Paul in Jerusalem
 Acts 21:27-29.

Paul's ministry at Ephesus ended in a great excitement when Demetrius caused quite an uproar, as his business was falling off, because of Paul's preaching the gospel and people turning from the worship of Diana, to Jesus Christ. After the uproar was stilled, Paul cauled the disciples, a farewell was taken, and he is again on the road. A personal diary of Paul's travels would be interesting reader. A world traveler like Paul would have many incidents to relate, and many wayside experiences, too.

Retracing his steps through Macedonia, three months in Greece, during which time the letters to Romans and Galatians are dictated. His face is set for the Holy City, and all the warnings, the prophecies and tears about what is to befall him at Jerusalem cannot change his mind. He must be at Jerusalem to celebrate Pentecost. He has also collected a great deal of money for the poor of the home church.

A study of the map of Paul's route at this time is very interesting. As he sails by Ephesus, he sends word from Miletus to Ephesus and has the Elders come and meet him. His words to the Elders are very touching. Re-counting some things that happened there, to which these people had been witnesses, and having a premonition of what was awaiting him, he makes this bold declaration: "But none of these things move me. A very terrific scene is enacted, as he kneels with them in a last prayer. A never-to-be-forgotten moment. They did not meet again. Another wayside experience on the way is recorded in Acts 21:4-5, which closes with a prayer service.

was visiting with his friend, Thomas Nelson and others. A. G. Johnson of Plattsmouth was a visitor in Murray on Monday of this week, coming down to secure some wheat from the elevators for the feeding of his chickens.

Earl Lancaster and the family were guests for the day on last Sunday at the home of Jarvis B. Lancaster and family at their farm home east of Murray, all enjoying the occasion very much.

Mrs. Henry C. Long has been very poorly from a severe attack of shingles which has given this excellent woman much suffering and while everything possible has been done she still suffers greatly.

F. Copenhaver and daughters, Misses Ruth and Lorene of Syracuse were visiting in Murray for the day on last Sunday and were guests at the home of the sister of Mr. Copenhaver, Mrs. J. H. Farris and family.

On last Monday C. F. Murray, living on the highway south of Murray, shelled and delivered the corn from last year to the Hill elevator. Royal Smith also shelled some new corn which was delivered to the same elevator on last Monday.

W. G. Boedecker and wife and their daughter, Miss Flora Jane, were guests for the day on last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin E. Johnson of Omaha, where they enjoyed the day splendidly. Mr. Johnson is the vice president of the Stockyards National bank of South Omaha.

B. G. Wurl and cousin, Henry Martins, who is home from the west and visiting the old home at Plattsmouth and as with Mr. E. S. Tutt were school boys together and school chums. Messrs. Wurl and Martins were down visiting with their friend, Mr. Tutt on last Monday afternoon.

A large number of the friends of L. C. Horcher were at his home on last Sunday and very properly celebrated the passing of his sixty-third birthday anniversary. Mr. Horcher, who has just completed the planting of his corn crop will depart in a short time for Colorado Springs, where his son Jimmie, and daughter, Nora, are now recuperating and resting their health at a sanitarium. They are not as yet decided as to where they will remain there for the winter or go to some point in New Mexico.

Many Attend Funeral Sunday.
 A large number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Patterson attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Patterson which was held at the Otterbein church on last Sunday, which was conducted by the pastor of the church, The United Brethren, Rev. Engstrom and assisted by the Rev. Murphy of the Methodist church of Louisville.

Undergoes Operation at Hospital.
 Mrs. J. D. Wurtman of Leigh, a sister of George E. Nickles, who has been in poor health for some time and who was taken to the Methodist hospital for treatment of a kidney ailment, it was deemed better that an operation be had. Mr. Nickles and wife were over on last Sunday when the ordeal was had as well as other relatives. Mrs. Wurtman was very ill following the operation and Mr.

Nickles was over on Monday afternoon to visit the sister. Her many friends are hoping that she may soon be rallying and on the road to recovery and future good health.

Ladies to Meet Friday.
 A very interesting program will be had at the Presbyterian church on the coming Friday when there will be a special quartette render the very popular hymn "The Little Brown Church in the Valley" which will be sang by Mesdames John Vandine, C. H. Boedecker, Margaret Todd and W. G. Boedecker. This will follow a very descriptive narrative of her visit at the "Historical Little Brown Church," at Nebraska, Iowa.

