Flower Show Plans Pushed

System of Providing a Heating System for Blooms Engaging Attention of Engineers.

While wintry blasts prevail, a group of Omaha and Council Bluffs business men are thinking only of flowers—acres and acres of world champion flowers. They are planning on the "Million Dollar Flower Show" to be held in Omaha March 30 to April 7.

Engineers have been called into conference to arrange for an extensive heating system to be installed in a series of buildings just east of the Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum where the main part of the big show will be staged.

Glen M. Wilcox, Omaha and Council Bluffs florist, chairman of the local executive committee of the exhibition, said Saturday that special heating arrangements will have to be made in the smaller buildings around the Coliseum in order that the proper temperatures may be maintained for the care of the flowers which will be on exhibition.

Plans are being considered for building of a spur railroad track to the site of the Ak-Sar-Ben buildings so that steam locomotives may be used to generate the necessary heat, Wilcox said.

The utmost precaution must be taken in arranging the heating facilities," Wilcox said, "as the flowers which will be brought here are valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars. They will be the prize products of the world's horticultural experts who have spent many millions of dollars in the process of perfecting them."

Open Offices Soon. Wilcox pointed out that general renovating of the buildings at the Coliseum will be necessary and that interior decorators will transform them into a fitting setting for the event.

Immediately after the first of the year officials of the national organization will establish offices in Omaha to assist in the general direction of the show which is expected to draw visitors from every state in the union.—World-Herald.

MUST CONFISCATE GUNS

The question raised by State Auditor Price, in a report of State Accountant Ruud, regarding the confiscation of fire arms and the return of such arms to the owners by the state game warden, has been cleared up by an opinion from Attorney General Good to State Warden O'Connell who had said that confiscation of guns had been made when court orders so directed, but that a court order had not been issued in many cases. Governor Bryan had also explained that he had one gun returned to an owner who proved to be on relief and was using his gun to shoot rabbits for his family table.

The attorney general's opinion holds that the statute relating to confiscation is mandatory and indicates that no discretion was intended to be placed in enforcing officers. He finds it is the duty of the state game commission to seize guns unlawfully used, but final forfeiture does not occur until after conviction. He says the court order should be so drawn that a proper order may be obtained. Returning the guns would in effect be remitting part of the penalty and such power is conferred only on the board of pardons, says the attorney general. Sale of forfeited property is proper, he finds.

HIGHER VALUE ON IOWA CROPS

Des Moines, Dec. 19.—The value of all Iowa farm crops increased 32 million dollars during 1934, an average of more than $100 per farm, Leslie M. Carl, federal agricultural statistician, said in a statement to the press Wednesday.

The increase was 15 per cent over the 1933 valuation despite the fact that acreage was reduced 19 per cent and the tonnage of the 64 crops on which records are kept decreased 50 per cent, according to Carl.

He set the value of 1934 crops at $255,824,000 as compared with $223,273,000 in 1933. On nine major crops, grains, tame hay, flaxseed, soy beans and potatoes, the increase in value was also 15 per cent.
