"Sally Rana a Firm Believer in Advertising," a headline says. She goes in for the unvelled truth, too.

It's not that some of us are more polite than others, but we may be able to yawn with our mouths shut.

A correspondent, otherwise quite solemn, mentions in connection with some of Mr. Farley's appointees "the administration's peons of praise."

One of those notices which really should be tagged "To Whom It May Concern": Al Capone has moved his shoe shop from Atlanta to Alcatraz, Cal.

With the Dillingers on the vaudeville stage and Huey Long in the senate, what business after all, fellows, have we to throw Hitler up to the Germans?

A man who offers affidavits to support what he says in a public speech, is either a liar or knows that other people will suspect him of lying. Probably both.

Because she admired the statue of the Winged Victory, the President's mother was presented a copy by the French government. Won't she say a few words of admiration for the war debt?

The cool days last week brought a lot of women out of their basements and recreation rooms for the first time in six weeks, and sent them scurrying downtown to buy sun glasses.

There's one thing about the dry weather this summer. Mothers have not had to worry about their little dears playing in mud puddles after they'd got them all cleaned up for the afternoon.

Nature probably knows why, but we never could understand why she insists on making a man baldheaded. We contemplate on this more as our own hair begins to slip, and looking in the mirror, we are convinced we are no beauty.

When a statesman shouts that thousands of school teachers are teaching sedition in our schools today, he has great difficulty in remembering one of those teachers by name.

It must be quite a blow to the pennant-bound Detroit Tigers to realize that school will open in a week or two, and, of course, School-boy Rowe will have to get back to his books.

Sinclair Lewis was at a loss for words when they told him Hitler had sent his wife, Dorothy Thompson out of Germany. That raises the episode to the importance of an international incident.

Evidently Los Angeles married couples no longer frame their marriage certificates and hang them on the wall. The size of the certificates in that county has been reduced from 17x14 inches to 5x8 1/2. Convenient for vest pocket or pocket-book.

At the risk of being included among the Tories Mr. Farley and Professor Tugwell inveigh so heavily against, we regard the announcement of a vaccine against infantile paralysis as the best news of the year, not even excepting the decision to buy silver.

Work has been halted on the shelter belt tree-planting project, one of the very cheapest of the new deal experiments, because the money has run out. One virtue of government experiments is that the bigger the project the longer it goes before the money runs out.

The NRA blue eagle doesn't appear to be a bird of uniform sweetness and light. A Chicago bus company, having recently lost its blue eagle, advertises its fortitude under the loss, saying the eagle had brought the company "nothing but headaches, heartaches, disappointment and disillusionment."

The Austrian government gives mothers a "subsidy" of one dollar for each child, a sum which many consider either too much or not nearly enough.

The German government favors the principle of permitting a condemned person to commit suicide. Let's see, isn't that something like the old Japanese custom of mata hari?

The Louisville Courier-Journal wonders why the Republicans haven't blamed the brain trust for the drought. Well, they were about to do so, when the brain trust jumped ahead of them and claimed credit for it.

Despite General Johnson's increase in salary, Washington rumors insist that he is due for a change in position—a position where, perhaps, he will not be subject to the humiliation of having to hire back an employee he once discharged.

The Guatemalan consul at New Orleans visited a night club in that city Sunday night, and was severely beaten by an ex-pugilist on the night club pay roll. This, of course, will be a shock to Huey Long, whose distress over New Orleans' morals has been most touching.

Famous Soprano Studies Broadcasting on Motor Trips to the Country

Gladys Swarthout, whose success as the youthful prodigy of the Metropolitan Opera was earned partly by her capacity for hard work, makes every minute count toward improving her radio art. She takes the recreation that gives the freshness and charm of the outdoors to her singing, but even in Nature's secluded retreats, she gets new ideas for pleasing her broadcasting audiences by "tuning in" the radio of her car.

Miss Swarthout will appear in another program with the atmosphere of the outdoors on Monday evening, September 3, in the Garden Series of "The Voice of Firestone" at 8:30 p. m. E. D. S. T. over the N. B. C. Red Network. The program includes: "Two Hearts in Three-Four Time," "Una Loca Poco Fo" (Barber of Seville), "L'Amour Toujours," "L'Amour," "Peanut Vendor," "Avalon," "Just a Wearyin' For You," "Quartet From Sextet From Lucia."

