

Cornelius Vanderbilt left his highly pedigreed police dog to guard some luggage and a couple of overcoats and when he got back the luggage, the overcoats and the police dog were all gone. Still, the dog may make a good guard after he has had some experience and has been through a few ordeals.

BOWERS IS UNDER GUARD

Denver—Police Monday night were fearful of another raid on the home of Benjamin P. Bower, bakery manager, released Sunday after being held for five days by kidnapers. Still professing that the real motive for the kidnaping had not been determined, officers guarded Bower's residence.

Altho the victim and police assert none of the demanded $50,000 ransom was paid, it was learned that Bower's wife obtained $25,000 from Denver banks, and placed the money in a safety deposit vault, where it would be quickly available. Officers also revealed that Bower promised to pay $50,000 before he was released. He had been held in an unidentified cottage and his eyes taped shut except for a few minutes when he wrote a letter to his wife.

Chief Clark called Joe Roma to police headquarters and questioned him. Roma, Clark said, denied he knew anything about the kidnaping. Friday afternoon, it was learned, Bower wrote a letter in reply to her husband's letter. This letter, Roma agreed, Clark said, to hold who protested but accepted the letter. Roma agreed, Clark said, to hold anyone who called for the letter. Altho several persons were questioned, police said, they were not the principals in the kidnaping.

CHURCHILL SEES PEACE ERA

New York—Altho he said he expected little in the way of results from the forthcoming disarmament conference at Geneva, Winston Churchill said the civilized world was starting on a long era of peace that will lead to an "increasing neglect of armaments by all countries."

In an interview following his return from the Bahamas the former British chancellor of the exchequer declared a moratorium on war debts and reparations was "inevitable and certain." The only question remaining to be settled, he said, was whether it should be a long suspension or a "moratorium in installments."

While he refrained from using the word dictator, he expressed the opinion the best way for democracy to accomplish things in "these depressed and dispirited times, was to give wide powers to competent individuals."

NEW IDEA IN THIEVERY

Chicago—Three acrobatic youths have a new idea in thievery. Alice Geimer reported the trio climbed on her automobile while she was driving. One cut a hole in the roof, reached in and took her purse containing rings worth $1,000. He was helped down by his partners and the three escaped.

SIX CARLOADS HAY SHIPPED

Omaha—A. D. Majors and H. L. Vastis, Lambrugh, South Omaha livestock commission men Monday shipped six carloads of hay to Knox and Boyd counties in northeastern Nebraska, and expected to bring the total shipment to twenty-five carloads in the near future.

Returning from a two day survey over the drought area, the pair described conditions there as "deplorable" particularly in regard to calves and milk cows. The survey, instigated and financed by the livestock interests of South Omaha, took in five counties, Holt, Cedar, Keya Paho, Boyd and Knox.

Northwest Sections Still Need Moisture

Southwest Quarter of the State Is Well Supplied—Big Drop in Eggs and Butterfat.

Moisture supply is still short in western and northern Nebraska, but generally more than ample in the southeastern quarter of the state, says the division of agricultural statistics. Condition of wheat is 84 percent. Fourteen percent of the corn is still unhusked. Hay and forage supplies are short over part of the state. Feed is ample over most of the state and a few sections have a surplus.

Soil moisture conditions are ideal in the southeastern quarter of the state. It has been years since the subsoil in this section of the state has been in as good condition. In addition to the heavy rains received last fall, several snows have fallen on unfrozen ground and most of this moisture will be absorbed. While this condition appears ideal for winter wheat, there is some apprehension that the thaws followed by lowered temperatures caused the snow to pack and form some ice which might exclude air from wheat.

Snows have been lighter in parts of western Nebraska and northern Nebraska that have not had enough snow to put the subsoil in good condition. The condition reports of wheat are low in western and also in southwestern Nebraska. Elsewhere the condition is generally high.

