

Testing Value of Chopped Alfalfa for Feed

Storing Cured Product Believed to be Better than Old Method—Less Waste by that Method.

Since numerous Nebraska farmers have shown a decided interest in chopping and storing alfalfa, a test is now under way at the Nebraska agricultural college to determine the practicability of the plan.

Chopping and storing of field cured alfalfa, farmers say, has its advantages over storing bulk alfalfa as is the common practice now throughout the state. Blowing the chopped hay into the hot haymow eliminates the hot heavy work of "mowing back." Feeding chopped alfalfa usually shows less waste than feeding bulk hay.

Both the first and second cuttings from a field at the college have already been stored via this new method. Farmers are watching the test with interest as it may demonstrate that the new method is more practical than storing the bulk alfalfa.

Professor E. B. Lewis says the expense for equipment needed for putting up hay in this fashion depends upon numerous factors. Some farmers who have a tractor and ensilage cutter or roughage mill can reduce this cost materially.

Farmers in some sections of the state have objected to this method of storing hay because of the fire hazard. Experiences at the college indicate that chopped hay becomes hotter than bulk hay.

"In general we believe chopping and storing alfalfa, as soon as field cured, has many promising possibilities for those who have equipment on hand," Lewis says. "The method will allow the filling of buildings with good feed that has ordinarily had to be exposed to weather."

"See it before you Buy it" is a good slogan to observe.

Tax Cut Equalization is Set at Fifth Under 1932

20 Per Cent Reduction in County Valuations and 15 Per Cent Reduction on Lots.

Lincoln, July 25.—Equalization of most county valuations at about a 20 per cent reduction from last year on lands and 15 per cent on lots, with exceptions to small sandhill counties and some others, was in sight today by the state board of equalization.

The board probably will not act until late this week, but viewpoints of members expressed during a long hearing yesterday when about half of Nebraska's counties presented the basis for their valuations, indicated the general plan.

It would call for larger reductions for Douglas, Nuckolls, Scotts Bluff and other counties with decreases from last year running about 10 to 12 per cent, but would mean a lessening of the decrease in Burt, Dakota and Nance, where a 37 per cent reduction was made, as well as in numerous counties where the valuation drop was 25 per cent or more.

Some of the greater reductions may be sustained in part, due to special local conditions, while reductions as low as 5 and 9 per cent in Hooker and McPherson counties and a 5 per cent increase in Thomas county may be little changed.

Hear 50 Spokesmen.
The equalization board heard about 50 persons yesterday, with the Douglas county delegation putting on the chief fireworks over County Assessor Sam K. Greenleaf's effort to justify a reduction of only 1 1/2 per cent.

A. J. Classen of Beatrice, representing the Gage County Taxpayers league, said it had worked with the county board and it was agreed the league should appeal from the board's cut of 19 per cent. A 25 per cent cut was asked.

Hall County Not Satisfied.
Harry Griminger, Grand Island, for the Hall County Taxpayers league, asked that county's cut of 25 per cent be made 33 per cent instead. He said the best land there can be bought for $54 an acre.

Representative S. J. Finnegan of Lindsay said the cut of 14 per cent in Madison county should be made 34 per cent.

Burt county, which made a cut of 37 per cent, presented tables to justify the action.

Several sandhill counties asked that their reductions not be increased.

SMALL FIRE TODAY

This morning the fire department was called to the residence of William P. O'Donnell, south Lincoln avenue, where the chimney burning out had caused much alarm. The fire in the chimney was extinguished by the members of the family before the department arrived and the home saved from damage by the overheated flue.

Auto Plants Pushed to Supply Unexpected Season Demand—See Better Business Prospect

Detroit, July 22.—The anticipated decline in the demand for new automobiles has failed to develop, much to the surprise and satisfaction of every department of the auto industry. In fact the demand continues to increase each succeeding week thereby upsetting many production schedules which were thought by manufacturers to be sufficiently large to satisfy the market.

It must not be understood, however, that this unexpectedly out of season demand is taxing the capacity of the automobile plants. Compared with the two or three lean years of the general depression, however, the activities throughout the industry are surprisingly strong.

The low mark was reached the week of March 18 when the production of only a few more than 10 thousand vehicles were sufficient for the demand.

But with the year well into the second half and not more than 800 thousand additional units expected to be registered before 1933, it is not thought probable that the total for 1933 will reach the coveted two million mark. An output and sale of 1,800,000 will make this year a satisfactory one.

Here and there comes a note of optimism that the second half of the year will equal, if not exceed the first six months. Roy D. Chapin, president of the Hudson Motor company, speaking for the industry as a whole, says that there is every indication that the second half of 1933 will be even better than the first half.

"The fundamental conditions that control business are better," he said. "There is a greatly improved spirit among people which will encourage buying."

Mr. Chapin speaks with no small amount of knowledge, he being the secretary of commerce on President Hoover's cabinet.

SOME TALL CORN				BATTING AVERAGES
There is displayed at the lamp post at the corner of Fifth and Main streets, a stalk of corn that is thirteen feet in height and was taken from a field of corn raised by Albert Todd at the farm of his father, T. E. Todd, northwest of this city. Nearby is a stalk of corn that is 12 feet, 10 inches and which was raised by Joe Sedlacek. This is real corn and demonstrates that Nebraska is the home of tall corn and amply able to supply Iowa with seed for the tall corn that they have boasted of.
