Woman Wins Farm Honor in Missouri

Made Poor Orchard One of the Best in Central State—Seventy Acres

St. Louis, Mo.—The name of a woman, for the first time in history, has been inscribed on the roll of the Master Farmers' organization in the United States, and a vicarious tribute paid to the farm women of America who are playing such important roles in the story of agriculture.

The first feminine Master Farmer, one of the 10 new members chosen by the organization in Missouri, is Mrs. Nellie Weston, whose 70-acre apple orchard is within trucking distance of Kansas City.

Eight years ago the entire management of this orchard fell upon Mrs. Weston's shoulders. She was without training or experience in the business of apple growing and the orchard, neglected for several years, was in poor condition. She turned for guidance to the Missouri College of Agriculture and the present Spring Branch Fruit Farm is a monument to the efficacy of the methods advocated by that school, according to the new Master Farmer.

Nothing was done at the orchard that did not have the approval of the horticultural experts, and all approved practices were put into effect as rapidly as possible, while Mrs. Weston turned to every avenue of instruction she could find to learn more about the best ways to handle her new job. The local county agricultural agent lent his assistance, short courses at the college helped—and today this orchard has been classed by experts as among the best managed in the central states.

The system of farm accounting learned in those trying days has been of great assistance, according to Mrs. Weston, and has been carefully followed each year. By means of this record the farm manager has been able to ascertain accurately the year's profit or loss and to uncover and plug up leaks due to faulty management.

"Apple Blossom Day" at Spring Branch Farm is a gala event each spring in a large section of Missouri. Hundreds of people come, at Mrs. Weston's invitation, to spend a day of pleasure and instruction under the great spreading branches of the apple trees, white with bloom. Horticulturists and fruit growers from many scattered farms attend to listen to talks on various phases of apple spraying, soil testing and other operations, and hear the latest innovations recommended by the college instructors.

The annual "Apple Blossom Day" was instituted by Mrs. Weston's husband before he was forced to give up his work, and she regards the springtime festival as a memorial to him.

LOYAL TO MOTHER COUNTRY
New Delhi, India—Emphatic disapproval of the policy of separation from Great Britain was contained in a resolution adopted by the chamber of princes Sunday. The upper house declared it "welcomes attainment by British India of its due place among the dominions forming the British commonwealth of nations at the earliest date possible consistent with the necessary safeguards and reservations with respect to the different interests in the country."
Viceroy Lord Irwin, commenting on the resolution, said it was important in that it showed that if independence became a concrete political program it could not become the program of United India. He said it did not enjoy the sympathy of one-third of India.
