First Improvement in 4 Years Now Evident

Wholesale and Retail Gains Are Reported by Tenth Federal Reserve District.

Kansas City.—Experiencing the first improvement in nearly four years, wholesale and retail trade featured the advance in tenth district business conditions in May, says the monthly review of the federal reserve bank of Kansas City. "The rise in agricultural commodity prices, which was so abrupt in April the continuing in May, was less rapid," the report continues.

"Returning confidence is also indicated by increases in savings, net demand, and time deposits at banks during the month, and for the second consecutive month loans and discounts at fifty-three selected member banks increased. Business insolvencies were less numerous than for any since 1923 and liabilities the smallest since 1929."

Referring to the condition of agriculture the review said weather during the fore part of June was both ideal for harvesting and haying and injurious to growing crops. Winter wheat production will be smaller than for any year since 1904, with the outlook for other spring grains poor. A fair hay crop is in prospect and corn, although late, has not been injured seriously as yet.

Returning to trade conditions, the review notes that "May dollar sales of five representative wholesale lines combined were 19.5 percent larger than in April, the first increase for the month in four years and the largest in fourteen years of record. They were also larger than a year ago. May being the first month in about four years to show an increase over the corresponding month of the preceding year."

"Total dollar sales of thirty-two reporting department stores were also larger in May than in April this year or May last year. The 4.6 percent increase over April was the first since 1929 and the increase of 9.8 percent over May 1932 was the first for any month since May, 1930."

Government Lays Down Rules for Employment

Men to Be Used in Place of Machinery —"Decent" Wage Scale, and Limit on Hours.

Washington.—For the first time the federal government, in the expenditure of the 400 million dollars on the nation's highway system, will prescribe the conditions under which labor shall be employed.

Regulations prepared by Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, seek to put in effect the Roosevelt theories of protecting the laboring man, which is the keynote of the codes being prepared for submission to the industrial control administration. These rules go much further than the earlier requirements, merely that labor employed on public works shall be paid the prevailing wage scale of the community.

A Limit on Working Hours.
All highway contracts must provide that no employee shall work more than thirty hours a week as "far as practical and feasible," and where conditions require longer work weeks that the maximum shall not be more than eight hours a day or forty hours in any one week.

Wherever feasible, the regulations require the use of a maximum of human labor in lieu of machinery.

All contracts shall provide minimum rates of wages to be predetermined by the state highway department, and stated in the advertisement for bids.

"Such wages shall be just and reasonable compensation to provide, for the hours of labor as limited, a standard of living in decency and comfort," the regulations stipulate.

Workers on highway jobs shall be paid in currency, and no deductions shall be made on account of goods purchased or obligations incurred at company stores or commissaries.

Preference to Veterans.
Ex-service men with dependents shall be given preference in the employing of workers. The contractors are required to furnish copies of their pay rolls under oath.

Workers shall be obtained through employment agencies designated by the United States employment service.

Restrictions are placed against the use of prison-made materials, and preference is required for goods and materials made and produced in the United States. A contractor who violates the regulations will be black-listed in the awarding of later highway contracts.

Wallace Urges a Sharp Cut in Corn Product'n

Says That Big Acreage Reduction Needed to Prevent Surplus of Cattle and Hogs.

Kansas City.—A 20 million acre reduction of the nation's corn land thru a processing tax on livestock was suggested to the midwest by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as the means of averting overproduction in beef cattle and hogs, which he described as imminent. "I'm telling you," the secretary asserted, "there'll be a definite over-supply of fat cattle in several years and a tariff won't help you. If we have two normal corn crops we'll have an over-supply of hogs, too. The foreign market has been lost. We are dependent on domestic consumption."

Secretary Wallace, describing himself as a "corn and hog man" from Iowa, arrived from Des Moines by train, unaccompanied and packing his own handbag; addressed a meeting of agriculturists and business men here; conferred with Prof. M. L. Wilson, federal wheat administrator, and took a plane for Salina, Kas., to speak before a large farm gathering.

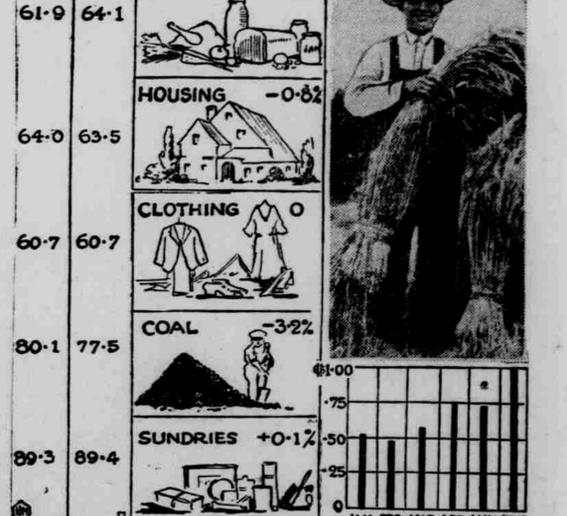

"If twenty million acres of corn were taken out of production," he said, "it would mean corn prices would rise and the average feeder makes more money when the price of corn is high than when it is down. High prices would not bring in the inexperienced feeder. I think you will conclude that if twenty million acres of the 100 million now in production were taken out, it would be definitely favorable for the livestock man."

Living Costs Rise with Wheat

While the farmer is smiling over the rising price of wheat (diagram, lower right) after four long years of less than production costs, the city dweller is concerned about rising living costs. Figures just released are shown in the above chart and show May living costs increased more than 8 per cent over April. Compared with 1923 boom prices (100 per cent of chart figures) the cost of living is still considerably lower than ten years ago. Official Washington is driving for wage increases to keep pace with rising commodity prices.
