MURRAY GARAGE A. D. BAKKE, Propr.

Murray

A large number attended the Rock Bluffs picnic on the 4th.

RASPBERRIES for sale. Call No. 46, Murray.—Mrs. Henry C. Long.

Mrs. O. A. Davis had the misfortune to fall and hurt her arm quite badly.

Mrs. Hanan and Mrs. Carroll attended the program at Mynard Friday evening.

Albert Young is putting a new roof on the R. R. Nickles house down on the farm.

George A. Stiles of Union, was a visitor in Murray for a short time on last Tuesday.

Vaclav Micklusky was a visitor in Omaha for the week end and also for the Fourth.

Mrs. Allen Vernon is spending a few days at the Art Hansen and Frank Moore homes.

Miss Margaret Baker has been spending the week end with her uncle and family, Joe Baker.

Mrs. Wm. Royal who is visiting and making her home in Murray is spending the week in Plattsmouth.

The Hink Hatchery was down with a number of different breeds of chickens and did very well at selling them.

Margaret Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Young were in Plattsmouth.

ter, will remain for some two weeks at the Tutt home.

W. G. Boedecker was a visitor in Chicago last Monday and Tuesday, having departed for the big city on last Sunday with two car loads of very fine cattle and also a car of hogs which he accompanied to see the sale made. The cattle topped the Chicago market. Mr. Boedecker returned home on Wednesday.

The Lewiston band played at Mynard Community program Friday evening and enjoyed the opportunity of having a part in that worth while organization.

Mrs. Wm. Sporer was the guest of Miss Bertha Nickles on last Monday when they attended the picnic at Rock Bluffs and there the ladies enjoyed a fine time.

The picture show is very largely attended, not only from the Murray vicinity, but other towns. It shows that the town that is willing to advertise a little gets results.

Harry Nelson and the family were over to the home of the mother of Mrs. Nelson, Mrs. Peter Johnson near Nehawka on the O street road for a short visit on last Monday evening.

Mrs. Homer Miller and son and Miss Margaret Long left for Mrs. Miller's home in Plainview. Mrs. Miller has been spending several days in Murray with her sisters, Mrs. Sporer and Mrs. Long.

Cass County Cattle Command High at Chicago

Two Carload of Whiteface Cattle of Boedecker & Wehrlein Top Market at $8.75.

The cattle feeding firm of Glen Boedecker and William Wehrlein, of Murray, scored another top of the Chicago market for two car loads of their whiteface cattle. The cattle shipped by this firm has always been in great demand at the Chicago market and the latest shipment found brisk bidding. The cattle brought $8.75 per hundred, one of the best prices recorded for several months. One car load was shipped to Boston while the other was sent to New York City.

The firm also had a load of heavy hogs averaging 373, which brought $4.70, a good price on the market at this time.

The excellent showing of the cattle and hogs at Chicago speaks well for the products of the Cass county farms and the excellent handling of the cattle feeding by the Murray firm.

I LOVE NEBRASKA

By KIRK GRIGGS, President, Occidental Building & Loan Association, Omaha, Neb.

I love Nebraska. I know its courageous men of every race and creed. I have tramped its hills, its woods and its prairies. I have listened to its tales of valiant deeds which long ago drove the wilderness from Nebraska. In fact, I can hear on every breeze, the same echoes which reverberated then; echoes of endurance without complaint; echoes of happiness through trials; and echoes of triumphant satisfaction in desperate battles with the prairies.

We, whose ancestors prepared well for our comfort, may be looking too closely to observe how pleasantly we are situated, as compared with those whose labor nor products, are now in demand. Agriculture will neither alarm nor betray us. We, inevitably, are able to amply provide for ourselves and to render an indispensable service to others.

I am proud of Nebraska. I am proud of its blending of the rigors of the north with the sunshine of the south, where all the necessities of life contribute to the completion of our happiness. Satisfaction should be ours, as proprietors of these vast fertile plains; pleasure should be derived in exhibiting to the world the beauty of our landscapes; the bounty and variety of our crops; and the comforts of our homes.

Nebraska was never more beautiful than now. Nebraska never stood firmer in returning to its citizens the fruits of their labors. I love Nebraska.

