It isn't only the dry that repeat brought a shock to. Some of the wets had thought they would get good whisky at reasonable prices.

Some day someone will propose something about which no one can possibly kick, and it will die a natural death for want of advertising.

There's no banana and no oil in banana oil, say scientists. Just a dash of pyroxoline, some emylacetate, some acetone and—well, let's just keep on calling it banana oil.

A Polish gentleman married five wives, and the fifth discovered that he hadn't been divorced from any of the other four, so she got the happy family all together and they kicked friend husband to death. There ought to be a moral of some kind in the fact that a man marries five women without finding a perfect lady in the whole bunch, and probably Moon Mullins's Uncle Willie would have had the right words for the motto.

In speaking of "peanut politics," Mr. Roosevelt has intervened to save a peanut vender.

They cut pretty deep into Babe Ruth's salary, stopping, in fact, just in time to keep him out of the unemployed classification.

Maybe the reason metal weather stripe often whine when the wind blows hard from the north is to call your attention to the good service they're giving.

With repeal swinging back into action in America, maybe the Scots will have something to do with their whisky besides drinking it, and the Loch Ness monster may gradually disappear.

If you wish to appear cultured, don't call a man a liar, even if you think he is one. Call him a "cot-fabulator." This will confuse the person thus classified until you will have time to get away before he hits you.

Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, February 4 By L. Neitzel, Murdock, Neb.

"Putting God's Kingdom First"

Matt. 6:19-33.

In the study of this lesson we would emphasize the teachings concerning trust in God, so greatly needed in these anxious and worldly days. The entire chapter is included, but we should not linger and pause too long at the Lord's Prayer, as we will have a lesson on that later in the year.

This is a continuation of the Sermon on the Mount; time, midsummer of the year A. D. 28; place, Horns of Hattin, west of sea of Galilee—parallel passage, the "Sermon on the Plain." (Luke 6:20-49).

Our Lord came to earth to establish the kingdom of heaven, the divine way of living. The first chapter of the Sermon on the Mount described the nature of that kingdom, very different from the teaching of the Pharisees—note their charity and prayer. They were play-actors. They sought to make a goodly show before men, whereas the Christian was taught to refer his life constantly to God alone. He will reward us—how or when we are not told; but we can safely leave that to our heavenly Father. Furthermore, Christ warns against vain (empty) repetitions of heavenly prayers. The poor Buddhist will inscribe his prayers on the fan of a mill or praying machine, driven around by wind or wave. Prayer, in its essence, is rather the drawing near of the human heart to God, the intercourse of our spirits with his spirit, the talking with God as a man talks with his friend.

Our Lord lifts his voice in a solemn warning against that love of riches which has in all ages characterized the Jews; and this worldly-mindedness marks our present age and our country as conspicuously as it ever marked the Hebrew race. The first thought and question when some wealthy man dies is "How much did he leave?" Some wise man says, "He left it all!" But the piling up of wealth is the curse of our day. One of our richest men—a Mr. Mellon—died recently, a multimillionaire—leaving $200 to charity, his millions to his wealthy relatives. Jesus does not speak or teach against thrift or accumulating property, but his warning is that man must not make that the major object of his life. Treasures accumulated here are subject to destruction by moth and rust or may be stolen or lost, but the good and kindly deeds, the alleviation of suffering, the endowment of institutions of learning—churches—hospitals—these will God notice. He is a good bookkeeper. "A book of remembrance was written before him." (Mal. 3:16). Our treasures entrusted to his care are the only ones that are secure and safe—that bank never fails—interest is sure—He pays promptly. No bank in this world is absolutely safe. How people do worry these days whose life savings are tied up in our banks and in other securities. Who can count the suicides of those who have lost their treasures? How many murders are committed to get possession of peoples money? How many are swindled out of their farms and their homes?

No one has ever lost in the bank of heaven! Then the sad part of the possessor of riches is that it becomes his God; his heart is tied up in them and off, after having gained his earthly store, he loses his soul. "For what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world... and lose his own soul?"

