Large Number of Articles Taken from Bauer Store Uncovered in Home of Gang.

From Wednesday's Daily
From the able handling of the Bauer store robbery case by Sheriff Ed W. Thimgan and the assistance of the Omaha detective bureau, four men are now in the Cass county jail to face charges of robbing the store at Murdock.
Lloyd Jewett, 49, Harrison street, Omaha; Ernest Mosher, 3718, 3rd avenue, Council Bluffs; Frank McCarty of the Commerce hotel and Joe Miller, also of Omaha, are the four who were brought here and to await their trial.

The prisoners have denied the fact of being implicated in the robbery of the Murdock store, despite the fact that a number of articles identified as being taken from the store were recovered at Omaha.

The men were returned here last evening by Sheriff Thimgan and Deputy Sheriff Ray Becker.

It is expected to have the men arraigned this afternoon for their plea and in the event that they plead not guilty, as is expected, the bond will be set by the court. Miller, one of the men, had his attorney here from Omaha this morning and who is expected to furnish the bond for this member of the group at least.

C. at Fort Crook for the thirty-day training period, are to leave Tuesday morning for the fort and where they will be registered and checked in, as well as receiving the issue of uniform, shoes and other equipment that the student soldiers will require. The boys are also assigned to the different provisional companies and then the camp life is on. The infantry organizations will be taught the use of the rifle and its care and other details that a soldier must acquire to become a real "doughboy."

The cavalry force of the area is trained at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, while infantry and machine gun training is given at Fort Crook and Fort Snelling, Minnesota.

In addition to those listed Saturday as taking the course at the camp, Robert Mann, one of the last year veterans will be enrolled at the camp.

RAINS HELP APPLE CROP

Apples should be bigger and rosier in southeastern Nebraska this year. E. H. Hoppert, of the college of agriculture extension service, said the fruit crop of the southeastern corner of the state had been improved by recent rains and the fruit should be larger. Orchardists raised their estimate of the crop 5 percent after the rains, Hoppert said. The 1932 crop, however, is not expected to be as large as that of 1931.

Southeastern Nebraska will probably market about 200 carloads of apples this year. The damp muggy weather will aid dissemination of brown rot spores, Hoppert warned. The brown rot attacks peaches principally.

RAIN SPOILS SPORT

The lovers of baseball in this section were disappointed Sunday when the rain interfered with the various games scheduled in this section. The players, however, were able to enjoy the occasion in motoring or in pinocle and kindred occupations that aided to replace their usual pastime.

Missouri River Menaces Roads Near Blair

Cutting at the Rate of Six to Eight Feet Per Day, Stream Now Nears Lincoln Highway.

The Missouri river is again starting on a land reclaiming in the vicinity of Missouri Valley, Iowa, and Blair, now being a real threat to the Lincoln highway and the Blair bridge.

The river some time ago started cutting on the Iowa bank and at the rate of six to eight feet per day, has now brought the new channel of the stream to within 187 feet of the highway and where it is menacing the approach to the Blair bridge on the Iowa side of the stream.

Fearful that the river may cut into the road and thus block the approach to the bridge, John I. Long of Missouri Valley, former Nehawka newspaper man, has taken the matter up with the war department through the Lincoln highway association.

The river flows two miles south of the bridge, cuts back eastward and north, running parallel to the highway for three-fourths of a mile, Mr. Long states. When the cutting first started the stream was 300 feet south of the highway but it has now advanced to less than 200 feet.

At one point the river is within 200 feet of the home of William Stetcheh, a farmer, and who may be forced to leave his home within a week if the cutting continues.

FRIEND OF THE BIRDS

Each afternoon the residents along Scath 6th street have the pleasure of seeing the gathering of a large array of the pigeons and other birds who come to receive the daily feed that is distributed to them by E. A. Wurl, well known South Sixth street merchant. Mr. Wurl started this custom last winter when the deep snow covered the natural forage of the birds and he has continued this feeding. The birds have become aware of the fact that in the late afternoon there is a friend to remember them. They will start gathering about the usual time each day and perched on the roofs and windows of the adjoining building will watch for the coming of Mr. Wurl. The birds have become so accustomed to his feeding them that they will flock around his feet when the feed is distributed and show no fear.

CHANGE IN BANKING HOURS

The change in the hours of the bank closing which was effective starting Monday and which will continue for the coming thirty days, caused many to be disappointed when they called at the banks. The banks had advertised that they would close at 3 p. m. instead of the usual hour of 4 p. m., but many neglected to heed the notice and came to the bank after the new closing time. The early closing, however, will not be in effect on Saturday and the banks will be open for business until 4 o'clock.

RAIN A LIFESAVER

The rain that visited this locality Sunday was a real lifesaver to the crops in this part of the county and one that will greatly aid the completion of the corn crop. The rainfall here was an inch and half and came down steady from 3:30 Sunday morning for the greater part of the day. The rain was general over this section and in addition to the moisture it also brought a welcome relief from the heat.

WILL PRESENT AWARD

The societies that comprise the Patriotic Council of the city, the Daughters of the American Revolution, American Legion, Woman's Relief Corps and the Legion Auxiliary, will follow the custom of the past five years and present an award of $10 to the outstanding students at the C. M. T. C. from Plattsmouth.
