See a Double Motive in Jewelry Robbery

Theory Advanced Attack on Mrs. Thompson Is Part of a Plan to Discredit Police

Chicago—Mayor Thompson put it up to his police chief Tuesday to find the men who robbed his wife of $17,000 worth of jewelry and sent her to bed, prostrated by the shock. John H. Alcock, acting commissioner of police, accepted the responsibility with few words. "The whole department is working to apprehend the robbers."

Between the lines that told of the midnight holdup in front of the Thompson's Sheridan road apartment the public read two questions: "Who?" and "why?" The "why?" inspired by a theory that underworld foes of the Alcock administration took the sensational method of robbing the mayor's wife to jeopardize the commissioner's post.

"I have my own ideas about that," Alcock said. "The matter will be fully investigated."

Another theory as to the motives behind the robbery was that it was mere chance that Mrs. Thompson was the victim; that the robbers were waiting to hold up anyone who came along or possibly that they had "inspired" her because of her expensive jewels.

said nothing to indicate that they knew Mrs. Thompson's identity. They did, however, express surprise at finding a star on the chauffeur Peter O'Malley. One of the robbers, saying he was a "cop hater" threatened to kill O'Malley on general principles," but was interrupted by his companions' return with the jewels.

This was taken by Chief of Detectives Norton as proof that the men did not know who the victim was. "If they had known it was Mrs. Thompson," Norton argued, "they would have known that her chauffeur was a policeman. They were just amateurs who happened to bump into $17,000 in jewelry."

The theory persisted, however, that the holdup was planned by an organized gang to embarrass Acting Commissioner Alcock, who has directed a drive on racketeers and hoodlums. It was recalled last week the underworld was reported as gathering a million dollar fund to combat the police and especially to bring about Alcock's removal.

Alcock Made Responsible. Alcock, who was swept into the office of commissioner in the storm that followed the slaying of Jack Lingle, was made personally responsible for solution of the Thompson robbery.

"It's up to Alcock," said the mayor in a brief statement to the press. "We'll see if he can make good."

"And if he doesn't," the mayor was asked. "We'll talk about that later," he replied.

Alcock, informed of the mayor's statement, said he took full responsibility, but that he had not statement to make regarding the robbery.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Thompson, who had been in poor health for two years, was again confined to her bed with her home guarded by a squad of police. Although no official bulletins were issued.

The mayor said she was "ill from the shock of her experience" and added that he feared the benefit she had derived from a summer at the seashore had been lost.

The mayor's wife had been the victim of thefts twice before. In 1917 her jewels and money were taken in a sleeping car en route to New York and in 1922 she was robbed on an ocean liner en route to England.—State Journal.

State Federation Head Outlines Program

Joint Meetings of Groups in Six Districts is Suggested by Mrs. Nuquist

Alliance—Nebraska man power may be enlisted in helping attain the objectives of the State Federation of Women's Clubs if the program advocated here Tuesday night by Mrs. A. F. Nuquist, Osceola, state federation president, is generally adopted by the clubs of Nebraska in their thirty-third convention here.

Mrs. Nuquist outlined plans for joint meetings of the clubs in six districts with men's organizations interested in public and civic welfare.

"We have made much progress with our program, but it will take the joint efforts of men and women of Nebraska to reach a successful conclusion," she said.

The federation president declared the plan had been submitted and could be undertaken with equal success elsewhere.

Child Welfare Work. The federation, thru resolution to be submitted formally Wednesday, will urge that the legislature of 1931 legalize removal of the child welfare department of public instruction to the state welfare bureau, where it now functions.

The transfer was made by Governor Weaver. It was explained, but no legalizing act was ever passed. The resolution further urges legislative action in creation of county welfare units.

Outstanding among other things the federation must promote during the forthcoming year, the president said, are plans for the observance of the Oregon Trail memorial, and participation thru a general federation committee in the bicentennial tribute to George Washington, together with plans for promulgating the cause of world peace.

In observance of the convention theme, "The Child, the Future Citizen," the club women heard an address by Miss Lillian Johnson, representing the state department of welfare.

Peace Moves Discussed. It is quite as important that the American people support their government in pursuit of peace as it was imperative for them to stand undivided during the stress of war, according to Mrs. Ben Hooper of Oshkosh, Wis., chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs committee on international relations.

Discussing the Briand-Kellogg peace pact, Mrs. Hooper said it was adopted by the American nation in renunciation of war as a national policy.

"That treaty," she said, "does not furnish the method of settlement of controversies, but it does do away with the possibility of war by saying disagreements shall not be arbitrated upon the field of battle."

Advocating the world court as a "clearing house" for international troubles, Mrs. Hooper described as "absurd" the contention of politicians and statesmen that "they want a world court but not the present one embracing fifty-four nations."

Two activities of the state federation were reviewed by Mrs. I. S. Magowan, Gordon, secretary of the scholarship loan fund, and Miss Helen Tuttle, Lincoln, chairwoman of the endowment fund.

The former committee, the convention was advised, had total resources on Oct. 1 of $9,429.66, and had received scholarships from half a dozen Nebraska schools. An unnamed donor gave $500 toward scholarship work.

Mayor Earl D. Mallory extended the official welcome to the city of Alliance to conventioners Tuesday night, along with Mrs. B. M. Scotten, who spoke as host of the Alliance club. Mrs. W. W. Whitfield, Lincoln, state vice president, responded. A reception to federation women by the Alliance club followed the evening meeting.—State Journal.