There Mr. and Mrs. Harrison L. Gayer visited when they were in that vicinity a few weeks since. This meeting will be known as the thank offering meeting.

Spends Winter in South.
 Mr. A. A. McKeonolds of Nebraska was a visitor in Murray on last Monday and announced his intention of spending the winter in Florida. They have a house at which they used last year to make a trip to Los Angeles and made their home in it while away, and this is their intention, so Mr. McKeonolds announced, to use the house for the trip and home while away.

Had Knee Badly Injured.
 Elbert Keil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Keil, who has been over an injury to one of his knees some time since, was taken to Omaha to the hospital where he received treatment and as the fever could not be restrained, an operation was had on Tuesday afternoon at 10 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Keil expect to be present at the operation.

Murray Study Club.
 The Study club will meet with Mrs. Stewart Nov. 19, instead of with Mrs. Smith. Members please take notice.

Given Surprise on Birthday.
 Miss Mae Wilson entertained at the home of the late Mrs. Patterson of the young people of Murray, friends of her sister, Miss Nita Wilson, where they gave the latter young lady a real surprise when they gathered to celebrate the passing of her birthday anniversary. The young people enjoyed the evening with games and music and had a wonderful time and at an appropriate hour were served by a very fine supper, with a wonderful birthday cake.

Mrs. D. C. Rhoden assisted in the serving. The young people attended a very fine show and departed for their homes, sending the "Happy Birthdays" to all the young people.

President is Silent on Matter of Taxation

Indicates Coming Budget Message on How to Meet the Needs of the People.

Washington, Three bustling busy weeks ahead of President Hoover, days and nights filled with conferences and studies from which will come momentous decisions. First of all he must per- two vital messages to congress, one dealing with the government's finances and the other making recommendations for general legislation. Then there are appointments to be made. Two tariff commission posts and two men must be selected for ten or fifteen places in the federal judiciary.

Overshadowing other considerations in the weeks ahead, the president said, is the preparation of his budget message. Usually considered secondary to his annual message, the executive now regards it as predominant because of the "emergency measures" to be presented in it. Large in these considerations is the question of the constitutionality of stand on higher taxes. By the time congress gathers, Dec. 7, Mr. Hoover expects to have decided. He has carefully weighed his views up to now as to the best method of stemming the tide of increasing millions between federal receipts and expenditures. The president spoke informally Tuesday, in an almost conversational tone of what will occur in his most daring the next few weeks. He has been saying to say of taxes.

He has been weighing the federal income books closely. They show a deficit climbing toward $100 million for one-third of the full fiscal year. In one effort to offset the future flow of red ink, he already has cut about $50 million from the budget requests of government departments.

Radio, Console, built in speaker, with new lamp, and storage battery complete with screen grid and power tube, with 6.0 dry cell batteries, complete 6 tubes, ready to go. Come and hear it. Price $48.00. See Sample, phone 299-72, 1128-27.

High School Pantries to Honor Armistice Day

Mrs. E. H. Westcott, Regent of the Daughters of American Revolution is the speaker.

From Wednesday's Daily. The convention program at the high school this morning recognized the significance of the day as sacred in the annals of our country's history and was one of the finest of many excellent programs presented to the student body under the auspices of the student council. The program was arranged by a committee composed of Louis Knoflick, Lois Bestor, Marvin Tritsch and Robert Hall with Madge Garpet as presiding officer. For the occasion a special address was given, delivered by Mrs. E. H. Westcott, long prominent in civic and club affairs in the state and now regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution of Nebraska. It was appropriate that the address was given by the head of this great patriotic organization of women so long identified with interests of our country. Mrs. Westcott was welcomed to the high school by the students as a well known friend and mother of two graduates, E. H. S. whose names are outstanding in the lists of Plattsmouth's alumni.

Mrs. Westcott called the attention of the students to the celebration of the first news of Armistice as it reached Plattsmouth by telegram in 1918 and described the celebration which took place. She impressed upon the students that the United States has always fought for ideals and made a strong plea for national defense adequate to defend ourselves against aggressor nations. She urged the students to determine their place in our country as large a return as possible for what is being invested in them in their school days. In a very interesting manner, the speaker looked ahead to future years and pictured many leading students of the school as occupying places of importance and responsibility in affairs of government.

Mrs. Westcott's address was one of the finest patriotic appeals to which the student body has listened for many years and the students were glad to see Mrs. Westcott consenting to speak to them.

