.

The entertaining features were largely along the lines of appealing to the dancing public but this evening there will be a special entertainer as well as the Al Finch orchestra on hand for the concert and dance.

The Wednesday evening program will introduce several local juvenile stars in musical and dancing numbers and as well the famous Collins orchestra will be on hand to supply some real hot music.

The Pilgrimage to Progress

It's a far cry from the year 1620, when a small band of pioneers landed on the desolate coast of New England, facing suffering and privation.

They were the Pilgrims . . . embarking on a long and arduous journey—the Pilgrimage to Progress.

They, and their splendid kind, have made the road easier for us, infinitely easier. But the journey is not ended. It never ends. The Pilgrimage to Progress goes on forever.

We wish to proclaim our Thankfulness for the fine patronage that is ours, and to express our thanks that we, too, are Pilgrims, privileged to serve, to improve, to carry on the work that leads to better and bigger things. . . .

The Pilgrimage to Progress!

Zane Grey's Story Filmed

“Sunset Pass” Is Latest Story of Author to Star Jack Holt—At Parmele Theatre.

Jack Holt, with fifty other motion picture actors, spent over two weeks “on location” in following the policy adopted by Paramount to film all Zane Grey stories on the exact locale called for in the story. The company was headquartered at Tuba City, Arizona, and was under the guiding hand of Otto Brower, the director.

Fans of both Zane Grey stories and Jack Holt, have long lauded this policy of Paramount. Zane Grey is noted for his love of the great outdoors and always writes his stories around some beautiful western spot.

The story which was filmed in and around Tuba City is “Sunset Pass,” a recent work of Grey and the latest Paramount production starring the popular Jack Holt. It will be shown at the Parmele theatre Friday and Saturday.

In support to Holt are Nora Lane, noted for her characterizations in other western films and with Adolphe Menjou in “Marquis Preferred” and “A Night of Mystery”; John Joder, the young English actor; Chester Conklin, popular comedian, Guy Oliver and others.

Select Child's Wardrobe for Health.
A child's defects may be caused by ill-fitting clothing. They may be due to tight elastic bands in his under clothing, or perhaps to shoes that are poorly fitted. A child should not be forced to wear cast-off clothing that may injure his health.

Mothers who wish to have their children well-dressed will select only clothing that fits comfortably. They select fewer but better clothes. They buy or make rompers out of serviceable, washable and attractive materials. They select light-weight union suits and avoid the use of elastic in his under-clothing. Shoes are chosen with special care, and have straight, inside lines, broad toes, and low heels. They note that the boys wear boots all the time, although they enjoy them, because they know boots allow for no ventilation. Wise mothers dress children primarily for health and comfort, and so that the children may be unconscious of their children.

Farm Bureau Board Annual Meeting
The Cass County Farm Bureau Board held their annual meeting Tuesday evening, November 19 at the farm bureau office in Weeping Water. The chief topics of the meeting were, discussion and reconstruction of the agent and assistant agent's programs for the next year's work.

W. B. Banning, president of the board and H. G. Gould of the college of agriculture, explained how vaccinating and other personal services should be done by the agent for demonstration purposes only.

Plans were made for the county wide Farm Bureau meeting which is to be held in Weeping Water Saturday, December 14th. This is an all day meeting and the complete program will be announced later.

Hessian Fly in Cass County.
H. H. Welken of the U. S. Entomological Laboratories spent Thursday, November 21st with the county agent, D. D. Wainscott in Cass county checking up on the Hessian Fly situation.

Many of the fields that were seeded in the county before October 1st are infested with the fly this year. Considerable damage to the 1929 wheat crop can be expected, essays Mr. Walkden.

Cass County Leads in Purchase of Purebred Sires

The dairy herd improvement association report for October shows Cass county purchasing more purebred sires than any county in the state. There were 26 of the 27 associations reporting with 646 heads, and a total of 8062 cows on test.

There were 50 cows shipped to the stock yards as unprofitable. This shows that many good dairymen are going to board the unprofitable cows over the winter.

Tri-County Poultry Show.
The premium lists of the Tri-county poultry show are ready for distribution now. They can be had by seeing T. H. Polock of Plattsmouth or County Agent Wainscott of Weeping Water.

Cass Co. 4-H Boys Win Trip.
Two trips have been awarded to the 8th National 4-H club congress held at Chicago. Glenn Heneget, the Cass county champion in all club work has been selected. This trip is offered by the Rock Island railroad.

Lloyd Vance of Eagle has been selected as the state champion poultry club leader. This trip is offered by the Nebraska poultry improvement association, Nebraska accredited hatchery association, and the Nebraska poultry and egg association. The boys will have their tickets and will leave Lincoln with other champion 4-H boys and girls Friday, November 29th.

After two attempts to die Monday Mr. Peters threw himself in front of a large truck at 12th and Jones streets and received injuries that caused his death this noon.

Louisville Tract Purchased by the State of Nebraska

Twelve Sandpit Lakes in 188 Acres—To Serve as Public Fishing Resort

Governor Weaver and other members of the state game and park commission have closed a deal for the purchase of 188 acres of land near the Platte river, containing eight lakes, near the town of Louisville. Secretary Frank B. O'Connell said Saturday. The state is to pay $50 an acre. The tract is owned by Lyman-Richey Sand company. The lakes are sand pits. One lake near the Platte river covers 18 1/2 acres. The owners of the land have agreed to protect this lake from washings of the river and guarantee its permanency for a period of twenty-five years or forfeit the value of the lake acreage. For this purpose the present owners expect to spend $2,500 in protective work on the side of the river. Secretary O'Connell said the state will make payment upon approval of an abstract of title. The tract is to be added to the many now owned by the state and operated by the game and park commission as public fishing resorts. The purchase was recommended by a committee of the commission, comprising Guy Spencer of Omaha, George Dayton of Lincoln and Secretary O'Connell.