GOVERNMENT ENTERS HUNT

New York.—The United States government began a search by air and by sea for the little ketch Curlew, long overdue in the ocean yacht race from Montauk Point, Long Island, to Hamilton, Canada. With naval tugs and coast guard boats already searching the waters between Long Island and Bermuda, naval seaplanes and the mighty dirigible Akron were ordered to aid in the task. Relatives of the Curlew's crew had appealed for government aid in the search.

Lakehurst, N. J.—The naval airship Akron, equipped to fly the Atlantic to Bermuda if necessary, went aloft to assist in the search for the missing crew Curlew.

Capt. Harry E. Shoemaker, commandant at the naval air station, said the Akron would sweep the seas with her searchlight by night—given favorable weather—but would do her most effective work in the daytime. Commander Alger H. Dresel is in command.

The airship will stay out three days if necessary and will cover most of the water between here and Bermuda.

SLAYS HIS WIFE AND SELF

Red Oak, July 4.—After shooting his estranged wife through the head Sunday night, F. A. W. Coonley, former station operator at radio station KMA, turned a revolver to his own head and committed suicide. Death was instantaneous in both cases, Dr. W. S. Reiley declared.

Coonley had gone to the Harley F. Lunsford home where his wife was staying. She was alone attending the two Lunsford children. The deaths were discovered by Bertha Geist who went to the home to see Mrs. Coonley.

CANNON OPPOSES PLATFORM

Ocean Grove, N. J.—Bishop James Cannon, jr. in an Independence day address, predicted a republican victory in November and told an audience of about 6,000 that John D. Rockefeller, jr. plainly was suffering from an "inferiority complex" in regard to prohibition.

"I am an anti-Smith democrat and anti-Chicago platform," said the bishop. The 1932 prohibition plank of the republican party pledges enforcement of the law and opposes nullification. The democrats in adopting an outright repeal plank have assured the party of no support from the many organizations anxious to see the rightful continuance of the greatest social enactment made by any nation in any age."

He said "Mr. Rockefeller is surrounded by lawlessness and the rotten and unspeakably filthy government New York City has had under Tammany for the past several years."

Bible School Lesson Study! Sunday, July 10th By L. Neitzel

"The Call of Moses" Exodus 3:1-15; 4:1-12.

The life of Moses is divided into three periods; the first period we studied last Sunday, birth and education, took forty years. His second period of forty years develops his mental and spiritual resources for the great task of emancipating his people. This we study today.

Moses first work for his people was born of impulse and not reason, of pride and not humility, of his own will and not the will of God; therefore it failed lamentably, as all such attempts are doomed to fail. What happened was this; familiar with the slavery of the Hebrews, and seeing, as he rode about with his royal retinue, how an Egyptian taskmaster beat an Hebrew, his loyal Hebrew blood boiled and he slew the Egyptian and covered him with sand. But the crime could not be covered with sand. Murder will out. The next day two Hebrews quarrel, he is rejected as peace maker, the King has been told of his acts; detectives are sent to apprehend him; Moses hears about it, and his flight follows. His people are not ripe for freedom; he is not ready for his task as Emancipator and Lawgiver.

So Moses exchanges the proudest for the humblest station. In the Arabian Desert, he learns the great lesson of patience, energy, steadfastness, endurance, bravery. In the Midianites he finds a kindred people, descendants from Abraham by his wife Kezarah—a people that were monotheists (believe in one God).

Coming to a well. Like Abraham's steward who found Rebekah and Jacob who found Rachel, Moses likewise found his wife, Zipporah, at a well. First he becomes a guest in the home, next marries one of the seven daughters, and for forty years herds sheep. The family life was never congenial, as subsequent history shows—why this long wait for his life's work? Time and thought are needed to plan wisely any course of action. Think of the long years of John the Baptist in the wilderness of Judea. Remember Paul's three years of study in Arabia before he began his apostolic labors. Remember that our Lord himself spent thirty years in the carpenter shop in Nazareth and then only three years in his public ministry which was to transform the world.