Memories of the war days were briefly revived in music by a medley of the familiar songs of 1915 played by the piano number by Anna Margaret McCarty of the sophomore class.

The quartet composed of David Robinson, George Adam, Otto Skodja and James Nowacek with Miss Williams as accompanist, sang three numbers: "History of Our Flag," "The Boys of the Old Brigade" and a special number composed by Miss Williams and sung by Miss Williams.

To close the program, the entire student body sang two verses of the national anthem led by Miss Williams with Miss Baile at the piano.

Promptly at eleven o'clock, students thronged the school grounds to see the flag and stood with bowed heads for one minute in tribute to the soldier dead.

YOUTH IS CHARGED WITH TAKING CORN

Gerald Wiles, giving Weeping Water as his home, was arrested Tuesday morning when it was found in county court charging petit larceny in the theft of five bushels of corn from the Mike Ramold farm northwest of Nebraska City. When questioned by Sheriff Carl Ryder he admitted taking the corn from a basket of corn from the Ramold farm.

Wiles told the sheriff that he, in company with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eustice, were traveling through the country trading horses and camped near the Ramold farm Monday night. Tuesday morning his horse got into the corn field and ate some corn. They left early and were on their way to Kansas when arrested seven miles south of the city on the highway.

Young Wiles said the seven head of horses were his property and that the Eustices were traveling with him. Only one of the horses got into the corn field and ate some corn. They were not taken to the court house but remained with the horses. Nebraska City News Press.

TRAPPING SEASON TO START

The trappers of this section will make a very neat sum this year in the trapping of fur-bearing animals, are awaiting the date when the season will open.

The open season on raccoon and opossum starts on November 15th. After which date the traps may be set. The season closes on February 28th.

The trapping season on muskrat opens in eastern Nebraska on December 1st while in the western portion of the state the season will not open until January 1st and closing March 31, 1932.

OBITUARY

Florence Rosella Rusterholts was born at Murray, Nebraska, on May 15, 1871, and departed this life on November 5, 1931, at the age of 60 years, 3 months, 15 days.

On July 21, 1909, she was married to William Patterson, and has always lived in the home where she passed away.

She united with the United Brethren church at the age of twenty. She always remained a member of this church.

She leaves to mourn her departure, the husband, William Patterson, and two sisters, Mrs. E. F. Oaks of Fairbury, Nebraska, and Mrs. M. E. Fleming of Plattsmouth, Nebraska, an adopted sister, Mrs. Gertrude Beckner of Murray, Nebraska, a cousin, Mrs. Arthur Schoeman of Louisville, Nebraska, a number of nieces and nephews and a host of friends.

The father, mother, one sister, and one brother, who preceded her in death, are all deceased.

I take this method of thanking all those who were so kind during the sickness and death of my beloved wife, for the flowers that beautiful expression of sympathy, and for the many kind acts of everyone, and for the songs that were so beautifully rendered.

Wm. Patterson.

Farm Board Draws Attack from Beck

Congressman From Pennsylvania Is Critical of Its Efforts to Aid Agriculture

Chicago—Congressman Beck of Pennsylvania delivered a funeral oration over the federal farm board and sought to "derive from the unhappy experiences of the dead some useful lessons for the living." Beck spoke on "The menace of bureaucracy" at the Chicago board of trade's dinner to business and industry.

"The farm relief scheme is dead," Beck said. He said that congress has been the face of the farm relief lobby and its political advocates in congress, may continue its functions for a little time for purposes of ill-qualification, but even a corpse needs embalming; but the coming congress should bury the present experiment in farm relief.

"The seventy-first congress vainly proposed a stupendous expenditure of the public moneys to mope up the inflating tide of grain and cotton, which had been produced by our farmers in excess of any possible consumption. The world knows the result and the farm board confessed its failure to do better."

"Tired by the arduous test of experience, this farm board sought to minimize speculation and became the greatest speculator in grain and cotton; it sought to stabilize prices and it drove them downward, far below the cost of production; it sought to prevent a surplus and only increased the surplus; it sought to decrease the planting acreage and only increased it; if sought to secure orderly marketing and, with the government as the biggest speculator in wheat and cotton by untrifled means, the orderly marketing became disorderly and precedent. It sought to prevent depression in agriculture, and it has brought about the greatest depression in our history. It sought to prevent the methods of distribution and only succeeded in imposing upon the people of the United States at least one-half of the present government deficit."