ROAD FINANCING TALKED

Washington—Where to get the money with which to build roads was a question propounded and answered in varying phrases and languages Tuesday by delegates to the sixth International Road congress. In the end, they tentatively approved proposals for national governments to grant loans and subsidies to their states and for the use of general tax revenues and bond issues to cover the expenses of building and maintaining highways.

Financing was the first general question to receive the attention of the road men from sixty countries. The finance policies reported upon must receive the agreement of all the representatives at the final plenary session Friday.

SHOWS GOOD RECORD

The Nehawka Farmers Oil Co., which is owned by the farm residents of that section of Cass county, has shown a very fine volume of business for the period from January 1st to the present time, their business showing an increase of some thirty-four per cent over a similar period in 1929. Last year was one that was very pleasing, but the great stride made this year is more pleasing to the officers and stockholders of the company. The directors at their last meeting voted to have an additional tank installed that they may have more room for storage which the growing business of their company demands.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Copy for this Department furnished by County Agent

Represent Nebraska at St. Louis. Glen Henger and Warren Fager of Weeping Water, who placed first at the state fair in dairy demonstrations, will represent Nebraska at the National Dairy Exposition at St. Louis, October 11-19.

In their demonstration the boys stress the importance of production of clean milk, and the part that proper cooling facilities play in this production. Keith Besack, also a member of this dairy calf club, will attend the National Dairy show and will have two Ayrshire calves on exhibit.

D. D. Waincott, county agent, and S. Ray Smith, local leader of the dairy club will accompany the boys to assist with final coaching. They plan to drive through to St. Louis, leaving Weeping Water about Saturday noon, October 11th. Definite time has not been assigned for the demonstration, but it will be either Oct. 13 or 14. Results will be broadcast, so listen in on St. Louis stations.

Feeding Wheat to Sheep.

Several lots of feeder lambs on a wheat test will be one of the attractions at Rotters' Day, the fall livestock meeting at the College of Agriculture in Lincoln, October 17th. This test is one of very few that have been conducted in the entire country on the feeding value of wheat for lambs.

The lambs were bought on August 1st for six cents a pound. One group is getting shelled corn and alfalfa, another group whole wheat and alfalfa, and another group ground wheat and alfalfa. A. D. Weber of the Animal Husbandry Department, in charge of the experiment and will be ready to explain it on October 17.

Convenient Home Equipment and Accounts.

Forty clubs with an enrollment of 710 women have started work on the Convenient Home Equipment and Accounts project. The first series of leaders' training meetings have been held with training centers established at the following places and with the following women acting as group chairmen:

- Weeping Water—Mrs. G. R. Evenden.
- Alvo—Mrs. Frank Taylor.
- Murdock—Mrs. R. O. Kuehn.
- Louisville—Mrs. Albert Shelhorn.
- Murray—Mrs. Major Hill.
- Mrs. H. L. Gayer, Plattsmouth, county chairman of extension clubs for this year, has assumed her position. With such a large enrollment this should be the best year yet with extension work.

4-H Winter Clubs.

It is again time to think about Keep Well and Hot Lunch clubs for winter projects. Schools having five or more pupils between 10-20 years of age can easily meet the requirements of a standard 4-H club. The Rope Club project is also a good winter project and may be used as a means of creating community interest.

For those interested in Hot Lunch or Keep Well projects there is supplementary material available to be used in conducting a special health program.

Get in touch with the county agents and let them cooperate in putting on a health program in your school.

School Lunch.

The school lunch oftentimes becomes a real problem, for it must be a satisfactory supplement to the other two meals of the day and at the same time furnish its proportion of the food needed for proper growth and development. May be the following receipts will help add variety to the school lunch:

Raisin-Banana Sandwich. Mash a ripe banana until it is smooth and creamy and spread it on thin slices of buttered raisin bread. Sprinkle lightly with salt.

Peanut Brittle Sandwich. If the peanut brittle is dry, put it thru a food chopper, but if moist, roll it out with a rolling pin until powdered. Mix to a paste with cream, butter, and spread between thin slices of white or whole wheat bread.

Date, Peanut Butter Sandwich. Crop dates very fine and mix with enough peanut butter to make a paste which is easy to spread. Spread on buttered slices of whole wheat or graham bread.

Besides sandwiches, raw vegetables such as celery, tomatoes, carrots or head lettuce and fruits either raw or stewed, help to make an appetizing lunch. Simple sweets such as dates, figs, jellies, preserves, raisins, cookies, cakes or candy always please the children. No meal or lunch is complete without the addition of liquids. Milk, cocoa, or soups are best for the school lunch.—D. D. Waincott, Cass Co. Extension Agent. Jessie H. Baldwin, Ass't. Co. Extension Agent.

From Wednesday's Daily—This afternoon Mrs. Ida Thurber, head of the democratic women's organization in the first congressional district, together with E. F. Snavely, prominent democratic leader of Lincoln, came to this city to look after organization work for the coming fall election, particularly in the interest of Senator Hitchcock and Governor Bryan.

Mrs. Thurber has a ladies headquarters in the Hotel Cornhusker at Lincoln while Mr. Snavely is engaged in the regular headquarters at the Lincoln hotel and both have been kept very busy in lining up the work for the last weeks of the campaign and in seeing that the democratic voters as well as the independent republicans are awakened to the importance of the coming election of congress, state officers and members of the legislature in order to insure legislation that may give relief from the present condition.
