Sealing Many Cribbs
H. L. Clapp, corn inspector for this portion of Cass county, has been busy inspecting and sealing cribbs for many farmers in this vicinity. The plan of loaning 45 cents per bushel on corn to be stored and withheld from the market should react favorably to the general price advance so much desired and it is quite probable all who take advantage of this liberal offer of the government will be able to sell their crop at more than the loan figure, and will have had the use of that much of the money six months or so before they would otherwise get it.

Candidate on File for Coming Primary Battle

None for Governor So Far But Several Other State Offices—One for Lieutenant Governor.

A white page headed "Governor" is otherwise unmarred in the book in which Secretary of State Swanson has recorded the nominations filed by candidates who desire their names on the state primary election ballot in August. The new year starts with no nominations yet on file for the office of governor, but there is plenty of space on the page for future filings.

The first to get his name in the nomination book was former Representative Foster of Omaha who filed Nov. 30, 1932, immediately after he found he was defeated for railway commissioner. He is a candidate again for that office on the republican ticket.

The present state officers, with the possible exception of Attorney General Good and State Superintendent Taylor, who are silent, have signified their intention of running again.

Congressman Howard, who has talked of running for senator, has not accepted or declined a petition nomination filed by court house employees in Omaha, or said whether he is running for renomination for congress.

Congressional candidates in several districts have come out and several have filed as candidates for judge of the supreme court on the non-political ballot in the three even numbered districts which vacancies are to occur. Only one candidate for lieutenant governor has filed.

The following are the candidates who have filed nominating certificates and are now recorded as candidates at the coming primary:

Lieutenant governor—C. A. Green, Lincoln, republican.
Secretary of state—Frank Marsh, Norfolk, republican.
Commissioner public land and buildings—Gernie B. Thomas, Lincoln, republican; Harry P. Conklin, Scottsbluff, democrat.

For congress:
Third district—Joseph E. Daly, Fremont, democrat; H. Halderson, Newman Grove, republican; Hugo Srb, Dodge, democrat.
Fourth district—A. C. Shallenberger, Alma, democrat.
Fifth district—Harry B. Coffee, Chadron, democrat; William E. Shuman, North Platte, republican.
Judge of supreme court:
Second district—L. B. Day, Omaha.
Fourth district—Edwin E. Good, Wahoo.
Sixth district—Isaac J. Nisley, North Platte; C. F. Carter, Gering; Edwin E. Squires, Broken Bow; James L. Tewell, Sidney.

Movement is on for a Change in Livestock Act

Intended to Prohibit Direct Buying by Packers—Senator Norris Favors It.

Washington.—An effort to abolish direct buying of livestock by packers was renewed in congress by Representative Hope of Kansas, ranking republican member of the agriculture committee. The Kansas reintroduced an amendment to the stockyards act which would place control of livestock purchases in the hands of the secretary of agriculture by giving him power to license markets and stockyards. It is the contention of proponents of this amendment that packers now divide territory, thus eliminating competition in bidding and virtually set their own prices on hogs, cattle and sheep. This practice, Hope asserted, has increased to such an extent that it dominates practically the entire purchase of hogs.

"Recently packers apparently have been able to fix prices to producers at will and pass the processing tax back to the farmer rather than the consumer," hope said. "I believe farmers are more unanimous that direct buying is detrimental to them than they were six years ago," he said, adding that hearings would be conducted soon on the amendment.

Discussing the subject of direct buying, Senator Norris said it should be abolished, and packers compelled to bid for hogs in markets regulated and controlled by the government. Senator Bulow, South Dakota, joined Norris in his protest against direct hog buying.

Norris questioned the advisability of making beef a "basic commodity" under the agricultural adjustment act in order to adjust production thru payment of benefits. "There is danger in classifying too many products as basic commodities," he contended. "Some people would put all products in that class and the adjustment administration would topple over from its own weight."

Representative Burke, Nebraska, said he believes beef should be included under that act "and it should have been a basic commodity from the start." He said cattle producers now favor it.

Smothered to Death

The bitterly cold weather brought tragedy to a Chicago family in their pitiful effort to combat the cold without fuel or proper shelter. Barbara and Blanche Marshall (above), twin sisters, were suffocated under the single blanket and overcoat that were drawn over them as they slept with their father and mother, Albert Marshall, unemployed war veteran, and his wife, Marie.