PRINCE SPURS SUMMONS

Belgrade—Spurring the summons of King Carol, Prince Nicholas of Romania and his new bride, Mrs. Jana Lucia Deleta, were understood in court circles to be staying at a villa near Bucharest where they have been since their elopement. King Carol, brother of the prince, was said to have requested Nicholas to come to the palace in Bucharest, but the latter sent his regrets. He refused to risk his brother's displeasure at being defied and presided over the regular meeting of Romania's supreme military council, instead.

Court circles now believe that the prince will be up to Carol, who of course could order the prince's arrest or take any more drastic measures. He is not expected to act harshly for his affection for his younger brother is proverbial and he has often said "I owe the throne to him."

With responsibility holding the details of the marriage in Romania, the king's secret sentiments have not leaked out but he is expected to persist in attempting to annul the marriage. This can be done by destruction of the marriage and denial of the same.

It is expected that the king will attempt to annul the marriage. This can be done by destruction of the marriage and denial of the same.

Progressives to Push Change in House Rules

Shift in Power from Republican to Democratic Will Not Affect to Break Bill Control

Washington—The intention of Progressives in the House of Representatives to make a determined stand for liberalization of the rules will not in any way be affected by a shift in power from the Republican to the Democratic side.

The movement has had powerful support from Progressives on the Democratic side as well as on the Republican, who are determined to require concessions from whichever party holds the reins after the House is organized. The difference between the two parties remains so small that the Progressive group in either camp continues to hold the balance of power in its hand.

The primary object of all suggested changes is to break the hold of the majority on legislation. It is now almost an impossibility to obtain consideration on the floor of the House for any measure which the majority party wishes to block. The first of the proposals is to modify the "discharge rule," which rule is intended to make it possible to bring a bill onto the floor for a vote if the committee to which it has been committed fails to report it out. It is now so worded, however, that it is practically useless. It requires the signature of 318 members, a majority of the House, to bring the bill out of the committee and this in turn places the measure on the calendar, where, without preferential status, it may remain.

The reformers demand the rule be changed to permit discharge of the committee on signature of a petition by 100 members only. They also insist this action should give the bill preferential status on the calendar.

The other important change demanded is in relation to committees. At present a committee can consider a bill only after being called together by the chairman and provided a majority of the members of the committee are present.

It is proposed that any three members of a committee could constitute a quorum and could consider and report out legislation to the House whether called by the chairman or not.

Behind this move is a strong group of liberal members of Congress.

For 20-Lane Highway from Coast to Coast

Inventor Would Use Motorists' Pennies for Road—Would Employ Three Million Men

New York, Nov. 10.—A man who used to figure out how to kill German armen now has an idea to restore prosperity. He would use motorists' pennies to help pay for an eight billion dollar super-highway that would criss-cross the continent.

A. S. Baldwin, who designed an anti-aircraft gun adopted by Uncle Sam during the world war, believes his plan would set the wheels of industry whirling, resulting in employment "equivalent to putting three million men to work at salaries averaging two thousand dollars a year for 10 years."

He announced he has submitted the proposal to President Hoover, the 43 governors, and congressional leaders. An issue of treasury notes would take care of the first cost of the road. Passenger cars traveling over the 14,300-mile highway would pay toll of a cent a mile until the undertaking were paid for.

There is nothing picayunish about the "Baldwin super highway." It would be five hundred feet wide with 10 traffic lanes running in each direction. If you wished to go 30 miles an hour, you would drive on a 30-mile-an-hour lane. There would be other lanes for 50, 70, 90 and 110-mile speeds.

It would be really a highway system, not a single road. There would be direct east and west routes across the continent, as well as a number of north and south arteries.

By the brilliant lighting, the road would serve as a continuous guide for planes. The fast freight transportation would move factories out of the cities to the open country, and deal a death blow to slums, Baldwin believes.—World-Herald.

Make Friday the Thirteenth Your Lucky Day

They say that Friday, the 13th, is an unlucky day. It will be your lucky day if you buy shoes at Fetzter's. The full purchase price will be returned on every 13th pair of shoes sold on this day, regardless as to price or whether man's, woman's or child's shoe. Each sale during the day will be recorded in rotation and at the close of the day a check will be sent to the purchaser of every 13th pair. This is an opportunity worth considering!