Home from World's Fair
Messrs John Crane and Harold Krecklow, with a nephew of Harold, arrived home last week after having visited the World's fair and looked over various other sights of interest in the Windy city. They spent about ten days on the trip and made a side trip to Milwaukee, where they were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Krecklow, riding on the lake for two days and nights. Their trip going was via the southern route, for a portion of the way, and then switching over to a more northern route, they stopped in Dubuque, Iowa, the first night and in Milwaukee the next. They tell of the southern portion of Iowa being just like it is here, but that the northern portion of Iowa has some very good crops and everything is nice and green. The boys enjoyed their vacation and came home greatly refreshed as a result of their trip.

Nearly Two Million Dollars to Aid State Needy

Federal Grant for Month Includes a Liberal Amount for Stock Feed.

Members of the Nebraska emergency relief committee have been called upon to assemble on Friday afternoon to allocate to the various counties one of the largest sums of federal relief funds allocated to Nebraska.

The allotments made by the committee chairman, issued the call for the meeting after word was received from Washington that the Nebraska request for $1,996,215 of federal funds has been approved "substantially as recommended." Of this amount $600,000 will be available for direct relief of needy persons.

The notification came from Rowland Haynes, federal relief administrator for Nebraska who went to Washington to confer with federal relief heads when indication was given that the requested sum might be materially reduced.

The sum granted to Nebraska for September will meet the costs for human relief needs, for purchase of feed for drought distressed livestock and to carry on other relief activities.

Haynes had requested the increased sum for September on the theory that purchases of feed for distressed livestock in drought areas would enable many farmers to carry their families thru the winter without other aid.

Haynes, on leaving for Washington, said he planned to stress the fact that failure to purchase livestock feed might mean loss of animals by many farmers and resultant increases in the regular relief case loads.

F. R. WILL COME HERE?

President Roosevelt, according to grape vine reports, would like to come to Nebraska about Oct. 25, if possible, to help Senator Norris in his campaign for the one house legislature amendment. This date is believed to have no connection with the proposed dedication of the capitol, which has not been fixed as to date. If the president comes he may prefer to be free to make a political speech and not be confined to a dedicatory subject. Senator Norris is expected to arrive Sept. 25 and open headquarters in the Cornhusker hotel to begin his one house legislature campaign. Former Congressman Norton may find it convenient to arrive in Nebraska after Norris comes to make five addresses for the Norris amendment, but not on any other topic, politics to be shunned.

Wabash News

Ralph Richards was threshing alfalfa during the early part of last week and was surprised to find it making such good returns, especially when the weather is taken into consideration.

School began last Monday with Mrs. Frank Marshall and her ten scholars. This is a far flung line from the fifty who formerly went to school here and started out in the world from this school and town.

William Murfin, who has been engaged in work at the Norfolk Packing company's plant in Plattsmouth for some time, was forced to come home a few days during the past week on account of lumbago, which has produced a lameness in his back and made him so that he could not work.

Grandfather H. P. Hinds, a well-known figure in Wabash for many years, but who is now at Burns, Wyo., writes to his friends here saying that he is getting along very nicely at this time and that the weather is nice and cool, not like it was when he was here and that crops are fine and fruit plentiful.

Lived in Wabash

Mrs. E. L. Shipley, who for many years was a resident of Wabash, and who with the husband left here many years ago, recently died at Lincoln, at the age of 74 years, the funeral being held at Lincoln and burial made in Oakwood cemetery, Weeping Water. Picking Apples at Wenatchee

A letter from Lloyd Richards and Ivan McBride, who left here some six weeks ago for the west, tells of their being at Wenatchee, Washington, at which place they are engaged in picking apples. To hold down expenses, they are batching and doing all their own cooking. They state the cost of board is almost prohibitive and that the cost of edibles of all kinds is high compared with here. Eggs, for instance, are selling at 36 cents per dozen there.

Home from Hospital

Mrs. Fred Towle, who was at the hospital for some time, where she was receiving treatment and was under observation, has so far improved that she is able to return home. Miss Edna McCrorey is assisting with the house work and caring for Mrs. Towle until she shall have gotten her strength back and is able to do the work herself.

Miscellaneous Shower

A pre-nuptial shower was given on last Wednesday afternoon in honor of Miss Helen Stanley, at the home of Mrs. W. T. Richards. A large number of the ladies of Wabash were in attendance and all enjoyed a splendid time, as well as bringing pleasure to the one who is to soon become house-keeper in her own home as a partner of Fred Patzel. A number of beautiful and useful gifts were presented to the bride-to-be.

"CHEVIES" RETAIN LEAD

The first game between the American Legion and the Rovers was rained out and will be played later.
