THE LIFE WORTH LIVING

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lidgett and heir son, Henry, a lad of about sixhigh school, live on what is known as River View farm four miles east of Union, and from this place Henry walks to town to attend school, and counts it a very nice and refreshing walk morning and evening, requiring about an hour for morning and evening. Mr. Lidgett has just completed a new cave for the storing of the eatibles for the winter, and the canned fruit. While their farm contains less than twenty acres, they have every thing desirable, fruits of all kinds, apples and peaches, and grapes without number. Their garden supplies them and they sell much to the trade. Their chickens and the cows also add much to the liv-ing and while this requires much hard work, Mr. and Mrs. Lidgett and Henry work merrily at the matters of raising the gardens, and fruits We make it our practice to as well as caring for the stock and furnish absolutely the very are much pleased with their home which provides them a good living
