BRITAIN HAS HARD STORM. London—Harsh gales which had lashed the English channel and the Irish sea for twenty-four hours swept up to the north of England Thursday, freest storm of the season. The winds abated somewhat, however, in both the channel and the Irish sea, and ships prepared to resume the journeys that had been held up for two days.

No casualties were reported to shipping, but tug took in two the British steamer Swiftway, which called for help while wallowing in the high seas off the southwest coast of Ireland. As the storm spread to the north, where snow and squalls are predicted, the highest wind was reported in Liverpool, with a figure of 73 miles an hour. The wind occasionally reached a velocity of 70 miles an hour in the south of England, greatly impeding channel traffic and alarmed passengers. Many boats were late and some were slightly damaged.

A small vessel was feared to have gone down after the Bemridge life boat searched for hours in the vicinity where it had been reported drifting helplessly in the channel. No trace was found of the boat, which was not identified.

SUGGESTS A DECALOG FOR BUSINESS LEADERS. Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—Ten commandments for business men struggling with the depression were suggested tonight in an address by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce. They were:

"Don't blame the depression for everything which has marred the tranquility of the economic scene.

"Don't compare prices with competitors.

"Don't fall into the fallacy of expecting the wage earner to bear the brunt of readjustment. Talk of drastic slashes in American living standards borders closely on lunacy.

"Don't cut loose from associated activities in business.

"Don't ignore the amazing power of the new technology.

"Don't out market research.

"Don't overlook the stabilizing value of foreign markets.

"Don't fall into the perils of the mass production mania. Quantity operations are by no means assurance of quantity profits.

"Don't overlook the perils of obsolete equipment.

"Don't be stampeted by unfounded rumors."

Vanderbilt Charges Butler 'Misquoted'

Hints That One Would Have Been Embarrassed by Court-Martial—Breaks Silence

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 12.—The charge that General Smedley D. Butler, fiery marine corps officer, had misquoted him in making public the "confidential" story of the now famous "hit-and-run" incident was made here today by Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

Vanderbilt, in making the charge, broke a silence he had maintained since the general's statement, purporting to have quoted Vanderbilt as describing the Italian dictator as a "hit-and-run" driver was called sharply to attention of Washington, D. C. officials and very nearly forced the general into a court-martial.

Although Vanderbilt declined to reveal any names, he said there was a widely known third man at the November meeting of the Affiliated Lecture bureaus in New York, and hinted that General Butler's court-martial not been called off, and had details of the meeting been publicly aired, the revelations might have been "very embarrassing" to this mysterious person.

At the meeting of the bureaus, Vanderbilt said, he was asked to tell some intimate story of his experience—a story not suitable for publication.

"I told the incident concerning Mussolini, believing it would be treated confidentially," he said. "I never said that Mussolini declared, 'What is one life in the affairs of state?' after his car hit a child."