Men do not realize the great danger, nor do they stop to think that the day is coming when they must render an account to Him who entrusted them with these "talents." Jesus knew—hence the warning!

The lamp is not the light, but transmits it. "The eye is the spiritual faculty through which the light of God's truth is recognized and admitted into the soul." (Rev. A. Carr).

A sound eye will see clear, distinctly—not double or confusedly. The soul's eye must be single and the singleness of motive and desire must spring from the superhuman energy that comes to us from the spirit-given love of Jesus Christ. The fidelity of trying to serve two masters is too apparent as to need much explanation. St. Peter tried it—the divided heart got him into trouble. Judas tried it and the end of the suicide. John Bunyan reminds us that there are two easy ways of getting around the hill of difficulty, but the name of one is Danger and of the other Destruction, and that the only right and safe way is straight up to the top. Trust in God is the lesson to learn of every child of God. Many illustrations are given. Anxious care does not produce the necessities of life, neither food or drink, nor raiment; nor will it add to our stature in height. God, who is the author of our life—will sustain it. Behold God's care of the birds! "O ye of little faith!"

But to sum up the whole lesson, Jesus puts it in a few words: "Seek ye first the kingdom of heaven and its righteousness; and all these things (mentioned before) shall be added unto you." Jesus teaches that the kingdom of God is so beautiful and worth so much to a man that if he really catches sight of it, he will be ready to give up everything else for it. We usually invert the order of the text—the world first and after that for God what we can spare from the world. The soul that has caught a sight of heaven does jubilantly cry out: "Whom have I in heaven but thee? And there is none upon the earth that I desire beside thee!" (Ps. 73:25).

"My Father is rich in houses and lands— He holdeth the wealth of the world in his hands! Of rubies and diamonds, of silver and gold His coffers are full—He has riches untold! I'm the child of that King." ALL is yours, and ye are Christ's!

SUPPORT THE CWA

The country was shocked when Harry Hopkins, head of the Civil Works Administration, announced that, beginning in February, half a million men a week would be dropped from the CWA payrolls unless Congress came promptly to the rescue with another appropriation for this purpose of $350,000,000 or more.

This is one form of relief work which meets the approval of practically everybody. It is not a "dole" in the sense that men are given money for nothing. It does not put a premium on laziness, nor breed the habit of mendicancy. That is the great danger in the usual methods of taking care of the unfortunate and unemployed. In a high proportion of instances the man who finds that he can get by without work becomes more and more reluctant to do any work at all. The Civil Works Administration plan is far sounder. Even if it is "made" work, it is nevertheless work which must be done somehow, sometime, which those who receive CWA funds are called upon to give in return for support.

No catastrophe could be worse for the nation than the creation of a new army of bums and tramps. There were signs a few months ago of a general break-down of the morale of huge numbers of men and women, who were ready to throw up their hands and make no further effort to help themselves. That crisis, we believe, is past. Many have been put back to work in industry and more are being taken back every week. But there is still a great slack of unemployment to be taken up before re-employment will be 100 percent, and the CWA plan is the only system we know of which preserves, instead of destroying, the morale of its beneficiaries.

We hope that Congress will act speedily in the emergency and that Mr. Hopkins and the regional administrators under his direction will not have to drop a single person from the CWA payrolls, but instead will be enabled to put everybody on who can qualify.

A PEACE OFFENSIVE BUT WHAT'S IN IT

Addressing the Japanese diet, Foreign Minister Hirota poured pacific words on his country's relations with America, spoke of his government's passion for friendship, deprecated the recent new firmness of soviet Russia toward Japan, insisted that Japan was ready to meet China "more than half way," and got to the meat of the coconut with the remark that his government believes "proper adjustment of the tripartite relationship between Japan, Manchukuo and the soviet union is of paramount importance to the tranquility of east Asia."

There is a noteworthy toning down of the official Japanese attitude at present, which may or may not have some relation to the retirement of General Araki as active boss of the government "on account of ill health."

