"Hundreds upon hundreds of telegrams and letters have come to me and I have read each one and will treasure them always, but many of them contained no address and some were signed only with the first names of men who were intimate friends of Knute," she said. "So thru the press I am taking this opportunity to thank the thousands who were so very thoughtful and sympathetic and the multitude of others who held a world of sorrow and sympathy deep within their hearts."

Repeal Bill Vetoed by Governor Bryan

Says It Has Effect of Nullification, to Which He Is Unwilling to Subscribe

Springfield—The bill to repeal Illinois' prohibition enforcement acts was vetoed by Governor Emmerson. It attempts to nullify the provisions of the eighteenth amendment, he explained in a message accompanying his veto. "I am not for nullification. Destructive principles which do not protect the lives and homes of all our citizens will not afford the solution of the liquor problem."

The bill had been the subject of heated controversy for three months and Governor Emmerson was besieged daily by delegations of "wets" and "drys." In the earlier discussion of the governor's message the prohibition referendum of last Nov. 4 was frequently mentioned. The three questions of public policy were repeal of the eighteenth amendment, modification of the Volstead act and repeal of the Illinois prohibition act. All three were voted favorably.

"In my opinion," said the governor, "a majority of the thinking people of this state are dissatisfied with the conditions which have followed the eighteenth amendment and the enforcement acts under it. But I am equally satisfied that the American people do not want and will not attempt the correction of these evils by wiping out all regulatory liquor legislation."

Governor Emmerson stated that if the bill contained a referendum provision so that the people "with a full knowledge of the consequences could vote on the wiping out of all state liquor legislation," without regard to the constitution of the United States, "that he would feel compelled to sign the bill."

The state referendum vote of last fall was considered as a whole by the governor, and the intent of the republican party in promising to abide by the result of the referendum was that "national action should precede state action."

The veto brought down a "hall of comment," "drys" complimenting the governor on remaining "true to the Lincoln tradition," and "wets" charging that he had "repudiated the will of the people."

REPORT CAPONE WORRIED
Chicago—The grapevine of rumor brought the tale to police that Al Capone had enlisted his aides in the search for Benjamin McWilliams, an attorney with forty years' practice in Chicago, who has been missing since March 29. The officers understood that a close friend of Capone had asked him to keep a watch for the missing man. They heard from another unconfirmable source that Capone, hearing of McWilliams' absence, had exclaimed "something's gone wrong here."

Definitely in the search were operatives of the "secret six," undercover organization allied with the association of commerce. They joined with two detectives detailed exclusively to the case. It was not until Friday that word of McWilliams' flight became public. Last seen in a restaurant on Halsted street, he was believed to be carrying a large sum of money. The theory was advanced he might have been kidnaped or slain.

INQUIRERS WILL CONVENE

New York—Counsel Seabury and Chairman Hofstadter of the legislative committee to investigate New York City official life plan to meet shortly to arrange procedure and staff personnel for the inquiry. The whole committee is scheduled to meet Wednesday or Thursday to approve the preliminaries and then recess for two weeks, during which Mr. Seabury will choose his staff and take care of other duties now on his hands.

He has still to dispose of charges against District Attorney Crain, which he is investigating as commissioner for the governor, and to advance as far as possible the appellate inquiry into New York's magistrates' courts. Police Commissioner Mulrooney prepared an order to put 300 to 350 new policemen on the vice squad which was disorganized by transfers and prosecutions after disclosures of graft and framing in the appellate inquiry. He was unable to obtain volunteers and he attributed that circumstance to the disrepute in which the vice squad had fallen.

SERVICE TO BE SPEEDED

Washington—Three minutes less than twenty-four hours will be required for coast to coast mail service beginning next Monday. The post-office department announced a new schedule whereby postcoaches leaving Newark westbound at 10:45 a. m. next morning Los Angeles at 7:42 next morning. Allowing for the three hours difference in time, the trip actually will consume 23 hours and 57 minutes.

For the next few months, postal officials said, passengers will not be carried over that portion of the route requiring night flying. The cut in flying time was said to have been made possible by use of planes capable of maintaining an average speed of 140 miles per hour from Kansas City to Los Angeles. The eastbound mail will leave Los Angeles at 3:05 p. m. Pacific time and arrive in Newark airport at 8:44 p. m. the following day, eastern standard time.

France Urged to Link Colonies in Caribbean

Single Administration Proposed for Martinique, Guiana and Guadeloupe

Paris, April 16.—France, like the United States, is considering the advisability of consolidating its colonies in the Caribbean under a single administration.

One of the principal objects of President Hoover's recent visit to Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands was to further his plan for bringing these, with other insular possessions under the authority of the new bureau of the Department of the Interior.

France is being urged to go even further and appoint a single Governor-General for the colonies of Martinique, Guadeloupe and Guiana, each of which now has a separate chief.

The principal argument brought forth by the advocates of centralized administration is that the economic welfare of all three colonies would be furthered by coordinating their agricultural and commercial policies.

These two islands and a small section of the South American mainland are known as "old colonies" because they are among the few remnants of the first French colonial empire which almost entirely disappeared when Canada and India were lost to France more than a century ago.

Politically they occupy a privileged position among the French dominions overseas, for they, with a few other old colonies such as Reunion, French India, Senegal, and Cochin China, have their own deputies and senators in parliament.

Their inhabitants have enjoyed the legal status of French citizens since 1848. But the establishment of free parliamentary institutions in these territories has not been easy and has given rise to parties and factions whose disagreements are sometimes violent, a fact which was called to the attention of the French people during the recent trial at Cayenne, the capital of Guiana.

French opinion is by no means unanimous as to whether local prejudices and party strifes can be sufficiently overcome to warrant the successful inauguration of unified administration. Two organizations, the Martinique and Colonial League and the French Colonial Institute, have petitioned the Ministry of the Colonies to make the experiment.

On the other hand Henry Berenger, Senator from Guadeloupe is vigorously opposed to the project. One of the most difficult points to regulate would be which of the colonies should serve as headquarters for the Governor-General.

The authority of the Governor of Guiana has recently been strengthened by giving him special powers in the newly established administrative district of the south known as Initial.

With public attention being centered on overseas dominions this summer by the International Colonial Exposition at Paris some definite action on the proposed consolidation is highly probable.
