HAS MULE STOLEN

William Rose of near Nehawka, is mourning the loss of a fine brown molly mule that was stolen from near his home Thursday. The mule with its mate had strayed out of the lot where they were confined and were grazing along the road near the Rose place, when a large truck passing stopped and the driver and occupants of the truck proceeded to load the mule into the truck and drive away. Efforts were also made to catch the other mule but which was wilder and refused to be snared into the truck. There was no trace of the owner of the truck or its number, but Sheriff Homer Sylvester is working on the case and hopes to be able to recover the animal of Mr. Rose.

IDEALS ROUGHLY TREATED

Omaha.—Describing herself as a "love maniac," whose entire life has been spent in a futile search for an ideal marriage, Mrs. Ruth Mildred Cheney Peckham McPherson Bullard, Omaha musician, has sued her third husband for divorce, charging extreme cruelty. She personally served the papers in the suit on A. W. Bulward, an advertising salesman, to whom she was married Jan. 3 in Salt Lake City.

"I guess I'm just a love maniac," she admitted ruefully at her home Wednesday, "a woman in love with love. I have been seeking an ideal marriage all my life. I believe that if a marriage is not ideal there should be no marriage."

Her second husband was James F. McPherson, whom she married four years ago. They lived together fourteen months. She left him, she said, because he was so jealous he finally quit his job so he could stay home and watch her all the time, and she had to support him.

Her first experiment in her ideal marital state was her marriage to Lawrence Peckham nineteen years ago. She left her first husband, she said, because of his interest in other women, but she declared she bore him no malice.

The Iowa solons are said to be overwhelmingly in favor, as indicated at the caucus, and unless the bill should be vetoed by the governor, which is deemed very improbable, the prospects of legalized beer in our neighboring state within the next few weeks are said to look very bright.
