

Roosevelt Gives Plan to Rebuild Farm Civilization

Adds Reforestation to His Program for Agriculture in His Atlanta Speech.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 24.—Before a crowd that filled to overflowing Atlanta's auditorium, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight again spoke on farm issues.

Climaxing two thrill-packed days in Georgia, which has wildly acclaimed Mr. Roosevelt as an adopted son, the democratic presidential nominee told the thousands who tonight packed every corner of the city auditorium in Atlanta that the object of his administration in restoring general prosperity to the United States "must be the rebuilding of the rural civilization of America."

Mr. Roosevelt made some more thrusts at President Hoover, saying the president was advocating a "doctrine of despair." He sent some punches also the way of Mr. Hoover's secretary of agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde.

Mr. Roosevelt asserted that the time has come to eliminate "political secretaries of agriculture."

Talks of Reforestation. A great part of tonight's address dealt with the possibilities of reforestation as a double aid to agriculture and to unemployment, a subject he touched on during his speech of acceptance in Chicago.

Secretary Hyde has ridiculed the Roosevelt reforestation plan, and tonight the New York governor, answering the ridicule, said a child in kindergarten would have known his subject better than did Mr. Hyde.

The agricultural issues of the campaign, as Governor Roosevelt sees them, are summed up in the following excerpts from his speech:

"Mr. Hoover believes that farmers and workers must wait for general recovery, until some miracle occurs by which the factory wheels revolve again. No one knows the formula of this miracle.

Leaves for North.

"I, on the other hand, am saying over and over that I believe that we can restore prosperity here in this country by re-establishing the purchasing power of half of the people of the country, that when this gigantic market of 50 million people (the rural population) is able to purchase goods, industry will start to turn, and the millions of men and women now walking the streets will be employed."

The Roosevelt special train left Atlanta immediately after the governor had completed his speech. Tomorrow he will arrive at Raleigh, N. C., for 15 minutes, and in the afternoon at Richmond, Va., for another quarter-hour, with a dozen or more shorter stops in between.

At 5 o'clock the governor will reach Washington, and after a short stop, he will go on to Baltimore, where he will deliver another major address, the last one on this campaign tour.—World-Herald.

FARMERS PAY SEED LOANS

Minneapolis.—Despite low prices farmers of eight northwestern states are paying federal seed loans at the rate of from $19,000 to $20,000 daily at the Minneapolis crop production loan office. Although President Hoover's recent order permitted farmers to repay but 25 percent of their individual seed loans, repayments in full still are numbered in the daily receipts. L. J. Paulson, manager of the Minneapolis office, said. Since last August, Mr. Paulson said, approximately 3 percent or 3,500 individual seed loans have been repaid in full to the United States department of agriculture. The daily total of receipts has ebbed since the president's grant of a 75 percent moratorium, but more than a million dollars has been repaid on northwest seed loans, including both payments in full and payments of 25 percent, Paulson said.

ENJOYS VISIT HERE

From Wednesday's Daily Mrs. C. E. Noyes, who is now making her home at Gordon, Nebraska, came in this morning to spend a few hours on some business matters and visiting the friends in this city. Mrs. Noyes, since the death of her husband, has made her home with her mother in the west part of the state, the mother now being in her 88th year. Mrs. Noyes while in the city was a visitor at the Journal for a very pleasant call. She will visit for a short time at Louisville before returning to the west.

ROAD PAVING IN ONE COUNTY THIS YEAR WILL RUN ABOUT TEN MILES. NOT SO BAD, FOR "DEPRESSION" TIMES.

IOWA PEOPLE WEDDED

From Wednesday's Daily This morning at the home of Rev. C. O. Troy occurred the marriage of Will Smith and Mary Thornburgh, both of Atton, Iowa. The bridal couple were accompanied by Mrs. J. E. Seitz, of this city, sister of the bride.

The bridal couple are among the best known and popular residents of Atton where they have made their home for a number of years. Following a short visit Mr. and Mrs. Smith departed for their home in the Iowa city.

Present Trade Developments Declared Sound

Financial Economist Says That Business Situation Is Cause for Satisfaction.

New York.—The present business situation is decidedly favorable and forms a "base line" which it will be very gratifying to see maintained until next spring, according to Dr. Lionel D. Edie, financial economist.

In an address on "Business Fundamentals," delivered before the regular monthly meeting of the Conference of Statisticians in Industry yesterday, Dr. Edie corroborated reports of economic recovery that have come from all parts of the country recently by citing additional evidence of marked improvement in business conditions this fall.

"General business has made a full seasonal recovery this autumn and, thereby, has achieved a degree of progress that was not experienced in the like period of any previous year in the depression," he declared. "This development should be cause for satisfaction on the part of conservative observers, and the mere fact that business has not come up to the extravagant expectations aroused by many leaders of public opinion should not excite any worry or alarm among sober-minded people.

"The fundamental factors underlying the moderately favorable developments in business are to be found in the financial situation and the commodity price structure. The financial situation has shown improvement in the form of a sustained firmness in strictly high-grade bonds, in the form of the reduction in bank failures and in the form of substantial surplus reserves due to gold imports and the return flow of currency.

