

Nebraskan Wins Fame as Radio Organist

Russell Jensen Well Known in This Community Now Organist at Norfolk Radio Station.

One of the best known musicians of the northeast portion of Nebraska is Russell Jensen, of Norfolk, who is well known in this community. Mr. Jensen is now the studio organist for station WJAG at Norfolk.

In his younger years Mr. Jensen was a frequent visitor here where he spent many pleasant vacations at the John F. Wehrlein farm, being a nephew of Mrs. Wehrlein, while here making many friends who will be pleased to learn of his success in his musical work.

The young man is a son of Dr. Frank Jensen and was graduated from the Newman Grove, Nebraska, high school in 1927, even at that time displaying a rare talent for music and which his father appreciated and encouraged. The young man completed a four year course in music at the Chicago Musical college, where his work was outstanding and on his return to Nebraska he was in much demand for concert work. His first concert work at the Grace Lutheran church at Norfolk and since that time he has been one of the favorite entertainers of that part of the state.

He later bought the Hartner School of Music and this with his radio work has compelled him largely to give up other outside activities. He is now the organist and announcer at WJAG and his organ recitals at 5:30 p. m. each day are among the most popular features of the station.

DEATH OF MRS. LESLIE VROMAN

From Thursday's Daily
The death of Mrs. Leslie Vroman, 38, of Ravenna, Nebraska, occurred last evening at an Omaha hospital where she was operated on last Friday, failing to rally from the ordeal and gradually sinking until death came to her relief.

Clara Jane Schultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Schultz, was reared to womanhood in Plattsmouth and where on September 17, 1913, she was married to Leslie Vroman. The family made their home here for several years, later going to Havelock and then to Wyoming where they resided for a number of years, but of late have made their home at Ravenna. The passing of this highly esteemed lady in the full flush of her womanhood has come as a great shock to the family who will miss the tender ministrations of the wife and mother in the coming years. The many old time friends here will join in their sympathy to the bereaved husband and children and the other members of the family circle.

Mrs. Vroman is survived by the husband and nine children, four daughters and five sons, Beulah, Lella, Vivian, Maxine, Leslie, Donald, Leonard, Marion and Wayne, all of whom resided with the parents at Ravenna.

The funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 from the Sattler funeral home at Fourth and Vine streets, with the interment at the Oak Hill cemetery.

Girl Mothers Aided by Salvation Army

Superintendent of Home at Omaha Reports They Cared for 151 Unwed Nebraskans.

The report issued by Major Blanche Reno, superintendent of the Salvation Army Nebraska divisional home and hospital in Omaha discloses that 151 unwed girls and their babies were cared for in the Omaha institution, which is but one of forty-five such women's home and hospitals maintained by the Salvation Army.

These institutions are supported, in the main, by allowances from the Army's local home service fund in communities receiving the benefit of the service. The average cost of the care of one such mother with her baby is about $125. The sum of $500 was sent to the Army's Nebraska home and hospital from the Lincoln Salvation Army 1932 home service fund to be applied toward the care of the seven Lincoln cases served there.

Major Reno says: "The average age of the mothers served in our Salvation Army institutions last year was about 16 years. Girls of the age of 13 and 14 were not unusual and a number of 12 year old girl mothers were cared for.

"Most of these I am not inclined to feel are bad girls at heart. The greater number of them, I would say, rather are victims of neglect, victims of somebody's failure when most they needed kindly, sympathetic guidance in their lives.

"Some of them in their bewilderment and despair come even from the brink of a suicide's grave, lashed by the whisperings of their own conscience and the remarks of acquaintances. Many of them turn to the Army, after parents have made further stay in their homes intolerable.

"Our first step in their rehabilitation is to have them know that somebody cares what becomes of them, to lead them from despair into avenues of hope and a new grip on life. We would not condone their wrong, neither would we condemn them for the failure or betrayal on the part of others far better qualified than they to have saved them from their plight.

"There are two things we ask every girl to promise when she enters one of our institutions—to stay with us long enough that we may serve her needs and those of her child and that, if at all practicable, with our help, she will keep her baby. This last promise we ask her to make because we believe that God often works thru mother love for the regeneration of these mothers. Helplessness and dependence on her harms into life in the mother's heart a love that will not let her baby go, a determination to work and live for her child."

MRS. ANNIE WATTS DIES

Omaha.—Mrs. Annie E. Watts of Meridian, Miss., national treasurer of the Woodmen Circle, women's branch of the Woodmen of the World Insurance association, died here Wednesday. She became seriously ill on her arrival Saturday for the organization's four day convention.

Mrs. Watts had been in ill health for some time and had received a bold transfusion three weeks ago. Her illness had curtailed the elaborate program planned for the formal opening of the new national headquarters here, and circle officials indicated the remainder of the program would be canceled.

JUDGE ENDS FARMER TRIAL

Primghar, Ia.—Trial of the twenty men charged with contempt of court in connection with a farm foreclosure sale riot was completed before Judge Peters. Judge Peters, who heard the contempt cases without a jury, set June 22, as the date on which he will deliver his verdict.

The twenty men, all allegedly involved in a riot at the O'Brien county courthouse April 27, also face charges of conspiracy to hinder process of law. Testimony consisted largely of descriptions by several of the farmers of the fight at the courthouse, in which the farmers were beaten back while the foreclosure sale was conducted on the third floor.