Secretary O'Connell has received newly printed fishing and hunting licenses for use next year and will start distribution of the same to residents in Nebraska and adjoining states Dec. 1. They will sell for $1 cash to residents of Nebraska and $10 to non-residents. As provided by law there is a non-resident fishing license which may be had for $2. Trapping licenses sell for $2 to residents and $50 to non-residents.

The sun which appeared on the licenses used in 1929, whether setting or rising no one was certain, has disappeared from the license for use next year. So have the pictures of the man shooting at a flock of ducks and another shown with a rod and line, the hook evidently snagged in the water on a log or else containing a mighty big fish. “Permit to fish and hunt” is printed across the face of the new license. The word license is no longer used in the game law.

The seal of the state in green that is printed in the center of the new permit. This tint will be changed each year as a distinctive mark for each succeeding year. This is the first time the seal of the state has been used for this purpose.

The permit used in the past contained the age and weight of the holder. The new permit will disclose not only his occupation but his weight, height, age, color of his eyes and hair.

The former permits were signed by the governor and secretary of the department of agriculture. The new permits are to bear only the name of Secretary Frank B. O'Connell.

Thanksgiving Observance is General in U. S.

History Shows Indian Tribes of This Continent Observed Day—Now Nationally Recognized

Thanksgiving can well be called an American institution, for most of the Indian tribes celebrated a thanksgiving or “harvest feast” long before the white man came to the New World.

It is an old feast with the Jemez Indians, a tribe of the Pueblos. They kept the feast before the Pilgrims came to America and they keep it still. They have been at least nominally Christianized, so that they hold their harvest dance festival on the church feast-day of San Diego (Saint James) but the ceremonial itself is carried over unchanged from the ways of their picturesque and pagan ancestors.

On the feast day of group of clowns issue from the church, or kiva. Their bodies painted in yellow, necks and leggings tinged in red, with richly colored blankets on which are embroidered, in characteristic colors, figures of the sun, moon, the great stars, the good and evil snakes, the rainbows, and the “steps from earth to heaven.” Some of the clowns walk with a cane like an old man; some go on all fours.

After these enter the plaza the musicians, twelve in number, follow. They are dressed in white, with faces and bodies painted white. They chant a rude rhythmic song in the minor key, and beat time with a single stick on a hollow-log drum. Soon the dances appear, in double column, two men abreast, then two women, and so alternating. The men stamp, the women trip lightly. After a ceremonial dance the men swing their gourd rattles as if sowing grain, the women sticking the ends of the ears of corn into the ground in imitation of planting corn. When this rite is over the other women in the tribe rush out of their houses with baskets of eatables, ears of corn, bread, cakes, etc. These they throw up into the air in all directions. In this act of throwing heavenward the food which heaven has enabled it to raise the tribe displays its gratitude.

The Iroquois Indians have four festivals of Thanksgiving. In the spring they give thanks for all the waters, the springs, the streams, the rains, the sun and the wind. The next one is the summer festival. The autumn is the corn festival, which lasts three days, and the last is the winter festival, which lasts five days. At each feast the Indians name all the gifts of the Great Spirit to them.

The first Thanksgiving of the Colonists was in September, 1621, the second year of the Plymouth Colony in the New World. After the first dreadful winter, during which almost half of the Pilgrim company had died, had passed, renewed hope had grown up with the summer. In the fall the corn crop was gathered, and Governor Bradford proclaimed a day of thanksgiving. Extensive preparations were made. The Governor sent out four hunters, who in one day secured enough game to supply the Colony for nearly a week. The few women in the colony spent days in boiling, baking and roasting, and even the children busied themselves in turning the roasts on the spits before the open fires. Hospitality was extended to Chief Massasoit, who accepted and brought ninety people with him. The guests remained three days, during which they captured five deer to add to the larder of their hosts. The tables were set out of doors and the whole party sat about them as one big family. The first Thanksgiving was not merely a feast, there were prayers, sermons and songs of praise.

From Plymouth the custom spread to other colonies, and in time it became an annual affair, the colonial governors issuing thanksgiving proclamations each year, generally in the fall.

During the Revolutionary war, Congress recommended days of thanksgiving; and in 1784 for the return of peace, as did Madison in 1815. Washington appointed November 26, 1789, after the adoption of the Constitution as a day of thanks, and again in 1795 he appointed a day of thanksgiving for the general benefits and welfare of the nation.

The Episcopal church in America in 1789 announced the first Thursday in November as a regular annual day for giving thanks “unless such a day be appointed by the authorities.” The Roman Catholic church in 1888 so honored the day.

But there was no uniformity of observance. Some states had an annual Thanksgiving, others did not, and no proclamation was issued by the President after Madison's term. One woman, Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale, editor of Godey's Lady Book, took an intense interest in the subject and for more than twenty years sent out pleas thru the columns of her journal for a nation-wide thanksgiving. She wrote letters to each of the Presidents and to other prominent men—finally in 1863, President Lincoln appointed the last Thursday of November as Thanksgiving Day, from 1863 the same day has been regularly set apart. The President annually makes a formal announcement which is sent to the governors of the different states, each of whom issues a corresponding proclamation for his state. The day is not a national holiday—the U. S. has no legal holidays, not even the Fourth of July, but almost every state has legalized it by legislative act.

The Dominion of Canada, too, has an annual Thanksgiving Day, similar to our Day. It is proclaimed by the Governor-General as a harvest festival, and unlike that of the United States is not always set for the same day. Usually it falls in the
