Passing of a Long Time Resident of County

Funeral of George Reichart Held at Louisville on Sunday—A Loved Citizen.

George Reichart, 69, resident of Louisville and vicinity for many years, passed away at his home in that city on last Friday and the interment was made Sunday at the Riverview cemetery in the community that had known and loved Mr. Reichart.

The deceased was a son of the late George and Katherine Reichart and when a child was brought by the parents from Ohio to Nebraska, they settling in the vicinity of Louisville at an early day and where the family has been active in the community life.

Mr. Reichart was married on July 1, 1890, to Miss Kathryn DePuy of Springfield, who survives the passing of this good man.

For many years Mr. Reichart was engaged with his nephew, Charles F. Reichart, in the conduct of a livery business at Louisville, but with the passing of the horse drawn vehicles the business has been conducted as an auto livery and filling station.

For several weeks past Mr. Reichart had been bedfast and his condition was such that his recovery was despaired of by the members of the family.

He is survived by the widow, two brothers, Godfrey of Ulysses and Jacob of Louisville.

The funeral was held Sunday at the Louisville M. E. church and conducted by Rev. Robert Murphree. At the grave the services were in charge of the Louisville I. O. O. F. lodge.

OCTOBER

October comes once a year With its gorgeous hue and dazzling light,
The corn is heavy with a well filled ear,
Fills the tiller of the soil with delight.

The fleecy clouds come near the earth,
With chords of music and song
To fill our hearts with joy and mirth,
As we to our work go long.

The tubulars roll from the ground,
And snugly placed in the cave;
For later inspection to see if sound
Some seed for spring we may save.

The frost on the pumpkin glitter,
The apple tree drops its fruit;
As the bird in the withered leaves flitters
And the rabbit changes his suit.

The black birds are coming in droves;
From the haunts where they reared their young,
They fill the trees and groves,
And enjoy the old songs they have sung.

When the flutter of the feathered tribes wain,
And the badger goes into his hole Love governs them all as the drops of rain,
And also the insignificant mole.

Storms of fear gather around our path,
And sorrow may darken our way,
But love unseats its fury and wrath,
And destroys its power to sway.

October closes with misgiving,
and fear,
Some rugged and rough hills
to climb,
But love makes the highest seem in the rear,
And the rest look holy sublime.

CARS HAVE SMASHUP

Saturday evening while Wallace Arnold and brother, Earl, were driving south on Pershing avenue, their car crashed into the coupe of Dick March, parked along the road. Mr. March, who lives in the vicinity of where the accident occurred had parked his car on the paved roadway to avoid the mud, the place where it was parked being somewhat obscured by trees. The Ford touring car driven by Wallace Arnold struck the coupe of Mr. March with considerable force and as the result the touring car had one fender bent and the front generally mashed in as the result of the impact. Earl Arnold was severely injured in the accident, having his face cut in several places as the result of the broken glass of the windshield. The young man had a blood vessel cut on the lower part of the jaw and also a number of smaller cuts. The injured young man was taken to the office of Dr. L. S. Pucelik where the injuries were dressed and the victim of the accident permitted to go on to his home.