At last he is ready to go to work for God. So God calls on him in his workshop, the desert, in a flame of fire, the burning bush. The burning bush was a symbol of God's people. Though surrounded by the burning forces of tyranny, they had God in the midst of them, and could not be consumed. Thus the burning bush has become the symbol of God's martyrs of all ages, a constant hope and inspiration for the sad and oppressed. God is still a consuming fire. He destroys moral evil with the consuming flame of his purity and power. He still puts his chosen ones into the fiery furnace that their dross may be consumed and their gold refined. As Moses draws near the bush, God calls: "Moses, Moses." Thus Jesus calls—"Martha, Martha;" "Simon, Simon;" "Saul, Saul." Promptly Moses replies, "Here am I." He is ready for service.

He must have made some impulsive start toward the bush, for the voice forbade him: "Draw not nigh hither; put off thy shoes . . . etc." The true Christian will humble himself in the presence of God, especially in God's house. Great souls are reverential; Isaiah exclaimed, "Woe is me!" John fell at his feet. Moses hid his face, but God assured him that he was the God of his fathers. Further, He assures Moses that he had heard the cries of the oppressed Israelites; the time of their deliverance was at hand. "Come now therefore . . . etc." (Ch. 3:10). This was the task before Moses, and a greater task was never laid upon mortal shoulders. "Who am I, that I should go to Pharaoh?"

Both Isaiah and Jeremiah hesitated to take up the work to which God plainly called them, pleading inability, and were answered as Moses was answered, "I will be with thee."

What a great promise! That is all we need in order to succeed. It is the same promise we have: "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

To all the objections of Moses, God has an answer. By what authority shall I go to the people? "Say I AM sent you."

Endowed with power to work miracles, Moses finally consents to go, but not alone, Aaron must be spokesman. Moses could have had all the glory, but he has to share it with another because he would not go God's way. Moses pleads that he is "not eloquent, slow of speech and slow of tongue." Paul had a good answer for the Corinthians, showing the way God works: "The foolishness of God is wiser than man; and the weakness of God is stronger than man. God hath chosen the weak things of the world in order to shame the strong." (Weymouth's New Testament, I Cor.:1:25-27).

Thus equipped, authorized and assured of Jehovah's help, he ventures out to perform a task such as no mortal man has ever been called to perform. Under the severest difficulties and obstacles, he moulds three million slaves into a nation, whose laws are used by all civilized peoples.

Are Busy Moving.

A. D. Bakke with a number of persons assisting are busy getting the new location in readiness and getting the garage moved. They have a workshop arranged and also a parts room with a battery charging department and a work shop and they are making an effort to get the place in readiness so as to get the stock changed and in readiness to care for the business. Take a peep in on the new place and see how things are getting along.

HARD HITTING TEAM

While the Murray Red Sox have been forced to combat the rain in the past few weeks, they have showed a real hitting power in the games they have played, as well as three fielding 1000.

In six games played the following is the standing:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Runs. Svoboda 500, Newman 464, Stone 232, Spidel 375, Pierce 272, Schlieske 272, Hopkins 237, Shavelly 181.

The standing of those playing one game:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Runs. Svoboda, L. 500, Krejci 250.

In the fielding department those who have an average of 1000 are Stone and J. Svoboda in six games and Krejci in one game.

AGED MAN IN WEED PATCH

Creighton, Neb.—The clamor of crows led to the discovery of seventy-eight year old Chris Moser Sunday in a weed patch more than a mile from his son's house which he had left Wednesday.

He was in a weakened condition and was unable to explain how he came to wander away. John Ryan, a postman, saw the crows circling and found Moser. Apparently he had not moved out of the weed patch since Saturday. A posse of 150 neighbors searched for him Sunday and less than three hours had been made during the week. His son is Bert Moser, who lives ten miles west of here.

AVIATRIX MISSING

Los Angeles.—Mrs. Jaenne Axford Thomas, Los Angeles aviatrix, was reported missing from Mexico City by her mother, Mrs. Oma Randall, who told authorities her daughter intended to fly from Mexicali to the Mexican capital the latter part of June. Mrs. Randall said Mrs. Thomas left Los Angeles June 27, traveling by automobile with two Mexican fliers whose names she did not know.