It may or may not bear an immediate relation to other political developments, such as American recognition of Russia.

The point is that there is the toning down. Even Araki a while back tossed out a suggestion for a "conference" of powers interested in the far eastern situation—a conference, which, to be sure, would include that new "independency," Manchukuo.

All this may signify nothing or it may signify considerable. Remembering that formal diplomatic utterances from such sounding boards as that afforded by the Japanese diet at this moment usually are meant to convey hints of consequence to somebody, it might be correct to interpret the new trend as a feeler for a settlement of the really disputed matters.

What Japan wants is recognition of Manchukuo, in one form or another.

Even granting that, all things considered, we do not intend to back up from the attitude that up to now we have taken and held, under Hoover and under Roosevelt—even if it is simply concluded that Japan is pursuing the same ends as in 1931 and '32, and wants to break the solidarity of the powers that have condemned her measures—even so, one wonders just how far Japan might be willing to go at this stage to save her face and still satisfy the judgment of the outside world, particularly that of Washington.

It might be worth finding out. For if there is going to be any settlement whatever of the Manchurian issue short of a settlement by war itself, Japan's face has got to be saved—saved at least a little. We may be quite sure of that.—Des Moines Register.

Win One, Lose One.

Bennet's high school basketball team lost again to Eagle in a hotly contested game at Bennet last Wednesday. Three extra periods were necessary to decide the game. The final score was Eagle 18, Bennet 17.

Eagle did not fare so well against Louisville on Friday. The score stood at 27-27, 1 minutes left to play at 27-27, 1 1/2 minutes before the final gong, when Louisville took a sudden spurt, making two goals in quick succession, which gave them the game 31-27. Considering the fact that Louisville is undefeated this season, Eagle's boys made a fine showing and we are proud of them in defeat just as we would be in victory.

WE'VE HAD ENOUGH OF THAT SORT OF THING

In Milwaukee a nail party was put on Sunday night, of which the leading feature was to have an audience, many of them presumably American citizens, raise their hands and cry "Hell Hitler!" Pervent speeches were made, including denunciation of the Jews and long attacks on Russia. American citizens who did not care to cry "Hell Hitler" were denounced as "traitors."

One would think that in all conscience we had had enough of this in this country. The thing was tried out in days before we entered the war. All it accomplished was to hurt the souls of many thousands of good men and women who were trying to live and work and think as Americans. Societies were formed to put the United States into the war on the side of the allies, to keep the United States out of the war, to put it on the side of Germany. In the end this country moved when the force of circumstances dictated and as it dictated.

We can have it all over again, with new trimmings. This time the socialist party is unsympathetic to the German government, so it can provide a nucleus of protest and denunciation. The friends of new Germany can get up their revival meetings and denounce Jews, Russia, anti-Hitlerites and all the rest of it. They can give their salute, if it is a form of indoor sport they enjoy. But men living in America and profiteering thereby won't create any respect for themselves if they go around saluting a foreign ruler.

Other groups may be inspired by these examples. If Poland decides it is threatened by Hitler's government, we can have Poles appealing to Americans of Polish descent to think as Poles and hail Pilsudski, and friends of the new Ireland hailing De Valera in Celtic and preaching whatever they feel the situation in Ireland demands.

All it can accomplish is to divert men from ways of thinking that are necessary if they are to have here on this side of the Atlantic a country of their own where they belong and their children belong. That is what we have been making over here for three hundred years, and it has been shown clearly enough for thinking people that the force that makes men and women American is strongest. The force that makes them belong to the land where they live and bury their fathers and bring up their children conquers in any test.

All that the hullabaloo and saluting and preaching of hatreds do is to disgust Americans who realize the common sense fact that we are not in this country going to direct the thought of Germany or Russia, Japan or China, Poland or Italy. We can stir up squabbles and hatreds in our own home, but in the end the course of our people will be decided by what they think is good for them, and the course of our government by what they think is good for America.—Milwaukee Journal.