Approximately 14 percent of the state's corn crop is unhusked and about the same low levels as a month ago, except for a heavy drop in butterfat and eggs. Butterfat dropped from 24 to 19 cents and eggs from 23 to 11 cents. The average price of corn is 36 cents; wheat, 41 cents; oats, 23 cents; alfalfa, $8.37; fat cattle, $6.10; hogs, $3.37. The prices of corn vary greatly from as low as 30 cents in surplus sections to 45 cents and 50 cents in areas having a deficiency. About one-fourth of the bankers report a shortage of feed and forage. About 70 percent reported a sufficiency and 5 percent a surplus. The snow storms and more or less severe winter weather has taken a larger quantity of feed. Only a few sections report a surplus.

Present soil moisture conditions are favorable to this year's crop production over the greater part of the state. Subsoil moisture supplies are still short in southwestern, western and some north central counties. Winter wheat acreage has been reduced considerably and the condition in some western counties is unfavorable and may result in further reduction due to winter kill.

Hunting and Fishing Have a Big Following

About Thirteen Million Persons Enjoy the Pastime the Government Finds

New York—After all the baseball bats, golf clubs, tennis racquets and boxing gloves have been counted or placed end-to-end, the simple fact government-endorsed, remains that there are some 13,000,000 inhabitants of these United States who enjoy the pastime of hunting and fishing.

These figures, indicating 10 percent of the nation's total population engaged in the use of the rod or gun, are arrived at as follows by the United States senate's wild life committee.

Fishing licenses actually issued, 1,500,000.

Combination hunting and fishing licenses, 4,500,000.

Hunting licenses, 2,500,000.

Estimate of hunters not known to hold licenses who are exempt from license requirements for various reasons, 2,000,000.

Estimate of fishermen not holding licenses, 2,500,000.

Total, issued and estimated, 13,000,000.

Relatively, these millions get little or no publicity for their exploits, but it seems reasonably clear that the devotees of hunting and fishing far outnumber the actual participants in any other sport, game, or recreational activity in the country.

Bridge Might Bival

Contract bridge, if a census of its followers was possible, might jump in and offer an argument. Baseball's tremendous popularity, taking fan interest as well as competitive activity, is nationally recognized. Millions of tennis and golf players enter the sports picture. Football involves other vast numbers. But the general tendency in these sports is to over estimate the number of participants and not even the top guesses put in when within shooting distance of the masses who hunt and fish for fun or for necessity.

For example, in the federal government's survey in fourteen southern states alone, the figure shows a total of 4,429,876 hunters and fishermen as compared with slightly less than 5,000,000 baseball and football fans, tennis and golf players combined.

If there is a weakness in the southern comparison, it is that the figures do not include baseball's youthful horde of participants, along with the rabidness of fans and players entering large or small, the kids playing baseball outnumber the total who pay to see the professional sportsmen. But most of these youngsters also have their hooks, lines and sinkers, so that their numbers may be added to either side. Nationally, the federal estimate of these juvenile adherents of the rod or gun is conservatively put at 1,000,000.

U. S. STEEL'S SHARE BIG

New York—Under the interstate commerce commission proposal that the government return excess railroad earnings to the carriers, United States Steel corporation would get 59 percent of the total refund. Wall Street statisticians calculated. Up to Dec. 31, last, $10,679,000 was paid to the government under the recapitulation of the railroad restructure provisions of the railroad restructure law. Three railroad subsidiaries of the steel corporation furnished $6,306,000. One subsidiary, the Duluth, Missabe & Northern contributed over half the total of $10,679,000 recaptured by the government. Its payments were $5,808,000 while other steel corporation subsidiaries which paid $442,000 and $55,000 respectively were the Bessemer & Lake Erie and the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern.

The $6,306,000 refund which United States Steel would receive of the interstate commerce commission's recommendation is ratified would be equivalent to 72 cents a share on the company's stock outstanding at the end of the year.
