NEW ALTIMETER IS TESTED
Los Angeles.—Air company officials watched tests of a new acoustic altimeter, which its inventor, Dr. L. P. Delsasso, says has indicated accurately the distance between the ground and an airplane as low as ten feet above the earth. Dr. Delsasso said he used the principle of the returning echo of a sound, similar to the method employed in depth indicators used at sea. The ordinary altimeter indicates the distance above sea level, he said.

The sound is emitted the instant a dial indicator stands at zero, Dr. Delsasso said, and as the echo returns the apparatus shows the exact distance from the ground. A light on a whirling disc gives the pilot the information he needs.

Capitol Fills with Federal Appointees

Larger Organization Engaged for the Recovery Program Than Was Used to Win the War.

Federal organizations at work within the state for the purpose of enforcing recovery acts are many times more extensive and numerous than any organization attempted to win the World War. Under the dome of Nebraska's $19,000,000 state capitol, workers on various federal emergency programs are elbowing state employees for office space. Nearly a score of rooms have been assigned to the increasing number of executives and clerks who handle the expanding government activities, and still more have been requested.

Various phases of CWA and relief projects require the most. So far they have spread into nine rooms, including senate committee and cloak rooms and clerks' quarters. Rowland Haynes, the federal relief agent, Randall Blart, the state relief director, M. B. Jones, the CWA engineer, and Miss Lulu Wolford, in charge of women's work, each have desk space and assistants. D. J. Melner, the statistician for all these activities alone manages a staff of about forty-five persons.

This does not take into account State Tax Commissioner Smith, who spends most of his time now on duties as CWA chairman. He and two special assistants are in his old office. Nor of State Engineer Cochran, who also labors long hours for the CWA.

H. O. Nordness, in charge of the RFC office, and half a dozen helpers occupy some of the room which the clerk of the house uses during legislative sessions. On the floor below, George Hodge, the federal re-employment director, manages a staff of ten office workers in two rooms.

Federal bank examiners directed by G. F. Roetzel, who are checking the qualifications of state bankers for inclusion in the federal deposit guaranty program, occupy a narrow room near the state banking department.

The railway commission, called upon to supply hundreds of corn storage certificates as a result of the federal corn program, has moved into one of the press rooms and added sixteen employees. Commissioner Drake declared he might put tables in the hall if unable to get better accommodations.

The highway department, with a $7,800,000 federal construction program on its hands, has placed draughtsmen in the tenth floor of the capitol tower as well as in large offices ordinarily available on the first floor.

This review does not take into account hundreds of field men operating from the various offices. Hodge alone estimates that his organization includes about 300 persons.

DIES IN CALIFORNIA

The message was received in this city Sunday of the death at Glendale, California, of Mrs. John Gunderson, well known in this city, where she made her home for some time with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Soennichsen.

Mrs. Gunderson was formerly of Vermillion, South Dakota, but after the death of her husband had since lived here and in recent years at Glendale, where she made her home with her daughter, Miss Ida and her grandsons, John and Richard Soennichsen.

She had been ill for some time, suffering a heart attack that proved fatal.

The body is to be brought to the old home at Vermillion where the funeral services will be held and interment made in the family cemetery in that city.

FUNERAL OF MRS. MEISINGER

The funeral of Mrs. Peter Meisinger was held on Sunday at the St. Paul's Evangelical church where for many years she had been a member of the faith, the service being attended by a very large number of the old friends and associates.

The pastor, Rev. G. A. Pahl, gave a short sermon to bring to the bereaved ones the word of the scriptures and also gave a sketch of the life of the departed lady.

The choir of the church gave two of the old and loved hymns that had been such favorites of the departed.

The body was laid to rest at the Oak Hill cemetery, the pall bearers, both active and honorary, being grandchildren of the departed lady, the active pall bearers being Edgar, Lester, Victor, Verner, Alvin and Herman Meisinger and the honorary pall bearers Bernice and Howard Meisinger, of near Springfield.

Figures in Family Drama

Mrs. Dorothea Irene Turley, of St. Johns, Ariz., pictured with her son David, and her 15-year-old daughter, Mattie. According to the story of the daughter, who is awaiting sentence on a charge of attempted murder, her mother, who once won the title of the "American Venus de Milo," ordered her to shoot her father, Ernest Turley (inset), in order that she might maintain a friendship with a handsome cowboy.
