Canned Goods to Come Off the Sales Tax Bill

Washington, March 15.—Canned goods were struck off the list of articles which the house ways and means committee proposed Tuesday to subject to a manufacturers sales tax of 10 percent.

The committee also will recommend taking the tax off of such articles as apples, peaches, pears, and other fruits, vegetables, fish and meats.

The committee also will recommend dropping the canned food taxes as $11,000,000.

The committee at another meeting will consider new sources of revenue to make up for the loss.

The action was taken shortly after Representative Snell, New York, republican leader, had informed President Hoover of his belief the new billion dollar tax measure would be passed virtually intact.

A poll of house opinion, the minority leader said, showed republicans and democrats in favor almost unanimously a balancing of the budget, and adoption of the tax program as a nonpartisan emergency measure.

The New York republican, however, disagreed with some advice previously given Mr. Hoover by his colleagues. Commenting upon a statement at the White House recently by Representative Wood (R.) Indiana, the tax bill should be amended upward, Snell said he thought there would be no boost in the present figures.

"This bill," he said, "is about all the boost we'll have this year. We can't go much further in raising taxes. This is about all the people can stand. If this does not balance the budget we shall have to cut expenditures even further."

Meanwhile, Representative Cullen, New York, leader of the Tammany delegation, said the supporters of the amendment he will offer to the new measure bill to tax 2.75 percent beer $5 a barrel were encouraged over the prohibition vote in the house Tuesday.

He said the beer amendment would return about $350,000,000 and would be looked to with more favor as a source of revenue by many dries.

Snell said new favor for the sales tax was being won by the explanation it was only an emergency measure and would expire July 1, 1934.

Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, March 20th By L. Neitzel

Jesus Dies on the Cross

John 19:17-22; 25-30. With this lesson we enter the Holy of Holies. We sit with him at the table, heard the comforting words in Chap. 14; we listened to the consolation and mutual love between Christ and his members, as narrated in Chap. 15; we were wonderfully stirred when He told his disciples that in all their trials and troubles, He would not leave them alone, the Comforter would abide with them, then the glorious assurance that: "Whoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, He will give it you," closing with this solemn and sad declaration: "Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered, every man to his own and shall leave me alone; and yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me." (All this in Chap. 16.)

And now, dear Reader, bow your knees, fold your hands, close your eyes and listen—it is the hour of prayer—our High Priest is in communion with the Father—"the Lord is in his holy temple; let all the earth keep silence before him." Heb. 2:20. Stop here and read Chap. 17. This brings us to the midnight hour. A hymn is sung and the Lord with the eleven leaves the city by the eastern gate, crosses the bridge of the Kidron and up on the western slope of the Mount of Olives, to an olive orchard doubtless owned by some friend. It was Gethsemane.

Eight disciples are left at the entrance, three go with the Lord, as witness to his agony and to have friends near. It is very comforting to have friends near in our sorrows and trials, to speak a word of cheer.

Here the battle is fought out, for our souls' redemption. Christ is the conqueror. The Father heard the prayer that was offered up "with strong crying and tears, unto Him that was able to save him from death and was heard in that he feared; Though he were a son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered." Heb. 5:7-8.

At last He can say: "Not mine, but Thy will be done." Now He is ready for the last act; to pay the price for the redemption of the race. The place where He "being in agony prayed more earnestly; and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground" (Luke 22:44) ought ever be very dear to the Christian's heart. Here comes the mob, led by Judas, to arrest Jesus. Impulsive Peter, ready to defend the Lord, came very near to killing a man, but his aim was not perfect and instead of splitting the man's head, only his right ear was severed. The last act of the free hands of Jesus is an act of healing. The ear of Malchus was restored.

Jesus submits to arrest quietly, but not without a demonstration of his divine power, as he goes to meet them asking: "Whom seek ye? Jesus of Nazareth? I am he." They went backward and fell to the ground. Such is the power of Christ.

Now the acts follow rapidly. The trial before Annas. He is taken to Caiaphas, then before Caiaphas, the High Priest, next before Pilate, then to King Herod, back to Pilate, who for fear of the Jews, sentenced Jesus to be crucified. The suffering of Jesus during these nine hours is best understood in the light of Isa. 53:4-12. The nails were driven into his hands and feet, and he was taken to Golgotha, that is, the place of execution. There he was crucified with two murderers. The procession starts for the place of execution. Golgotha, the place of execution, is a hill in Jerusalem is full of people who had come to the feast of the Passover—the cross is heavy, the soldiers press Simon of Cyrene into service. It is a great relief to the savior that Simon carries the cross the rest of the way. (We must register our protest against the teaching that Jesus broke down under the weight of the cross. Artists have pictured him so, but he was able to carry it to the end. Simon of Cyrene is an incident God uses that the gospel shall be carried into Africa. Simon is converted, his sons Alexander and Rufus become missionaries.)

They arrive at Golgotha. The malefactors are made ready for the execution, they are divided into their clothing. Ordinarily it was the custom to tie those crucified with ropes to the cross. Jesus is nailed, as he laid down on the cross, through his outstretched hands, then through his feet, and the cross is raised up and dropped with a thud into the hole. We recount briefly to the Lord on the cross for six hours. Seven times we hear him, "Father forgive them, etc." Luke 23:34. "Today thou shalt be with me in paradise" Luke 23:43. "Woman, behold thy Son! Behold thy mother." John 19:26-27. "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Math. 27:46. "I thirst." John 19:28. "It is finished." John 19:30. "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." Luke 23:46.