"The commodity price structure has had a speculative rebound in many staple commodities, and has retained from one-third to one-half of this rebound in the commodity averages. Greater confidence is now warranted in the ability of the commodity price structure to hold and to avoid falling into another sharp wave of deflation."

Qualifying the optimistic tone of his address, Dr. Edie warned against overestimating the current seasonal recovery and recalled that the nation has a stiff struggle before it in connection with impending efforts at Washington to balance the federal budget.

DENIES MISUSE OF MAILS

Washington.—Postmaster General Brown made public a letter from Secretary Mills calling "silly" the statement by a democrat that the treasury chief had "misused" his privilege of sending matter thru the mails without postage. The democrat, John F. Costello, his party's committeeman for the District of Columbia, had asked Brown to investigate. The postmaster general, in reply, said an investigation showed "the statement in question was of an official character and as such entitled to be carried in the mails without postage."

OIL COMPANY APPEALS

Washington.—The Pan American Petroleum company asked the supreme court to reconsider its recent refusal to review the decision of the lower courts holding title to oil property in the Elk Hill naval oil reserve in California belonging to the United States. The company explained that it and its sole stockholder were in receivership and protested against being "penalized" for what it termed the misconduct of Edward L. Doheny, who once controlled the company.

OMAHA SHOTS SELF

Omaha.—Joseph Ludasek, forty-six, Omaha, shot and killed himself in the basement of his home Sunday. He left no note of explanation and Mrs. Ludasek could give no motive for his act.

Smith Lashes at the Dry Law in Opening Speech

Talk at Newark, New Jersey, Devoted Chiefly to Question of Prohibition.

Newark, N. J.—Al Smith, before a police estimated crowd of 20,000 persons, concluded his first national campaign speech Monday night by declaring that nothing but the election of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket would solve the economic problems of America. The crowd was in an uproar virtually thruout the speech. At 7:30 the hall was so crowded that the doors were closed. Brilliant spotlights from crowded balconies crisscrossed the bunting draped rafters, while sirens and other noise makers punctuated the applause.

An emergency hospital set up in the armory treated forty cases, most of them for fainting attacks. Helen Fahey, Montclair, N. J., was crushed between the doors and taken to city hospital. One woman suffered a fractured rib. An unidentified man in the crowd outside of the armory died of a heart attack just after Smith's arrival.

Smith had reserved mention of the name of his old political ally, Governor Roosevelt, until he had lashed out at prohibition and had made extended criticism of the republican administration. His call for a Roosevelt-Garner victory set off a demonstration in the auditorium which was many minutes in ending. And all the while Smith, in his favorite "Happy Warrior" pose, stood in the floodlights and grinned from the same platform which just four years ago he mounted to seek votes for his own presidential candidacy.

Smith wound up by asking his audience to "go home and see if you can find one great public question that they (the republicans) have made a reasonably good attempt to settle. Instead of that," he continued, "we received a program of threat that if the republican party is defeated the return of prosperity will be retarded. I deny that and I deny it emphatically, and I state from this platform to my audience that the election of the democratic ticket is the best way to bring back prosperity—the election of Roosevelt and Garner."

The speech was devoted principally to prohibition. "In 1928," he said, "both parties ducked the prohibition issue. They were both afraid of it. The democratic party wasn't a bit better than the republican party. They both laid down, in fear of the consequence had they taken a decided step locking to revision or repeal of the eighteenth amendment." —State Journal.

The democratic nominee, he asserted, had sponsored a plan holding out hope that 10 million men and women now unemployed "will be given jobs by the government." He said such a plan was "fantastic" and asked: "Is this a new deal?"

At the very outset of his address the president declared that the nation's economic "tide has turned." Return of 300 millions of gold into the country thru restored confidence abroad; return of 250 millions of currency from hoarding; increase in the values of bonds by 20 percent; increase in manufacturing production by 10 percent, in some groups, such as textiles, by 50 percent; increase in building contracts; return of 180,000 workers to the manufacturing industry in August and 360,000 more in September; increase in carloadings from 490,000 per week to 650,000 per week; increase in exports and imports by nearly 23 percent; improvement in farm prices and decrease in bank failures were enumerated.

Stops at fourteen cities en route, with speeches at most of them, left the president visibly tired. At the last stop, Monroe, Mich., he told the assembled crowd that he was saving his voice for the night. In his speeches before crowds reaching, according to police estimates, up to 25,000, stretching from Charleston, W. Va., early in the morning, to Monroe after dark, the chief executive discussed campaign issues.—State Journal.

CABINET RESIGNS

Prague, Czechoslovakia.—Premier Frantisek Udrzal submitted the resignation of his cabinet Monday to President Masaryk, who accepted and asked the premier to continue in office until a new government is appointed. President Masaryk called upon Jan Malypetr, president of the chamber of deputies, to form a new cabinet.

ROYAL COACH TO EX-QUEEN

Bucharest.—Reversing its previous refusal, the government sent a royal railway coach to the border to meet former Queen Helen, divorced wife of King Carol. The coach was waiting at the boundary when she entered the country. In some political circles it was said that Premier Maniu had a hand in forestalling the slight to Helen. She has been in London, where her son, Prince Michael, visited her briefly, the visit being terminated by Carol, reportedly because he objected to the publicity resulting from it. Get your School Supplies at the Bates Book Store where quality is high and prices low.
