Wm. Jorgensen was assisting Nelson Berger sawing wood, the wife took him over when she also took the children to school, and on her return home found it enveloped in smoke. She could not enter the house to telephone and had to return to where the husband was sawing wood to give the alarm, but with hasty work when a crowd had gathered, they broke the door and found that fire had burned a hole in the floor and as well the partition nearby. They soon had it out but just in the nick of time, for the fire was gaining much headway.

Will Give Attention to Cafe.
Mrs. Albert Wolfe, who has been cooking at the home and as well looking after the matters at the telephone exchange finds that the work was too arduous, and has tendered her resignation as manager of the telephone exchange and which has been accepted. Railroads Need U. S. Aid in Re-financing Task

2 Billion, 300 Millions of Securities Mature in 1934—Some Plan Must Be Worked Out.

Washington, Dec. 26.—The government is going to have to help the nation's railroads meet $2,300,000 of refinancing during the next year, in the opinion of Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman.

Discussing the situation of some of the great carriers, Jones said, however, that the banks would have to carry most of the load.

"We must find some way to help the railroads meet their maturing securities," he said. "Some plan of government assistance will have to be worked out but I do not think that we can do more than a small part."

Talk Railroad Agency.
Several of the large railroads, including the New York Central which has a May 1 maturity of more than 40 million dollars of bonds—have discussed the situation with members of the corporation.

There has been some discussion of a proposal to set up another government agency to aid the railroads, but it was pointed out today that the RFC has a complete organization for handling loans that probably could deal with the situation more economically than a new unit.

In government circles it was indicated that whatever federal financing of industry is to be done should, in the opinion of officials, be handled through banks with government participation being held to a minimum.

Look to the Banks.
It was remarked that the government cannot do all of the financing necessary and that with the banks having so much at stake, they must supply most of the money and look after the loans.

The RFC is rapidly getting into a position where it will own stock or capital notes in one-third of all the country's open banks.

Up to Christmas day its board had authorized purchases of capital notes and preferred stock in 3,487 banks, totaling 697 million dollars. In many instances this stock represents an actual majority of the stock in the respective banks.

Lead to Closed Banks.
Applications for sale to the corporation of preferred stock and notes up to today totaled 4,170. There are approximately 14 thousand banks in the country.

The corporation up to Christmas made 1,352 loans to receivers and conservators of closed banks, the total advanced being approximately 582 million dollars.

REUNITED AFTER 26 YEARS
Kansas City.—The first reunion of a mother with her four children in twenty-six years heightened the joy of Christmas at a home here. When he was two and one-half years old, the son was placed in a home at Des Moines, and later was adopted under the name he now bears, Cecil Lund. His present home is Laurens, Ia. The three daughters were placed in a home in St. Joseph, Mo. They now are Mrs. Gerald Winters, of Marysville, Mo., Mrs. Charles A. Walker and Mrs. Adeline Walker of Kansas City.

Two months ago, the mother, Mrs. George E. Davis, wrote the home at Des Moines where her son had been placed. Her letter arrived there simultaneously with one from Lund to learn where she lived. A newspaper advertisement previously had aided the sisters in finding their mother.

Monday all met for the first time together in twenty-six years at the home of Mrs. Charles A. Walker. "It seems good to see a fellow's sisters," Lund said, "I had never seen them before and they had seen only a picture of me taken when I was 18 months old."

LIQUOR PRICE DROP SEEN
Washington.—Dr. James M. Doran, supervisor of the distilled spirits institute, said reductions would be made in some of the wholesale prices for blended liquor that he submitted to the federal alcohol control administration last week. "We expect to shave some of them down but I can't say which ones," he said. "The list I gave the FACA was not complete. I expect to submit a full list after the first of the year. That list will contain revisions of the early prices."

Doran coupled this statement with an expression of dissatisfaction at the extent of liquor imports. "Any whisky from any place would be a good thing," he said.

Use of Contracted Acres—
"What can I do with the land taken out of wheat and corn?" has been one of the most common questions farmers ask about the wheat and corn-hog adjustment plans. As they make plans for 1934 crops, farmers are becoming more anxious every day to know what they can do with the ground.

In most cases farmers have admitted that the government was paying them a good return for the land and they could afford to leave it idle or seed it down to improve the fertility of the soil. Thousands of farmers over the corn belt are now thinking more about the future productivity of their farms than they have thought in the last 20 years. They want to

Corn-Hog Plan—
Reduction of the first corn benefit payment of the corn-hog contract from 20 to 15 cents carries with the change a feature which will probably appeal to ninety per cent of the Nebraska farmers who sign contracts, W. H. Brokaw, state corn-hog administrator, predicts.

