Canon Petter Installed as St. Luke's Rector

Bishop Ernest Vincent Shayler Inducts Rector Into Charge of Local Parish.

The Right Reverend Bishop Shayler of the Episcopal Diocese of Nebraska officiated at St. Luke's church Sunday morning when the Rev. Canon Petter was inducted into the rectorship of the parish. Immediately following the processional hymn, the well known "The Church's One Foundation," the incumbent proceeded to the altar, where the bishop read the words of institution, then followed a charge of prayers and a blessing was pronounced upon the newly inducted clergyman who then offered the appointed prayers for the effectiveness of his ministry and Divine blessing upon the congregation. The bishop preached upon the ministry of reconciliation. He interpreted this word as relating to international relationships and also to the life of the family. He showed that there is a great place for religious interest to bring about lasting peace among the nations of the world and that the work of the ministry included the whole range of human relations also, the harmony which can exist between pastor and people and between members of the family means success in the undertakings of either group working as a loyal, united fellowship.

ROME'S TIME-WORN FACE BEING SCOURED

Rome, Nov. 8. — Time-stained stones that form the public buildings of Rome are to gleam with a pristine whiteness. Instructions for a cleaning up by sand-blast have been issued, the work to be finished by October, 1932, the 10th anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome.

Armistice Day Brings Thoughts of Then and Now

Close of World War Brought Earth Wide Rejoicing—War Clouds Darken 1931

The drizzling rain, a fitting setting to the Armistice day anniversary, a recollection of 1918, both in France and in Plattsmouth, where the ardent and enthusiastic dampen the weather man failed to dampen the ardor and enthusiasm of the armistice forces of the nation of the frenzied civilian population delirious with joy.

November 11, 1918, a day that the world will always recall as the end of armed strife that had since 1914 swept Europe with bloodshed and death, was one that brought perhaps the greatest rejoicing that any day in modern history can recall. To those who were in service, and especially those in the A. E. F. or the naval forces in European waters, the day marked the end of the untiring watch, that unceasing march onward to the front where death had swept with shot, shell and gas the lines of French, English, Americans, Belgians, Italians, Germans and Austrians. The sudden and dramatic collapse of the central powers had come so quickly that to the troops in the field it was almost beyond belief.

Along the lines which in a few months had swept eastward as the great army that Kaiser Wilhelm had sent forth, drew back nearer and nearer to their own land, the American forces, completing their undying victory of the Argonne, rested on the hills which were the most objective, holding the Sedan railroad, the key to the German transportation system under the range of their guns. The sentiment of 1871 led the Americans to withhold their advance into Sedan that the French troops might occupy the city. The French troops read Napoleon III had been forced to surrender his empire to Blumark. Those troops that had swept forward to victory, found but little of the joy of the celebration aside from the burden lifted, that on the morrow there was to be no more offensive, no more of death on the battle field, but only the thought, "We do go Home." A great many of those troops were in a few weeks to take up the long, long march forward to the Rhine, to rest for a few months in the joys and pleasures of Ooblenz and the other cities and villages of the beautiful valley, where Christmas trees, smoking pipes and the famous Rhine wine, were to replace the scenes of death and ruin.

The writer was not one of those who had swept across the war beaten fields or to journey to the land of legend and lore, but was domiciled in a nice muddy camp under the sweeping skies of France. The news came to troops awaiting the call onward to the front and Metz as a most happy message and then came the celebration. A city of normally 75,000 French, swollen with some 20,000 Belgian refugees and then 200,000 Americans—what a town! As evening shadows fell, dull came was thrown away, the iron discipline of war days was lifted a little, the command, "soldier you can't go in there," was forgotten, those who perhaps were celebrating well but not wisely, were forgiven by officers who were one with the boys on this gala occasion. The place and public was the center of activities of the celebration with a dozen American bands playing, great fires around which there were thousands dancing, songs of all nations heard in rejoicing, a picture that cannot be forgotten.

But then there was the other side, the home where never more was to come the sound of a voice so loved, only a picture, a medal or a certificate of some "grateful" government, a grave in yonder battle field, a memory in some French, American or German home of a sacrifice, a place never to be filled.

Today we pause, we gaze into a far distant land where two oriental nations are girding for mastery of that part of the world, a great empire, a well equipped and organized as any in the world, and as their eyes are upon the "pete" but whose training by western nations has taught them the use and power of armed force.

Will our war, closing November 11, 1918, be the last? We wonder.

Say Auto Industry Increasing Its Pace

$120,000,000 Worth of New Cars Needed in 90 Days—Means Increased Employment

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 10.—The Free Press says the automobile industry will produce approximately 120 million dollars' worth of new cars in the next 60 days and that thereafter production will proceed at an even greater pace.
Operations during the next eight months, the paper says, will be at levels ranging upward from 25 per cent above those of the past two months.
"The leanest period of probably considerably more than a decade is declared to be definitely passed," the paper says, giving leaders of the automobile business, bankers, economists and business men of other lines as its authority.
"For immediate needs, the automobile industry will have to produce at least 200 thousand cars between now and the opening of the national automobile show in New York, January 9," the paper says. This figure, it explains, is based upon new car requirements of a four-car average for each of the 50 thousand dealers which, the paper says, is conservative.—World-Herald.

The attendants said the disease was very peculiar, in that the girl failed to respond to any and all treatments. She became unconscious about two weeks ago and never regained consciousness. She is survived by her parents and a sister. Funeral services will be held here Tuesday.
