Popular Young People Wedded at Weeping Water

Miss Freda Baker United in Marriage to Mr. Sigvald Jensen at Home of Bride's Parents.

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the home of the bride's father, Byron Baker, when one of his twin daughters, Miss Freda, was united in marriage to Sigvald Jensen.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Edyth Ranney, the couple entered the living room taking their places in an archway. The room was beautifully decorated with pink and white chrysanthemums and autumn leaves. The impressive ring ceremony was used, Rev. E. S. Pangburn of the Methodist church of Weeping Water reading the wedding lines.

The bride was charming in a dress of burgundy wine gorgette with chiffon velvet trimming. She carried a shower bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. The groom was attired in the conventional blue.

After congratulations the guests were invited to the dining room by Mrs. G. A. Bussell. The color scheme of pink and white was carried throughout the dining room and the refreshments.

Assisting the bride's sisters in the serving were, Mrs. George Dickman and the Misses Blanche Little, Edyth and Ruth Ranney.

The bride was born and had grown to womanhood in the Weeping Water community, where she has won many friends and the love of all who know her.

The groom has been a resident of Weeping Water for the past five years, where he has a thriving business in the fruit and vegetable line, raising his own products on his garden farm in the southeast part of town.

The happy young couple will be at home to their many friends at their home in Weeping Water, after the first of the week.

Governorship Determines Party Place on Ballot

First Place Is Assured Party of Whose Faith the Governor of the State May Be.

A great many have inquired how the different political parties secure the first place on the election ballot, as this year the democratic party has this position, the first time since 1924. The law of the state provides that the political party of which the governor of the state is a member is given the first place on the ballot, a position that is deemed worth several thousand votes.

In the primary election the names are rotated. In the general election they are not. The law for arrangement of names on the ballots provides: "The names of candidates for each office shall be arranged as follows: The party polling the highest number of votes at the last general election for the first set of candidates on the state ticket, shall have the name of its nominee immediately beneath the name of the office for which such candidate was nominated, the party polling the second highest number of votes shall have second place" and so on. The names on the non-political ballot will be rotated.

The election laws since 1916 have eliminated the names of the presidential electors from the ballot, it formerly having been the custom of having the names of the electors printed and for whom the voters cast their ballots. Now the different party conventions nominate the men and women whom they wish to act as presidential electors and when the result of the election is known the governor of the state by law is required to name the representatives of the party whose presidential candidate carries the state. The electors meet in January and nominate a member of their group as the official messenger who delivers the vote of the state to the secretary of state at Washington.

THE HOME ON THE HILLSIDE

All hail to the Brotherhood over the world
Where the banner of Masonry, proudly unfurled,
Shows the hand of the Master in friendship and love,
As strong as the lion—as soft as the dove.

And the lambskin of purity, free of all stain,
Will strengthen, uphold, and their efforts sustain
To encompass and keep within bound everywhere
All the motives designed and laid out on the square.

The step ever guarded, the sign well reviewed,
A rash impulse halted—a passion subdued—
Cementing the bonds that unite us as one
In a Brotherhood lasting and warm as the sun.

In the twilight of life, when misfortune's fell bow
Takes a turn at the wheel, as our steps come and go;
It has founded a haven of rest and repose
Where its votaries enjoy boons its bounty bestows.

It's a Home on the hillside whose sheltering walls
Protect us, and shield us, when misfortune befalls.
So we smile at grim fate, and with pride in our breast
Banish care and anxiety and happily rest.

EUVOY
And when our sojourn closes, and we hear the last commands
From the Master who is ruling in that house not made with hands
The welcome words: "Thou faithful one, reward awaits you here
For service done on earth below—your trophies now you'll wear." "K"