Bandits Raid Bank; Wound Two Officials

Use Machine Guns to Cover Retreat from Minnesota Town; Amount Taken Not Determined.

Ihlen, Minn., June 9.—Covering their escape with machine gun fire, four bandits sped out of town today after raiding the Ihlen State bank and forcing four men, one of whom was wounded, to ride the running boards of the car to protect them from return fire.

The hostages were released a mile out of town. So great was the confusion immediately after the robbery that the amount of loot taken from the bank could not be determined.

Had Machine Gun

Ted Arp, the bank cashier, was left dangerously wounded by the bandits in the rear room of the bank. The president of the institution, Joe Evenson, although shot in the leg, was forced to accompany the bandits on their wild dash through the town.

Entering the town late in the afternoon, two of the robbers stationed themselves across the street from the bank armed with a machine gun. The other two entered the bank with another machine gun.

Opened Fire Quickly. First reports said the two opened fire as soon as they entered the bank, telling the cashier immediately. Evenson was shot when he failed to obey their commands with alacrity.

They then forced Evenson and Theodore Holme, a patron, out of the bank and made them board the car. Two other citizens, held by the guards, were also taken along.

Authorities said the bandit car fled toward South Dakota.

CANADIANS BOOST EXPORTS

Fort William, Ontario.—An increase of 56 million bushels in Canadian exports of wheat over those of the last crop year is noted in the report of the statistics department of the board of grain commissioners on the movement of western Canadian grain crops for May. Lowering of transport costs stimulated export business and brought large clearances from the seaboard.

CHICKENS ARE STOLEN

Navy Recruiting to Resume in the State

Navy Dept. to Change Plan to Eliminate Recruiting Stations and Will Resume Activity.

Under the economy plan instituted by the navy department last month, the sub-stations within the state of Nebraska for the purpose of selecting recruits from outlying communities, were to be closed and the main station at Omaha skeletonized. In short, recruiting from the states of Nebraska and South Dakota for the navy was to be summarily stopped.

Since the closing of these stations, however, the plan has been revised to the extent that both states remain open as a field for navy recruiting and all Nebraska sub-stations, i. e., North Platte, Hastings and Lincoln; are to be reopened and resume recruiting. The South Dakota sub-stations of Huron, Aberdeen, Watertown, and Sioux Falls, are also open, and ready to receive applicants. The Omaha main office, about June 26th, removes to the post office building, Council Bluffs, Iowa, and all recruits accepted by the Nebraska sub-stations will be sent to the Council Bluffs office for actual enlistment and final examinations.

The monthly quota of men to be enlisted by this district will, in all probability, be forty-five men per month. This means that many young men, between the ages of 17 and 25, will have an opportunity to enlist in the navy if physically and mentally qualified and the unemployment situation will be helped to a considerable extent.

It is expected that the first quota of men will be enlisted on or after July 20th. However, receipt of applications at sub-stations and at the main station is to begin immediately in order to ascertain which men are in all respects eligible for the navy and to place their names on the navy eligibility list so that when actual calls for enlistment are sent out the choice will not be limited to the few on the list.

Major Dalrymple Tells House Committee the Measure Would Curb Bootlegging, Make Revenue

Washington, June 9.—Expressing "unalterable opposition" to repeal of the eighteenth amendment, Maj. A. V. Dalrymple, prohibition administrator, told the house ways and means committee today that legalization of naturally fermented wines would increase respect for law and bring needed revenue to the treasury.

Dalrymple was testifying in support of the Lea bill, which would legalize wines of from 11 to 12 per cent alcohol by volume and tax the new beverage 20 cents a gallon.

"My observations as director of prohibition lead me to think the passage of this bill would have a very wholesome effect upon enforcement as a whole," Dalrymple said.

Beer an Aid to Enforcement
"The sale of 3.2 beer has very materially reduced bootlegging. It has also created a feeling of favor for enforcement which the law did not have before. Liberalization of the wine laws would have the same effect."

Asked by Representative McCormack, of Massachusetts, democrat, what revenues would accrue if the eighteenth amendment were repealed, Dalrymple replied:
"That is hard to say. Of course we would have competition from imports, but if the tariff were high enough we might be able to raise considerable revenue.

"Personally, I am unalterably opposed to repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but I think liberalization is the thing. I am not absolutely convinced that repeal would materially increase revenues. Liberalization will.

Tax Might Yield 100 Million
The Lea bill, Dalrymple asserted, would bring the government from 50 million to 100 million dollars annually in new revenues.

When Dalrymple said "naturally fermented wines" might contain from 10 to 12 per cent alcohol by volume, Representative Cooper of Tennessee, democrat, asked if that would be intoxicating.

"Yes," Dalrymple replied, "if you drank enough of it you would get a skin full; I'm sure it would."

To support his contention there was greater respect for the law now because of liberalization. Dalrymple said he was the head of prohibition in six states under the Wilson administration and that then "the people would not co-operate."

Brewers Lend a Hand
"Now we get the co-operation of all classes," he continued, "even brewers. They are willing and anxious to help enforce the law, because they feel that a violator is escaping a tax and thus penalizing them. Because of that, I believe we can get more convictions.

"I do believe, too, that there is less drunkenness than there was in the days before liberalization. If my conviction is correct, beer is causing the sale of less hard liquor than before. Of course, we know it is very difficult to get intoxicated on this 3.2 per cent beer."

Dalrymple testified that 50,000 persons were directly dependent upon the grape industry and "hundreds of thousands" indirectly.
