J. A. Scotten has been making some book cases for the school in order that the books may be safely stored when not in use and thus add to their period of usefulness.

After visiting there a short time, they met M. R. Miller a brother of Homer Miller, who was going to Plainview, and with whom Mrs. Miller rode home.

H. W. Tool, the lumber man of Murdock, was a visitor in Murray on last Monday, coming for a load of shingles for a piece of work in his territory, and for which he could not wait the arrival of a carload en route to his yard from the mills in Washington. He found the local yard with a good supply on hand and able to accommodate him.

John Carroll, who lived here about thirty-five years ago, and who for many years has been making his home in and near Plainview, arrived recently and is visiting at the home of his brother, C. E. Carroll, as well as with the many friends of former days. Mr. Carroll will remain here for nearly a week in order to see as many as possible of the old friends. He tells of an excellent corn crop in the vicinity of Plainview.

M. Henry Toman, bringing much pleasure to this home. Both the daughter and parents are doing well. A girl also graced the home of Harry Edmonson on Saturday of last week, with all doing nicely. On September 2nd a girl came to the home of Oliver Baker and wife, and brought them much joy. On Tuesday morning of this week there was born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Beins, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Font T. Wilson, a 10 1/2 pound daughter, of whom Uncle Font is as proud as are the happy parents. effects of the late building work, so that the grounds presented a neat and clean appearance for the opening of the school year, wholly in accord with the new building. When the flood lights were turned on, the new school building sure looked grand under the illumination of the high-powered lights and was a source of much satisfaction to those who had worked so hard to bring it about.

The instructors expressed pleasure at being able to go about their work in such greatly improved surroundings and the scholars were pleased at the splendid appointments of the various study rooms, the contrast being the more complete as compared with last year, when the church and library had to be utilized for school purposes after the destruction of the old school house by fire.
