High Court to Review Nebraska Bread Law

That With Large Number of Other Cases to Be Taken Up at Washington.

Washington.—The supreme court celebrated its busiest day in months by issuing orders in 207 cases. It agreed to review eighty-five disputes, but found 222 filed during the four month summer recess were void of any questions justifying it in taking jurisdiction. It refused to reconsider its decision of last term requiring Illinois to finance the completion of the Chicago sanitary district's installation of sewage disposal plants, or to hear the state further on its claim to 5,000 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan.

Among the more important cases it consented to review on their merits were the challenge of the constitutionality of the Minnesota moratorium law; the appeal of the interstate commerce commission to compel thirty-one railroads to establish joint rates on cotton with the American Barge Line company from Arkansas points and Memphis, Tenn.; the validity of the Nebraska bread loaf law; the legality of the full train crew law; the right of the governor of South Carolina to appoint conservators for state banks; and Montana's protest against an interstate commerce commission order increasing railroad rates within that state.

In the list of cases which the court refused to hear were the decisions of the seventh circuit court of appeals sustaining the validity of the grain futures act; the appeals of Conrad H. Mann, Bernard C. McGuire and Frank E. Hering to set aside their convictions on the charge of violating the lottery law in the sale of tickets on the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and the validity of federal laws imposing a penalty tax when corporations permit dividends to accumulate instead of distributing them to stockholders.

Schuyler Mill Ruins Attract a Lot of Sightseers

Thousands of Sightseers Visit the Scene of Huge Blaze—Warped Tracks Are Relaid.

Schuyler, Neb.—The smoldering ruins of the large milling plant of the Wells-Abbott-Nieman company, destroyed by a fire which raged for six hours Saturday attracted thousands of sightseers Sunday. Union Pacific system side tracks for two blocks, warped by the heat, were relaid Sunday. Grain in the receiving elevator, believed to be as much as 25,000 bushels, still was smoldering with an occasional blaze.

The large concrete transfer elevator at the west end of the plant was damaged only slightly. The fire followed the conveyor belt into the structure and some damage resulted, but it was expected that work of removing the debris from the west elevator will start Monday and a receiving dump will be arranged and the usual business carried on.

A representative of the B. C. Christopher Grain company of Kansas City was in Schuyler with E. F. Folda, receiver of the company, and Gerald Ehrnberger, local manager, arranging for a continuance of the business. Ehrnberger said settlement for the grain could be made as soon as the farmers who had stored it there call for settlement. Grain in one of the large storage tanks was on fire during the night. Damage to other than the mill property did not result seriously.—State Journal.

RAILROAD LOSES AN APPEAL

Washington.—The Missouri Pacific railroad was denied a review by the United States supreme court in the fight it has carried on since 1923 to prevent other railroads using team tracks on its belt line around Omaha. For many years the railroad permitted everybody to team tracks, but in 1923 sought to keep any except shippers on its own road from using the tracks. The Nebraska railway commission required it to permit other shippers in intrastate business to use the trackage on payment of a switching charge, treating the line as terminal facilities. The railroad appealed to the Nebraska supreme court and lost and then began an action in the United States district court seeking to enjoin enforcement of the order on the ground the tracks were under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission exclusively because interstate shipments were handled there.

METEORS SCARE VILLAGERS

Lisbon, Portugal.—The superstitions in many Portuguese villages, firmly believing the heavens were falling, rushed into the streets during a meteor display which lasted several hours. The church bells were tolled in some villages and processions of penitents who carried lighted candles and sang hymns were organized. Others asked for mercy from heaven. Philadelphia.—A comet whose orbit lies within 5,000,000 miles of the earth may be the source of a great shower of falling stars seen in Europe, says Dr. Charles P. Olivier, meteor expert of the University of Pennsylvania.
