LABOR GOVERNMENT SECURE

London—Prime Minister MacDonald's government Tuesday received from the liberal party a virtual guarantee of its continuance in office during the period of the national conference. At the suggestion of David Lloyd George, liberal leader and former premier, the liberal parliamentary party unanimously decided to abstain from voting on controversial amendments to the government's coal mines bill, on which the laborites already have sustained one defeat at the hands of the combined liberals and conservatives. This assured safety for Mr. MacDonald during debate over the amendments Thursday night, for which several conservatives already had proposed amendments likely to draw liberal support. The terms of Mr. Lloyd George's speech embodied a further guarantee of safety until the end of the conference. The liberals, however, made plain that the decision did not affect their liberty of action during later stages of the bill.

Rescue Farmer, Age 65, After 108 Hours in Stack

Had Lain Helpless in Hay Four Days and Five Nights; Found by Chance.

Soaked to the skin with rain and snow, suffering for lack of food and water, Eli Collins, 65, farm-hand of Glenwood, Ia., was dug out of a Glenwood, Ia., was dug out of a of the Bluffs where he had lain for four days and five nights and was taken to Council Bluffs.

Collins, for all the lack of food and exposure to freezing temperature, took a little nourishment and was in cheerful spirits soon after he was rescued.

Until two weeks ago he had been making his home with Ralph McFerrer of Glenwood. Without saying much about it, he suddenly started out on foot to hunt work. Last Thursday night he had got as far as the Harry Robertson farm, five miles south of Treynor on the Silver creek road.

By then a bruise on his left shin had begun to bother him, and he was all but exhausted, so he sought the shelter of the haystack. The next morning he was too weak to move or to attract attention to his plight.

So he lay in the stack, a thin suit and the hay his only protection against the cold and dampness. He gradually passed into a stupor, and when found Tuesday he was scarcely able to speak his name.

Had it not been that the owner of the stack had found a purchaser for the hay, Collins might have lain there until he died. But Robertson went out to show the hay to a buyer, and discovered the man.

Dr. R. H. Stephens took Collins to the hotel at Theynor, where he was warmed and fed. He soon felt able to travel and was taken to the county home near Glenwood.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

From Wednesday's Daily.—Mrs. Clifford Schafer was taken to Omaha today where she will enter the University hospital at that place for an operation. Mrs. Schafer has not been in the best of health for some time and it is hoped that the operation may give her some relief.

CHICAGOANS RECALL TOWNS' BANKRUPTCY Chicago, March 18.—This year's financial troubles of Chicago and Cook county recall misfortunes of 1937, when scores of Illinois cities and towns declared themselves bankrupt. Money troubles in that year inspired the legislature to pass an act to prevent towns and cities from issuing warrants to circulate as money, a recourse Chicago took this year.

We All Want Larger Incomes

There isn't a man or woman anywhere whose money is bringing in from 4% to 5% but who has the desire to have it earn 6% or 7%, provided it could be placed at this higher rate where it would be equally as safe as on the lower earning basis.

There isn't anything mysterious about business. Many people think it mysterious—they think of it as complicated and difficult to understand; but the fact is, business, whether it is big or little, is simply putting money to work, and successful business is the art of making this money earn an income greater than the cost of operation and the interest the business man pays for the money. An interesting phase of business operation is that an increased volume of business of, say, 25%, 50% or 100% over the usual volume will earn a much larger percentage of income than can be done on the regular volume. Take our own case as an example:

Woods Brothers Corporation can take on additional construction work from year to year to the amount of several million dollars. To do this involves additional equipment and working capital, which means cash outlay, but we make a much larger percentage of profit on this additional work. That is, the last million which we take on returns a much greater proportionate profit than the first, second, third or fourth million. We have to provide more equipment, but it does not involve any more office buildings or executives; it doesn't materially increase the overhead.

That's why we offer to the public our preferred stock which pays 7% annual dividends. Its security as an investment rests in the earnings of the corporation and the accumulated assets. Our assets now exceed $11,000,000. During the past 10 years since our business was incorporated we have paid to our stockholders regular quarterly dividends. Four years out of five we have increased our undivided profits; that is, earnings that we have made above operating costs and interest charges. Today our undivided profits exceed a million dollars. Occasionally in any business a year comes along that, through some unforeseen conditions, profits cannot be made. We have been in business 40 years and we know, as every business man of long experience knows, that every year cannot be a profitable year. Consequently we accumulate and leave in our treasury this surplus to tide us over an occasional bad year. Our present surplus would tide us over a number of such years and still allow us to pay dividends regularly to our stockholders.

With the expansion of our business we have an unusual opportunity to increase our earnings. We provide the money for the necessary outlay to handle this business through the sale of our preferred stock. This will make a safe investment for you and a larger income than you can ordinarily get elsewhere. Come in and talk with us about it, or write us.

Wood Brothers Corporation
