Will Old Settlers Meet?

The matter of the annual picnic of the old settlers of Cass and Otoe counties has been talked of. A meeting called by the president, Hon. W. B. Banning, of the citizens to look after the matter and no one came. Just what this means is the question. Does it mean that they do not want any longer to have these picnics which have continued nearly a half a century unbroken, every year, or does it mean that the people are just too busy to come out to the meeting.

If there is to be a picnic this year, and it seems that it should not go by default, there has got to be some one take the matter in hand and attend the meetings when called. One man cannot sponsor the enterprise, neither make a picnic or stand for the continuation of the meetings.

Gang of Store Thieves is Captured in Omaha

Sheriff and Force Called to Omaha to Help Identify Loot from Murdock Store Robbed Sunday

From Tuesday's Daily
The arrest of four men in Omaha at an early hour today brought to light a gang that has been engaged in robbing stores in various parts of the state and who were implicated in the robbery of the Gottlieb Bauer store at Murdock late Saturday night or Sunday.

The arrest of one of the men led to his confession of his part in the Bauer robbery and in which he had implicated several others of the men. In receipt of the information as to the arrests, Sheriff Ed Thimgan and Deputy Sheriff Ray Becker departed for Omaha to interview the men under arrest and if possible secure them for the Cass county robbery.

The officers spent some time in locating the various caches of the stolen goods and which were held for inspection of the owners of the stores that have been robbed in recent months.

The Bauer store was looted of some $200 to $300 worth of merchandise, they consisting largely of overalls, shirts, socks, shoes and other articles of wearing apparel as well as cigarettes. The robbery was discovered by Mr. Bauer Sunday morning when, as was his custom, he had gone to the store and seated himself in the rear portion to study the Bible for a few moments before Sunday school. He had not noticed anything wrong at first but his attention was finally attracted to several stockings lying on the floor and investigation disclosed that a large part of the shelves were bare of merchandise.

Sheriff Thimgan at once started an investigation and which seems to have resulted in the arrest of the parties.

The sheriff and party had not as yet returned from Omaha at the time of going to press.

Use Best Arts in Cooking Vegetables

"Use your choicest seasonings and your best arts to make vegetables really attractive," Dr. Minna C. Denton is telling Nebraska homemakers in a new circular about vegetable cookery. The circular will soon be ready for distribution. "Butter substitutes may be quite suitable for some things, but serve your vegetables with your best butter, and do not take all the cream away from the vegetables to put it on the dessert," she urges. "If you are not grudging the 20 minutes it takes to make a cake, be as generous with the preparation of the new peas, garden spinach, or string beans, or the other vegetables which the bread-meat-potato diet needs so desperately to round out its health values."

The new circular being printed by the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Nebraska lists recipes for the cooking and serving of more than 20 common vegetables and includes hundreds of variations of the recipes. This circular will soon be available for distribution at the Farm Bureau office.

Sewing Machines Need

Cleaning and Adjusting

At least once in five years the family sewing machine should have a thorough cleaning such as described in the new Nebraska Extension Circular 714, Paul R. Hoff, author of the circular says. Sometimes the use of gummy oil or the sewing of material that leaves lint and dirt on the machine will make it necessary to clean the machine oftener. If properly cared for, a sewing machine is generally good for at least two generations. Some working parts may need to be replaced but cleaning and adjusting are more often needed to put the old machine in good working order, Hoff says. The new circular is being printed. It will be available at the county agent's office within a few days.

Might Hand Feed Supplements

If the price of a high protein supplement seems too high in terms of grain prices, one should keep in mind that a small quantity of supplement fed by hand to early pigs may be profitable even though the free choice feeding is not. Within reasonable limits, the less supplement fed, the higher will be the return per pound of supplement. Where a supplement is fed for a specified purpose as, for example, to finish a bunch of pigs for the early market, the replacement value should not be considered too strongly, for the increased rate of gain more than offsets any deficiency here.

Discusses Contract Feeding.

Bulletin 274, "The Contract Feeding of Livestock," written by R. R. Thalman of the Nebraska College of Agriculture, is now available at the Farm Bureau office for the asking.