The new feature is that the corn-hog contract will be given a "preliminary approval" and the first 15 cents will be paid before the county allotment committee finishes its final check on the farmers' figures. This system should speed up the program and get the benefit payments back into Nebraska farmers' hands several weeks or even months sooner than would otherwise be possible.

In signing up the corn-hog contract, the farmer will fill out the first part of the form as the application to have his figures considered by the county allotment committee. The latter part of the contract is filled out by the allotment committee. Signing up the last part of the contract is an acceptance of the corrections and adjustments which the county allotment committee has made in the farmer's original figures. The second signature makes the contract binding.

By signing his name in both places when he turns in the form for the first time, a farmer can agree to take whatever adjustment the allotment committee finds it necessary to make. In return he is assured the prompt payment of the first installment of 15 cents per bushel on his acres and yield. Then if the allotment committee adjusts his production figures, he will get the remainder of the benefit payment that is coming to him next fall.

Use of Contracted Acres—
"What can I do with the land taken out of wheat and corn?" has been one of the most common questions farmers ask about the wheat and corn-hog adjustment plans. As they make plans for 1934 crops, farmers are becoming more anxious every day to know what they can do with the ground.

In most cases farmers have admitted that the government was paying them a good return for the land and they could afford to leave it idle or seed it down to improve the fertility of the soil. Thousands of farmers over the corn belt are now thinking more about the future productivity of their farms than they have thought in the last 20 years. They want to use the money from the benefit payments to help finance a soil improvement program.

Rulings on what may be done with the land taken out of wheat are:

1. Planted to permanent pasture, including alfalfa and clovers, with or without a nurse crop.

2. Planted to a soil improvement crop like sweet clover. The crop cannot be pastured or cut for hay.

3. Fallowed to store moisture or kill weeds.

4. Planted to farm wood lots.

These points and many others will be taken up at community meetings, at school houses and other meeting places in the next few weeks. Farmers will have a chance there to ask more questions and get each other's ideas.

GETS PART OF JULIAN BOND

Oklahoma City.—The government collected $5,000 on C. C. Julian's $25,000 bond, forfeited when the oil promoter fled to China rather than face trial on mail fraud charges here. The money had been posted as a reward for Julian, alleged to have swindled 15,000 stockholders in his company of more than 3 million dollars, by two of his bondsmen, John H. Peacock, oil man, and Mrs. O. A. Cargill, wife of Julian's former attorney. The other bondsmen were Frank Russell, oil man, and John H. Peacock, Inc.

Federal Judge Vaught said no judgment could be entered against Julian since he had not been served with legal notice. However, attorneys for the other signers indicated they hoped to obtain redress if Julian still holds any property in this country. The judge said ample time would be allowed for payment of the remainder of the bond.

Senators are Balking on Proposal of Johnson

Do Not Care to Serve on a Board Under the NRA Administration.

Washington.—Senate republican independents who were recently invited to serve on a new board under the recovery administration to hear complaints from small businessmen are balking at the idea that Hugh E. Johnson wants the board to be a contact organization between the recovery unit and congress. Senator Nye, North Dakota, said if Johnson wanted the board to be a contact group instead of serving entirely under the recovery administration the project should be deferred until congress expressed itself. If congress wanted such a board, he added, it could say so and appoint its own members. Nye expressed doubt whether a resolution for a congressional investigation of the recovery administration could be approved, but said there was great need for revising many of the codes to protect the independents in business from "monopolies."

Senator Borah, the other senator asked to serve on the board, has turned down the request flatly unless Johnson sees the way he does on the antitrust laws. Borah said he saw little hope of the recovery administration's generalissimo coming over to his idea that the antitrust laws should be restored to protect the small businessman. These laws were repealed with the passage of the industrial recovery act to permit industries to agree on codes of competition.

URGING MEMORIAL ARMORY

Washington.—Col. Fred B. Ryan, alumnus of the University of Nebraska and former member of the army engineers corps, urged public works officials to approve the Pershing Memorial armory proposed for the University of Nebraska campus. Senator Thompson reported the $400,000 application was receiving favorable consideration. It was understood secretary Dern, himself a Nebraska alumnus, presented the war department's favorable report to the public works administration.
